WAR AND TRADE.

Capitalism Makes Peace Impossible.

General Young Says a Great Conflict for Control of Asiatic Markets is Coming-Why War Is a Normal Condition of Capitalist Presperity.

"The empire is peace (L'empire, c'est In paix), said Louis Napoleon when, by foul intrigue and murderous violence, he overthrew the republic and usurped power in France; and there followed eighteen years of war and of stock-jobbers' prosperity, till the empire fell in unexampled shame and utter ruin.

"Peace and prosperity, law and order, reverence for established institutions and again, peace and properity," is the delusive cry of our capi-talist statesmen to-day. They would have us believe that only by bowing to their ideal of law and order, only by paying blind reverance to the established institutions by paying blind reverence to the established in-stitutions by which their class profits, can we, the great working mass of the people, enjoy peace and prosperity.

Yet every day we are taught, by the raising of prices, by the increased intensity of labor, by the growing of accidents to workers in mine and factory and railroad, and by a hundred other signs, that for us it is but a hard choice between capitalist presperity and capitalist hard times.

And peace? To say nothing of the impossibility of industrial peace, to speak only of international relations. out of the mouths of their own great nen we learn, if we cannot learn otherwise, that war is a necessary re sult of capitalism, a necessary condi-tion of the capitalists' prosperity.

To Get Rid of the Surplus.

Almost two years ago Senator Depew told us the reason for the hurrying to and fro of armies in South Africa and the Philippines, the reason for the battering at the gates of Pekin that "we" are producing every year $2,000,000 worth more goods than "we" can consume, that "we" hust find a profitable market for the surplus, that all other civilized nations are in the same position, and so that each must strive by fair means or foul, by peaceful or by bloody methods, to win commercial supremacy in order to escape industrial ruin.

And now comes General Young, General Miles' successor at the head of the United States Army, and tells us the same truth. At a bazquet of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, sit-ting at the same table with Mark Hanna and Tom L. Johnson, he spoke on "The Army and Commerce,"

To obtain the trade of China we will have a long and hard struggle with the nations of Europe. We have obtained a strong point of advantage by getting the good will of the Chinese teople by our wise and humane diplomacy, but the advantage that overshadows all others is the pe slon of the Philippines. Their great-est value lies in their strategic position, both from a military and com-mercial standpoint, which is very favorable to gaining and keeping the control of the commerce a Asia. The time is coming when the Philippines will be the gateway through which will pass the goods of our great manufacturing establishments on their way

Commerce Follows the Mauser.

"Foreign commerce will follow the fing, if that fing is backed by a sufficient military force. However advantageous the possession of the I'hilippines may be from a commercial roper state of defense and protected by a sufficiently large army and navy. A large army is not needed in the Phil ippines on account of the insurrection for happily, due to the efficient work of the army, all armed insurrection is about over, and the administration of the affairs of the islands is in the hands of a civil commiss of War. The success attending the administration of the commission under the Presidency of Gov. Taft has been truly wonderful, and the natives are rapidly learning the true object of gov evament and the great benefits the United States has conferred on them.

"Quality and price go a long way to ward fixing the bounds of commerce, but there can be no permanency to a great commerce for which different nations are competing that is not backed up by a large and adequate military force. This is especially true of Oriental commerce. If we wish to gain the supremacy in commerce in the East we must maintain such a military force (army and navy) in the Philippine Islands that it can act instantly and effectually at any point is the Orient, and that fact must be well known and understood by all Oriental peoples. The larger and more efficient the force, and the more widely its strength and efficiency are known, the longer will the inevitable conflict of arms be delayed. No one can foretell time will come when we will have to fight to maintain the supremacy of our War is hell," said a famous soldier whose word should carry weight. War does not mean bonor and glory. It means corpses and bideous wounds and more bideous diseases and widows' tests and hungry orphane. cries and the throttling of noble hopes and the unchaining of all shameful pussions. And even while war is de-layed, the maintenance of armics and preparation for war means, not only a tremendous drain or the tremendous drain on the material re-sources of the country, but—still more disastrous—a drain on its manhood, a systematic cultivation of vice and disense and of every anti-social habit of thought and feeling.

Capitalism and War.

But all these things-because their purdens fall chiefly on the working people-our rulers quite cheerfully accept, because war is necessary to the maintenance of the capitalist system by which they live at ease.

"We" must fight to make the Chinese buy the surplus goods that "we" have made and that "we" cannot consume in order that "we" may make a profit on them. So argues the Senator from the Vanderblit System. As a capitalist he argues correctly. But it is well that workingmen should understand just what his argument

"We" who command the fighting are the capitalist class and its political ngents; but "we" who do the fighting the goods are the working people. But nave the working people, even in days of prosperity, all the rood and clothing and fuel and other goods they could consume, or all that they desire? No, The wages which the producers get for their work are only a part-a half, a third, or a quarter-of the value of their product. The workers, then, can buy and consume only such a propor-tion of the goods they have made. The capitalists, being comparatively few in number, cannot consume all of their hands. Thus a surplus remains, not over what the people could use, but over what the people can buy, and to dispose of this at a profit the capitalist must turn to such foreign lands as have not yet developed capitalist industries of their own. Now profit is the sole motive to industry under capitalism. Unless the product can be sold at such prices as to yield profit to the capitalists, it matters not how much the people need the goods nor how many workers are willing to make them, the wheels of industry stand still, the workers must remain idle and in want. The continual extension of foreign markets is ther fore necessary to the continuance of prosperity at home; and since all civilized nations are in the same position their rivalry for the market makes

To sum up: The means of produc tion belonging to a small class and be-ing controlled by them for the purpose of securing profits for themselves, the mass of the people cannot work except when conditions assure the owning class a profit upon all labor performed by the non-possessors; in order to secure a profit on production, a continual expansion of the foreign market is necessary; and this, the owning and ruling class of every civilized country sceking to monopolize the world market, leads to international wars. Socialism and Peace.

Under Socialism, on the contrary, the means of production being owned by the people collectively and being controlled by them for the purpose of satisfying their wants, the people will always be able to make use of these means of production to the extent of be compelled to work beyond that limit: the question of foreign trade be a question, not of making profits, but merely of securing in ex change for native products such goods as cannot be produced at home; thus, instead of the present antagonism be tween the econo mic interests of vari ous countries, there will prevail an identity and mutuality of interest with the result that internations peace will, for the first time in his tory, become a normal and permanent

FOR THE DAILY.

A Great Mass Meeting to Be Held.

Comrades Hanford, Carey and Herron Will Speak in Cooper Union on January IS-Work for the Fair Progressing-A Prize for the Assembly District and Local That Obtains the

A great mass meeting for the pur sese of advancing the work for the Socialist daily and advertising the project will be held in Cooper Union on January 13 with Comrades Ben Hanord, our candidate for Governor in the last campaign, James F. Carey, So-cialist representative in the Massachuetts legislature, and George D. Her ron as speakers. Socialists and all sympathizers with the movement for workingman's daily newspape should make every effort to make this neeting an extraordinary success.

At the last meeting of the Board of Managers of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association, the Pledge Committee made the recomnend tion, which was approved, that of $50 be given to the assembly list et in Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn, or Local Queens or Richmond that sends in the largest amount of new pledges for the Socialist daily and collects the largest amount of instal-ments on same. Another prize of the ame amount will be given to the local outside of those mentioned above that sends in the largest amount of piedges and collects the largest amount of instalments on the same. This contest opens on January 1, 1903, and closes or July 1, 1903. All locals or assem bly districts that desire to enter this ontest should so notify Secretary Rutscher at once. Unless such notifi-cation is received locals will not be ntered in the contest.

In order to secure the prizes, the ant of new pledges received nust be at least $5,000. All piedges to be entered and credited in the contes must not be smaller than three dollars.

Work for the Fair.

The work for the fair is progressing lay by day. Comrade Sol Fieldman has been engaged to solicit donations nd to visit trades organizations for the purpose of selling fair tickets and interesting them in the Daily Globe Conference. Twenty-two thousand ickets have already been distributed in the different organizations and or lers for tickets are coming in daily. Organizations or locals that have as set not procured tickets are reques o call at 64 East Fourth street and btain same.

Comrades are also reminded not to elay sending in their donations for the fair as the Fair Committee has established headquarters and have ample room to store a large quantity f presents. Presents can be left with the Secretary at the same address. There are also a large number of donaon books still on hand which the committee desires to see used. Any clination to help collect presents for the fair is requested to call on the Sec retary and secure a donation book.

The Ladies' Daily Globe Club is working hard for the success of the fair. They are visiting organizations for the purpose of selling tickets and are collecting donations at the san time. The Ladies' Daily Globe and the conference of delegates from women's organizations will hold its second meeting at the rooms of the So-cialist Educational League, 953 Secand avenue, on Monday, January 5, at S p. m. All women in sympathy with the Socialist movement are invited to attend, join the club and co-operate in Globe Conference.

The seventh session of the Daily llobe Conference of delegates from labor organizations and trade union will take place at the Labor Lyceum 64 East Fourth street on Thursday, January 8, at 8 p. m. sharp. All delegates are requested to attend as a complete report on the work for the fair will be made by the Executive committee. All organizations repre-ented which have not yet secured tickets can be supplied by making ap plication to the Secretary at the con Work will now commence which will require the assistance of every delegate should be present. THE PRECINCY. The comrades of Pinon, Colo., have been claiming to "hold the record" for the Socialist vote in the country, that precinct having given in the November election 44 votes for the Socialist Party, as against 10 Republican, 16 Democratic, and 10 scattering. The claim has called out several counterclaims. Comrade Quinn of Wilke in Luzerne County gave 51 Socialist votes to 7 Republican and 10 Demi cratic, and that another gave DG So cialist to 8 Republican and 31 Demo-cratic. Comrade Merrill of Haverbill. which, in the city election of Dec. 2. gave 426 Socialist votes to 124 Beput lican and 121 Democratic, Comrade Burke of Brockton, Mass., reports the vote, also in the city election, of one precinct of Brockton as being, Social-ist, 330; Republican, 80; and Demo-

A Statement About the Socialist Labor Party.

For the Benefit of Those Who Nave But Lately Become Interested in Socialism Attention Is Galled to Certain Important Facts.

We are frequently asked by new omrades to explain the difference between the Socialist Party and the So-Labor Party. We learn from a study of the election returns that many new Socialist voters, who had intention of endorsing the peculiar methods of the S. L. P., have been misled by its most inappropriate name. A statement on the subject is evidently. The party which The Worker sub-known in the nation as the Socialist Party, In New York, on account of certain provisions of the elec-tion laws, it is obliged to call itself the Social Democratic Party; its emblem in New York is the Arm and Torch. The Socialist Labor Party is an extirely separate and hostile organiza tion. The similarity of name renders it only the more Important that the distinction be made clear. The present Socialist Party was formed three years ago by the union of the old Social Democratic Party. erganized in 1897, with the majority faction of the old Socialist Labor Party, which had split in the summer of 1830. The minority faction, led by Daniel De Leon, was adjudged by the capitalist courts to be entitled to the se of the old party name, and that name it still holds and abuses.

This Socialist Party or Social Demo-cratic Party polled about 97,000 votes in 1900, with Eugene V. Debs and Job Harriman aw its imitional candidates; in 1902 it increased its vote to about 230,000. The Socialist Labor Party colled less than 35,000 in 1900 and less han 50,000 (many of them through misunderstanding) in 1902,

The leading question of party policy (it may even be called a question of principle) which was at issue in the split of 1809 was that of the attitude of the party toward the trade unions. The epponents of De Leonism held that the party, as the political organi-uation of the working class, and the unions; as its economic organisation, should work fraternally, though inde-pendently, in their separata fields. The De Leonites maintained that it was necessary to "smitsh" all existing and went so far as to organize rival unions to scab upon them. Since the split while the Socialist Party or Social Democratic Party has igorously attacked capitalism and taught Socialist principles, the Socialist Labor Party, disgracing its once honorable name, has devoted its efforts almost exclusively to two objects: First, to hamper the growth of the Socialist Party, second, to attack, undermine, or disrupt the trade unions; the extent of the vituperation, sophistry, and brazen falsehood which has been devoted to these unworthy objects by De Leon and his followers can hardly be imagined by those who have not closely followed their record. The difference between our party and the Socialist Labor Party may be summed un under four beads: 1. We fight against capitalism all the time, giving to the rival organisation only so much attention as is necessary to prevent misunderstanding, confu-sion, and disappointment among new treats the propaganda of Socialism as

2. We support the trade unions, without seeking to interfere in their special work or allowing them to dicthe works for the destruction of the organization in Pennsylvania, he

by democratic methods, believing that only so can the organization be kept pure and the members trained for their growing responsibility as Socialsts; the S. L. P. is ruled by its leader and dissent from his views is punished by suspension or expulsion.

4. In advocating the cause of Socialism we seek to convince men by argument and appeals to their intelligen-interest and their feelings of honor of humanity; the S. L. P. depends upor abusive epithets, lies, and "bluff."

We would not, of course, question the S. L. P. are honest men and Socialists. Most of them are either mis informed or blinded by fanaticism They are learning, one by one, and either leaving the S. L. P. or being forced out of it. But the S. I. P., as in organization, takes its whole policy from De Leon; and, without asserting that he is a capitalist agent, employed to breed dissension in the labor move-ment, we do say that his conduct for some years has been just that he which such an agent would best serve his employers. aid in doing away with the confi

The three lectures given in Philadelphia last month by Lucien Senial have attracted considerable interest. Sanial is one of the "old war horses" of the Socialist Labor Party and has often held high positions of confidence in the party. In 1897 be was the candidate for Mayor of New York. In the split of 1800 he threw in his lot with the De Leonite wing and was for some time afterward active in the 8. L. P. organization. Within the last year, was doubtful of the wisdom of his position. In August inst he resigned from membership in the S. L. P., in spite of the attempts of the party ad-udulstration to conclitate him. Since that time he has been more or less active in the movement of the more recently expelled and the dissatisfied members to bring the S. L. P. to a realization of the folly for wo De Leon's lendership—an effort which cannot be said to have shown much uccess. Sanial and the others of this group have heretofore kept quite apart from the Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Party of New York), seek-ing rather to change the S. L. P. from within.

The Pennsylvania state organization of the S. L. P., during the last year, became "disloyal" to the De Leonite dministration. The trouble culmipension" of the state organization. which thus remained without national mustion. Sanial's loctures in Philadelphia were looked forward to by the so-called "disloyal" or anti-De Leon S. L. I'. men as giving an opportunity for a tentative declaration on the co to be pursued by them. The expecta-tion was fulfilled.

The tone of Sanial's remarks indi cated a friendly feeling toward the So cialist Party. He rigorously denounced the conduct of De Leon and the meth ods pursued under his leadership, say-ing that "the De Leon episode in the Socialist movement of the United States was one of which we have reaon to be ashamed.

His suggestion as to the course to be followed in Pennsylvania was that the E. L. P. (anti-De Leon) continue, for the present as a separate organization, working in "friendly co-operation" with the Socialist Party, which gained official standing there in November-Sceialists; the S. L. P. fights us, and friendly co-operation modelled upon that of the various Socialist parties in France. He believed that within two Sanial's ideas are undoubtedly tate to us in ours; the S. L. P. seeks shared by many of the members of his ad only it be elsewhere, although they are trade unions with a rigor second only in the ensewhere, although they are to that with which it attacks us; not probably by no means unanimous in centent with denunciation, it has even this opinion. On our side also there is gone into the economic field to form more or less difference of opinion on rival unions and scab upon the exist. liscussion following his lecture, in which desire for reconciliation was ex pressed on both sides and recrimina-tions over the past came also from both sides.

Just what will be the outcome of this affair it is impossible to guess. The evidence that De Leonism is becoming discredited, even among the "sialwarts" of the 8. L. P., in proportion as they gain experience, is, for the present, the principal interest attaching to it.

SOCIALIST PROGRESS.

What the Socialist Party-Has Gained in Two Years.

Rearly Compete Figures of the Vote Cast for Socialism in the Movember Election-Our Victories at the Polis -A Steady and Solid Growth.

Although we are not even yet able to give complete official returns of the vote cast for the candidates of the Socialist Party (called in New York the Social Democratic Party) in all the states, our figures are nearly enough complete to give us the total result within a margin of, at most, two or three thousand votes. The remarkable progress made by the party in the last two years is shown in the two tables given below.

Officially Reported.

The first table shows the result as fficially reported from twenty-four states and one territory. This includes it may be noted, nearly all the states in which we have an active organized movement and in which, accordingly, our vote is not only larger than in the others, but increasing at a higher ratio. The extension of the organized movement into several of the other states, which is already beginning, may be expected to enume larger proportionate gain in the So-cialist vote of the nation in the next two years than that which has char

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

It is truly a Happy New Year that , farce. The Goulds and Rockefellers we have before us, is it not? Consider the news we get from day to day.

The capitalists are exhibiting holiday generosity by voluntarily granting 5 or 10 per cent, wage increases (especially where the workingmen show a disposition to strike and to vote the Socialist ticket), after five years of a progressive increase in the cost of livlog, aggregating at least 30 per cent. Then they are calmly recouping the expense of the increase by adding another 5 or 10 per cent, to the price of the things the workingmen have to

In addition to this, the capitalists in various industries are establishing pension systems (under impossible conditions) for their aged employees, to demonstrate the community of interest between Capital and Labor. Then, on the strength of this gencrosity, they are requiring their men to toll harder and faster, to make more profits, and to work themselves to death before they reach the age when the pension system goes into effect.

The capitalist politicians of both old parties are giving us New Year cards in the shape of unworkable "anti-trust laws" of every imaginable sort. And their patrons are smiling in their sleeves and proceeding to freeze out smaller competitors and complete the consolidation of industry.

Here in New York we have two very entertaining special features for our

New Year's celebration. Workingmen are being dispossessed from their tenement bomes because they have had to pay all their money for fuel and have none left to pay rent. The politicians at the City Hall have gone through the farce of approprinting a quarter of a million dollars to provide coal for the poor, assured that the Corporation Counsel would declare the appropriation unlawful; thus they have warmed our hearts with their show of good intentions and, as they think, made their jobs safe ,and that without any cost to the capitalist taxpayers to whom they really owe allegiance.

Then, for fear we would think to much about conl and feel uncomfortable about it, the politicians have kindly put on the crowded street-car product of your labor.

MINNESOTA'S PROGRESS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 28.— The official canvass gives the Socialist Party 10,120 votes in Minnesota, as against 3,065 in the presidential eloc tion of 1990.

It should be stated that our candi-

P. dis rupters," forbidden as the use of the name "Socialist Party" for this office, He therefore received only the votes oughly conversant with party affairs; that 2.521 votes were east for him indientes the strong position our organization has reached and the good campaign work that was done. Many less well informed persons, desiring to vote for Socialism and not knowing the state of affairs, cast their votes for the S. L. Our candidates for Lieutenant-Gorernor, Secretary of State, and Auditor went on the ballot under our party name; they accordingly noticed the vote of the Socialist Party-about 10. 000, as given above.

Minnesota's progress is very gratifying. In 1806, when we first entered the political field, the S. L. P., then the genuine and the only Socialist organi-kation, polled about 1,100 votes. In one Councilman each.

In Battle Creek, Mich., we have In the presidential election of 1900, the party split and reorganization having intervened, the Socialist Party alo polled over 3,000 to take no account of the other faction. THE PARTY'S EMBLEM

Patiently, but very earnestly, the editor reiterates three requests: First, that correspondents will not write to him, but to the business office, on mattern of business; second, that they will not fail to attach name and address to each letter; third, that they will not write with pencil. Stick this in your bat or on your desk-or memorise it.

A Pennsylvania magistrate has de cidede that it is a misdemeanor to call a man a "scab"-and the capitalist applauds. President Eliot says a scab is "a high type of the American hero"and the capitalist press applauds Funny, isn't it?

The Detroit "Free Press" thinks that the reason for the rapid growth of Socialism "must be sought, not in the influence of the unions nor in the agitation of the Rocialists themselves. but in the flagrant abuse of power or the part of the owners of private prop erty. The railroad managers, the trust promoters, and the trust attorpers have done more to make Socialists than all the other causes combined." We cheerfully concede the point. Baer did more for us in the late campaign than any six of our own speakers. And the beauty of it is that capitalism is bound to keep on developing just such examples of "flagrant abuse power" and thus to continue driving the working people toward Socialism. A ruling class nover knows when to stop.

It is a most curious thing. Of ccurse, the Col Kings are honorable men and we cannot doubt their veracity. Yet do we find it hard in our mortal weakness, not being backed by the infinite wisdom which supports Mr. Baer, to reconcile their statements of last summer with their statements of this winter. Last sum mer they said Pennsylvania was full of men who were willing and anxious to dig coal at the companies' terms, but were deterred by the threats of wicked John Mitchell. Now the strike is off and yet the Coal Kings say that if there is not enough coal it is be cause there are not enough men in Pennsylvania to dig it.

Every year the increase of deposits in the savings banks is cited as proof that prosperity prevails, that workingmen are getting more than enough to live on and are able to save for the future. The statistics as given to us prove nothing of the sort. It is comnouly assumed that all savings-bank depositors are workingmen and that an increase in the number and amount of such deposits must indicate an increase in the wealth of the workers. assumption is altogether un founded. It is known that savings banks are now very largely used by enpitalists as an agency of investment. The amount that one person car deposit in any bank is, of course, itm Red-generally to $5,000 or $10,000; but those who wish to deposit large uma commonly divide them among several banks. Thus both the figures for total amount of deposits and for total number of depositors are far from representing the facts. Until the reports show us, not only the totals and the average amount of deposit, but the classification of deposits according to amount and the number of cases in which one man has deposits in two or more banks, they will be absolutely worthless as data for determining th condition of the working people.

THE ANTI-DELEON S. L. P.

In so far as Lucien Sanial's declara tion at Philadelphia, being undoubt edly more than an expression of individual opinion, indicates the growth of the revolt against De Leonism withi the ranks of the S. L. P., the growing recognition there of the futility and fatuity of the De Leonite policy which brought about the split of 1899, and a desire to bring about unity in the 80cialist movement, we heartily wel come It.

The Worker pever concerns itself much about the acquisition of "leaders" from any other movement as recruits to the Socialist Party. Nor are we auxious to "conciliate" anyone who really disagrees with us. The only recruits we desire or ought to desire are those who honestly agree with us "Harmony" on any other basis would be a source of weakness, not of

On the other hand, we have no de s!re to foster old quarrels. We are quite conscious of the liability of all nien to make mistakes, having learned it by our own experience, if men whom we have had to fight for three years now think that we are now right, we are ready to meet them on that basis, and not to dispute over the past. And we may suppose that Sanial's declaration is, in sense and intention, a recognition that the Socialist Party (or, as we call it in New York, the Social Democratic Party) is right as against the S. L. P.

We cannot, however, see the wis dom, from any point of view, of his proposition that, in such a state as Pennsylvania, the two parties maintain a separate organization, with an "entente cordiale" similar to that attempted in France. The French expurience has not been such as to recommend the plan; and it is utterly unadaptable to the political system of the United States.

There is room for but one Socialis political organization in the United States. The Socialist Party has abundantly proven its right to recognition from the standpoint of aggressive vitality. In Pennsylvania this is emphatically true. If then the Socialist Party is right, it is idle to suggest that the Socialist Party should consent to the needless continuance of dual organization, with all the confusion resulting from it, and with the possibility of a loss of official standing through the division of the vote. If anyone thinks that the Socialist Party is right, his place is within its ranks; and we do not think any who come to it in good faith will find it disposed to set up unreasonable tests or to impose humiliating conditions. If, on the other hand, the S. L. P. men of Penn sylvania still think the Socialist Party is wrong, they have no right to pro pose "friendly co-operation" with it.

So far as Pennsylvania is concerned the question will undoubtedly be settled on the lines we have suggested and we do not expect to see the So cialist vote divided in the next elec-

In New York the situation is some what different. Here the S. L. P. has official standing, though its vote is 30 per cent less than ours. The S T D organization here is completely under De Leonite control, and there seems no reason to expect a change. Here there cannot be the slightest doubt that we have to fight the S. L. P. to finish. There is such a radical differ ence in the position of the two parties that any thought of friendly relations must be impossible on either side.

There are, indeed, very many S. L. P. men in New York, who held to that organization through the split of 1800 and have fought us bitterly since that time, who have now become disgusted with De Leonism. We are glad to know this and we take it as an augury that the movement is now reaching a point where the mailgn influence of misleaders can no longer seriously

The overtasked and underpaid work higmen of Chicago and the pinndered farmers of the Western prairies should take great joy in reading of the more than royal state in which our own Lady Curzon, wife of the Viceroy of Irdia, entered Delhi this week to celebrate Edward's coronation. It was they who gave Leiter the wealth with which to purchase a British nobleman for his daughter. Their wives and daughters may be going in shabby gowns; but let them only read of Lady Curzon's gowns and jewels and they will be consoled.

It is only logical, only onsistent, only natural, that this motive should actuate representatives of these parties in their conduct as public officials or lawmakers. The "ineffably dirty creatures who are waiting to be bought" are the only fit spokesmen of parties which, in their declarations of principles, declare bargain and sale to be the prime rule of civilized life, the only fit political agents of the class controlling those parties, which lives without labor by the application of

THE CALIFORNIA AFFAIR.

"Advance" explains that the Ban Prancisco Socialists "never fused with the Union Labor party," that they only "refrained from nominating for indges, instices of the peace, superin tendent of schools, state scuators, and assemblymen . . . in order to let the Union Labor party prove their claims if they could.". We confess that this seems to us a distinction without a difference. It has happened in certain places where the Socialist Party was gaining great strength that the Demorats have "refrained from nominating." We have treated this as a fusion between the Democrats and the Republicans, and have been justified in so regarding it. In good faith, we should apply the same rule of inter retation to our own action.

Further, "Advance" thinks that "the remarks of our Eastern contempora ries concerning 'disappointing results are not quite a propos," Considering the almost universal gain-and large gain-in the Socialist vote in other juarters, we do hold that where, as in San Francisco, the vote remained virtually stationary, that result was disappointing and indicated that the party in such places had made some erious mistake. We do, most de cidedly, consider a loss of 2 per cent. in two years on the state vote in a given city, when accompanied by what we insist on calling the fusion policy. much more disappointing than a loss of even 50 per cent, on the city vote in one year, when the votes that reunined were held in the face of a new and seductive movement like that of the San Francisco U. L. P. of 1901.

However, as we have already said, we wish to discuss this subject, not as matter of blaming the comrades of San Francisco and Los Angeles, but in order to determine the right policy to be pursued both there and elsewhere in the future. "Advance" secus to agree with us, having had experience, that a "union labor party" is not alawys all that it seems and that we should be more cautious in such matters in the future than the San Franisco comrades were this time. On this we agree, and we hope "Advance," instead of thinking that it has a grievance against the East and carefully nursing the grievance, will return with renewed vigor to the work it has se well done in the past-the work of advocating Socialism and agitating for the Socialist Party, in full onfidence that Socialist principles are right and that the Socialist Party has a distinct mission to perform in propagating them.

The only rea sonable ground for this conception of the-measure-was the idea, held by some, that the department would be an unimportant one and that it would be used as a "plum," to reward reactionary labor leaders. This idea, however, appears to be unfounded. It is announced by Senator Platt that the place, as soon as created, will probably be given to Congressman Littauer of Gloversville, N. Y. Mr. Littauer is said to "possess special qualifications for the position"-which qualifications seem to consist in his ownership of a large-glove factory- and in his success as a Republican politician in his dis trict.

THE SOCIAL MAN: HIS INCENTIVE.

By Henry L. Slobodin.

Two editorialls were published in the New York "Times" of Dec. 23, one entitled "Our Obligation to Prof. Lorenz," the other "Marconi's Achieve Both Prof. Lorenz and Mar conl are praised for the modest and conssuming way in which they pur one in surgery, the other in physics. But the "Times" dwells mainly on the fact that the mercenary motive appears to have been re insignificant proportio if not entirely eliminated, in both scientists and benefactors of kinds - True, Armour has paid to Lorenz a large sum of money for operating on his child, but that giving relief to an unfortunate child was by far the greater motive that actuated Lorenz he has abundantly demon-strated since in refusing to treat paticuts privately, but treating them all in the clinics without regard to the social position of their parents. Of Marconi it may be said that though riches may await him, it is now clear to everyone who followed Marconi in his corcer that the money incident is not very manifest among the motives that inspire him. All this is pointed out by the "Times." But the editor "Times" concluded his remarks without for a moment having shown that he was conscious of the out by him. Or, if he did discover their significance, he evidently pre-ferred to jubilate over the discovery all by himself in his private editorial sanctum as it did not at late the fran of a "Times" editorial.

The particular facts pointed out in line and bring forth in a glaring way the general fact-which Socialists, be ginning with Fourier, so long asserted and proclaimed and which the "Times" and its lik as long dented and disclaimed, namely, that the Social Man has come and has come to stay. By the social man I do not meen Lo enz and Marconi alone. They may be types of the social man and strikingly illustrate the moral change which the rodern man goes through. clai man is the man of our day, is the man with whom we rub elb He enjoys all the booms of wherever he finds them, but the greatest boon and joy he finds in consciousness that his joy is the, joy of all men. Capitalist society is not a favorable ground to cultivate these flowers of human brotherhood and the weeds of envy and egotism cudenvor to stiffe its budding growth, but civilization and progress are stronger than institutions and man is ever better than the state in which he lives: The workers of the world manifest their joy in the joy of others by the vast organizations for mutual aid. This moral aspect is the superstructure reating on the material basis. And the rich of the world are not ex-empt from this noble joy. A restless feeling is noticeable even among the rullionaires, a vague feeling that ac-cumulation of millions is not an object in itself. There must be a higher ato for such accumulation. The theory of trusteeship of the rich was launched which in its moral aspect is a decided ndvance on the theory of th rights of private property and that a pleases with his conscious expresman may do as he own. But the most conscious expres-sion the social man finds in the Socialist movement, a movement which contemplates in its ultimate scheme of benevolence even the most forlorn and abject tribe of savages. Prof. Lorenz it, but they are sowers of the seeds of Socialism. They show in a way which is immortal that the greatest incentive to a great deed is the joy of doing the deed. Prof. Lorenz and Marconi have played havor with the doctrine of the necessity of cannibal incentives with which the priestly lackeys and literary sycophants of capitalism prop up its decaying and tottering sinte. And when the editor of the "Times" again attempts to trot out the capitalistic theory of the utter savagery of human incentives, he will demonstrate again that he. capitalistic lik, looks upon things in the manner of an oldfashioned corpse—through the copper coins on his eyelids.

Sweet Charity was one day passing down the street, dressed in the height of fashion, and showing in every line of her figure and every feature of her

Sweet Charity and Capital exchanged greet-ings, agreed that Industry was in a shocking state of demoralisation, tresed him a dime to sober up on, and then congratulated one another that their names had been changed by act of legislature so that hobody would ever suspect them of being daughter and son of that loathsoms wretch, or that everything they had in the world they received from him.—Avery Querarrive at the shop they find it cold and black with the sorrow of ruin. At the end of the great hall the muchine, with its thin arms and motionless wheels, stands dumb, lending a still more penetrating sense of desolation to the room which, until then, had resounded with the cheerful clatter and whirring noises of the big machine, throbbing like the heart of the mill. The master comes down from his office and says sadly to the workers: "My men, there is no work-to-daythere are no more orders; instead, I am receiving countermands on every side, and the merchandise will be left on my hands. This December, the month of such heavy work in other years, and upon which I have counted so much, threatens to ruln the strong-est concerns. We shall have to sus-

And as he sees the workmen looking at each other with fear in their eyes of returning empty-handed to their homes, a fear of hunger on the morrow, he adds in a lower tone:

"I am not selfish, no. I swear to you that I am not. My situation is as ter-rible, even more terrible, perhaps, than yours. I have lost fifty thousand francs in less than a week. I am stopping the work to-day so as not to eepen the gulf. I have not the first son towards my bills of the 15th. You see I am not hiding anything from you; I speak to you as a friend. To-morrow, perhaps the balliff will be here. That is not our fault, is it? We have struggled to the very end. I have wished from the bottom of my heart that I could help you over this hard time; but the end has come. I have lost everything, and I have no longer any bread to share.' He holds out his hand. The men shake it sliently, and for some ments remain there looking at their useless tools, their hands clenched. Every other morning the files had sung and the hammers had sounded rythmically, and now it seems as though all that were sleeping in the dust of failure. There were twenty, there were thirty families, who would not have anything to eat during the following week. Some of the women who work in the inill wipe away tears from the corners of their eves. The men try to look more firm. They speak bravely, saying that men do not die of hunger in Paris.

Then, when the master leaves them and they see him walk away bent and stooping within eight days, crushed by disaster perhaps greater than he will tell them, smothering in the room they go out one by one, their throats choked and their hearts cold with sorrow, as death. It is evening, and the rain is failing heavily: Paris is funercal in the mud. He walks beneath the heavy shower without noticing it, feeling only his hunger, loitering that he may reach home less quickly. He leans over the side of one of the bridges of the Seine, the rising waters runh by with a coninual noise and the spurts of white foam break against the piles of the bridge. He leans further over, the mighty flood passes underheath him. throwing him a furious appeal. He draws himself up and turns away, muttering that he must be strong a Without saying anything to her hus band, she, too, has looked for work But the strike has struck the wom even more heavily than the men. At her stairhead there are two unfor tunate women whom she heard weep-ing the whole night through. She met one standing at the corner of the sidewalk, one is dead and the other has lisappeared.

Happily for her, she has a husband who does not drink—a good man. They would be comfortable if the dead seasons had not despoiled them of verything. She had exhausted her credits, she owes the baker, the grocer, the fruit man, and she no dares even to pass by their hops. That afternoon she had been to borrow 20 sous of her sister, but there, also, she found such misery that, without saving a word, she be gan to weep, and together with her sister she wept for a long time. And when she went away she promised to

At intervals, seized with impatience, she goes down the steps in spite of the heavy shower and rous away to the end of the street to see if she cannot, somewhere in the distance, catch a glance of him for whom she is waiting. And when she comes back she is soaked through, She rubs her hands over her thin hair to dry it, and again settles down natiently, though she is shaken by heavy fits of fever.

The coming and going of the passers by jostles her. She tries to make her self very small so as not to bothe any one. They had to work, and after that it always as if there was a cold wind blowing in the house. She has not felt very comfortable either; she has always been hungry.

She has thought a good deal abo that, but she cannot understand. Is everybody always hungry, then? She has tried very hard to get used to it, but she has never been able to. She thinks she is too little, that one must be bigger to understand. Her mother knows, though, this strange thing that is hidden from little girls. If she dared she would ask her who it was put one into the world to be hungry. Then, too, it is lonely in their house

She looks at the window where the empty cover of the mattress flaps in broken furniture, all the sham of the attle which the strike soils with its despair. New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Missouri, Colorado, Utah Washington, all have troubles of their wn as well as California, and the Na tional Committee, the Local Operun and the National Secretary don't fine life all beer and skittles. There is nothing discouraging in these differ indicates that the movement is full o vigorous life and independent thought ines of policy are questioned fear lessly, new methods freely suggested and a pretty thorough-going tendency to question precedent, be it capitalisti or socialistic. The great growth of the party has brought in an indux of members who, able and independent solve the tactical questions that aris for themselves and with little regard for either American or European Socialist tradition. It is impossible to say that this condition is evil entirely or good entirely. It is productive of both good and evil. For our own part we welcome it. The movement is too young and too small to permit of any estification or rigidity of form as yet The inexperience of the newer elemen will undoubtedly lead them into mis takes and the conservatism of the old guard also prevents at times the adop tion of really beneficial, though new In the conflict, bowever measures with all its acerbity, the traditional lines will hold their own where they deserve it, and only where a pretty clear case is made out against them will the old established customs be verthrown.

The movement is firmly founded, however, and ultimately much good in freedom of criticism in progressive ness of tactics will result while not in muy way threatening the scientific character and integrity of the party.

The serious nature of the Secialistic movement in Germany is generally understood. It is the more serious be cause it is only a part of a movement but is alm able growth in our own country has led recently to editorial comment throughout the nation, and to the sug gestion by demagogues of different stripes of new schemes to capture the radical contingent. In Ohio the So-cialist candidate for Secretary of State received over 14,000 votes; in Massachusetts the Socialist candidate for Governor received 33,000 votes—and votes in other states were almost equally significant, running the estimate in the nation up to half a miltion votes. While the American Fedcration of Labor was in session re-cently in New Orleans, a test was ande on a resolution embodying the ocialist ideas and doctrines, and the result was 4,744 votes against said

Remember, this was in 1847. At that time the proletariat had no political rights, no universal suffrage, no

Some of the best men in the capital t system are the worst. Take Judge iray, for example, the president of the Coal Strike Arbitration Commis sion. He got very mad this week be she worked all night, 6.30 p. m. to 6.30 m, for a few cents an hour. Her ther was lame from an injury in the alne. Judge Gray denounced this father for allowing his child to work. Another similar case made him madder still. He was told this girl's father wned" his house and the operators ild he got $1,400 a year. The then grew white in the face and stormed it was an outrage for a father to coin his child's flesh and blood into money. His indignation disnot abote very much the next day when this same father was put on the stand and testified he paid four other men, two miners and two laborers, out of his income, so that he himself got only $30 a month and was deeply in debt to the company store besides.

Judge Gray, sleek, strong, well fed. drawing almost a thousand dollars a to issue injunctions or to interpret laws in support of that robber class which lives off the profits made out of those same miners and their slave children! This man talking plously about "coining money out of flesh and blood." Where does his salary come from but from the flesh and blood of wage-slaves?

Judge Gray sits on the very top bench of that government which exists for no other purpose than to defend the capitalist class in their legal rob-bery of the wage class! He is a bireling bulwark of that system which mpels child-labor, which forced that poor Slavonian father to set his daugh ter to work that the family might not

Mad, is he? He helps put a man in the fire and then feers at him for cry-ing out with pain. He upholds laws that keep men in hog-pens and then lectures them for beloing one another He throws crusts to men and women as if to dogs and then roars at them for scrambling for the crusts.

Is this man so dense, se colossally dense, that he cannot see it is he an the class he serves, that coin money out of the flesh and blood of these little girls? Judge Gray, it is not those driven fathers who do it. It is you yourself. You are living on money coined out of the very blood of these little children. If it were not for these low wages which you and your mas ters pay their employees, you could not get your easy berth. Judge Gray, you are gulity either . ? sinpendons density or stupendons hy-poerisy! In either case, the blood of the innocents erreth out against rou!

ALL THE DIFFERENCE IN THE WORLD.

Contractor Ryan, in an interview with Walking Delegate Scully of the Stone Cutters' Union at the City Hall last Monday, clinched his arguments for "free labor" with these emphatic words: "I would like to see you out side and punch your head." Of course Scully handed him his card and expressed his readiness to submit their personal differences to the arbitrament of arms-or fists. But suppose it had been Scully that gave the challenge; magine the righteously indignant editerlais about the "lawless violence of trade unions" that would have appeared in all the capitalist papers. We have not seen any editorials yet on the vulgar brutality of contractors. "It ankes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored."

THEY ARE NOT WORRIED.

The officers and large stockholders of the Eric Railroad are not losing any sleep over the coal famine. The net "carnings" of that road for the month of November-profits left after paying all the expenses and some of the steal ings, too-were $1,397,079.46-an increase of $341,540.64 over the cor responding figures for the same mouth in 1901. If the wages of the Ecie's workmen have not risen 33 per cent. (and they have not not even 10 per cent), it is because the majority of the workingmen have gone on voting that all the results of prosperity shall acerne to the benefit of those who do nething to produce it

As the action of certain locals of the Socialist Party is causing considerable discussion, I beg your careful consideration of the argument I am about to offer for international political

POLITICAL ACTION.

When J. Plerpont Morgan went to Europe recently, he held secret con-ferences with the King of England, Emperor William of Germany, and with the highest officials of the English, French and German governments. He was feasted publicly by Mr. Morgan does not represent the United States officially, but he does epresent the great moneyed interests of this country. The honors paid him, and the secret conferences held show that capital, is tionally. It is well known that a large part of the milroad stock of this country is owned by the royalties of England. It is also true that American millionaires hold immense business in terests in European and Asiatic countries. International combination of capital, then, must be expected as a natter of course.

The Socialist has been claiming for a long time past that international political action is indispensable to the workers' progress. I say that it is indispensable that workingmen shall be internationally organized in the political field. As capital would have no difficulty in crushing a small, inde-pendent trade union, not affiliated with corkers elsewhere, so it will have no difficulty in crushing a political party which represents only a section of a country, or for that matter a whole ountry, but which acts independently f the workers of other nations. The corld is fast becoming one country. nd it is only on that basis that we can successfully work out any political problem which now faces us or vill face us in the future.

There are those who say that the lass struggle may be depended upon to take care of itself, and to work out its own salvation; but it is a fact that the class struggle has existed through-out history, and that the workers have sometimes resisted their masters intel igently and successfully, and at other times have been conquered and subiccted to harsher and more cruel con ditions than before. The matter of in-telligence plays a very important part in the outcome of the struggle.

The capitalist has in times past found it comparatively easy to deal with organized labor, striking blindly, now in this direction, now in that, with no special goal in view, or definite plan of action. An organized and intelligent working class with a definite end in view is another proposition. This is something to be feared, and capital will do its utmest to destroy it. It would rather deal with thousands of organized laborers blindly follow their leaders, than with a small body of thinking, r men. Capitalists will throw all their influence in the scale in favor of the unionist who is not a Socialist, if by so doing they can in the smallest de gree hinder the progress of Socialist thought and Socialist action.

And I would say here that while the adoption of the principles of Socialism in the platform of a trade-union party is in itself good, it does not put th trade-unionist in the ordinary labor party upon the same footing as the member of the Socialist Party. He ans not had the same education in So cialist principle, nor is the organism tion of his party such as to enable has to enforce any prescribed course of action upon the candidates he number

It does not suit the wisdom of the capitalist to appear to note the growth of Socialist activity; it is more to hi purpose to appear ignorant or indiffer-ent when it is possible to do so; but this ignorance and indifference are not real. As Socialist thought and sentiment spread, the endeavor to head off the movement in one way or another, will become more and more active, and will take forms mere and mere ing and enticing. Anything but the straight, uncompromising demand of the worker will be offered to him as a immediate good to be gained by step ping saide from the farward march; and whenever he does so step aside he will be deceived as to the immediate good, and also find himself put back in his journey toward the ultimat

This attempt to deceive and mislead the voter MAY BE EXPECTED TO CROP OUT IN ALL DIRECTIONS. not in one section only, nor in one country only, but everywhere that So cialist organization exists. What has happened in California to-day may kappen in another state to-morros and in fact we may expect that every possible bribe, strategem, and pitfall will be made use of to break the ranks of the international organization. If in the future there shall come into existence a political organization calling itself a workingman's party or a So cialist party, but organized upon a nar-row, so-called American basis, and acting independently of the Socialist movement in other countries, it will only be an evidence of the well-laid plans of capitalist opposition.

The only hope of gaining political power is to hold with the great body of workers who are internationally or ganized, and to watch warily for de-ceits and subterfuges likely to deceive that body or to throw it into confusion. A great world-conflict lies be fore us. Whether it will be waged with intelligence, determination and skill, and result in victory for the worker, or whether it shall be allowed to lapse into a mere unintelligent ex-hibition of brute violence, like the row at an Irish fair, when every man hits the head of the one nearest him-and the masses, rests with the worker him self to decide. J. R. COLE. San Jose, Cal.

Let the workingman carefully re Let the workingman carefully re-view the history of the old political parties in so far as concerns their ef-forts in behalf of the common pepole, and he will calucide in the steadilygrowing popular opinion that the time has arrived when the toller must act independently and for himself.—The Union Sentinol. Haverhill Election Case to Be Decided on Jan. 12.

Mayorhill Republicans Evidently Scar ed-Socialist Movement Active In Boston and Throughout the State-Fuel-Famine Making People Think

BOSTON, Dec. 20.-The Haverhill election contest will be heard before the full bench of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts on Jan. 12. This Judge Loring was willing to render a decision, but insampeh as his inding would be reviewed by the full court in February, it was thought best to allow the case to be argued again the full bench as soon as pos In the meantime the present Mayor, Poor, Republican, will hold

That the anti-Socialists realize that they have a slim chance of securing s decision in their favor is evidenced by their starting a movement which seeks to take the power of appointing the Mayor's Clerk out of the hands of the Mayor and providing for his election by the City Council.

Heretofore the power of appoint ment of Mayor's Clerk, who is really private secretary to the Mayor, has re-sided in that official himself. With Flanders as Mayor the change would mean that the City Council could se-lect a Republican or Democrat as his private secretary. It would also mean that instead of two Socialists holding and drawing salaries there would be only one.

Such a move as this is unprecedented, because it has always been the rule, out of common fairness, to have the Mayor select his clerk. Of course and if the purpose of the enemy be no offshed it will not burt the Socialists as much as the enemy. It all illus trates how hard driven our opponents are in their attempt to maintain control of the city government.

Party Work in Boston.

The coal situation has reached such an acute stage that the Socialists of Boston will hold a meeting on Friday evening next, Jan. 2, in Fancuit Hall. The meeting is arranged under the ansnices of the Boston Central Committee and Representatives James F Carey and Frederic O. MacCartney. Henry R. Legate, Patrick Mahoney and John Weaver Sherman will be speakers.

The Socialist Women's Club of Bos ton has taken charge of the lecture and reading to be given by the Wentworths on Sunday, Jan. 25, in Paine Memorial Hall, 0 Appleton street.

A Socialist Speakers' Club was or-ganized at Homesread Hall, 724 Wash-ington street, last Sunday afternoon, with Frederic O. MucCartney as director. It will hold weekly meetings at 3 p. m. every Sunday and only party members are admitted to membership It promises to be of much value in developing speakers for the local propa

Organizer Dan A. White, after week's rest, renews his work to-day and will go into the Brockton district for the next two or three weeks. There are several places waiting to be or ganized and others that only need a visit to get the local workers into line

Dates for Franklin H. and Marion Craig Wentworth for their Massachu setts tour have been arranged so far as follows: Ware, Jan. 14; Haverhill, Jan. 22 and 23; Boston, Jan. 25; Lynn Jan. 26; Rockland, Jan. 29.

The Socialists of Hyaerhill will hold a fair the week of Jan. 19 to 26 and the Women's Club is working hard to make it a success

The Brockton City Committee of the Socialist Party last week closed its account for the year and found sufficient balance on hand. After spending nearly $600 in the state and municipal campaigns, to donate $25 to the State Executive Committee, which act is appreciated, because funds are needed by the Executive Committee to carry on the necessary work. The Brockto comrades will also hold a fair soon.

The American and German clubs in Adams have formed a Central Com-mittee, with William Kuopp as Secre-tary, and preparations are being made to place a ticket in the field for the spring town elections.

The annual session of the Legislature opens on Thursday, Jan. 1. It promises to be an unusually interest ing one from every point of view.

At a special town meeting held in Braintree last week the Socialists succeeded in having a committee of five appointed to petition the incoming Legislature for authority to establish a municipal fuel yard. Comrades E. J. Thomas, W. O. Pinckney, and Julius Hewlin are members of the committee. This fuel question is going to be the most important question before the Legislature, since the petition started by Comrade Henry R. Legate for presentation to the Legislature is recciving thousands of signatures throughout the state. The bills which the petition will support will be intro-duced by the Socialist members. Chelsea Club holds Sunday night discussions in Central Labor Union Hall, 108 Park street. The club is growing in membership and doing better work than ever before.

Comrade John J. Kelly, who was elected Alderman in Chicopee at the recent city election. is an old and faithful worker in the movement and will do good service. Fitchburg Socialist Club will hold Representative Frederic O. Mac-Cartney and Mayor Charles H.

Coulter, of Brockton, will address a public meeting at Holbrook town hall en Friday, Jan. 16, under the auspices of Holbrook Club, which is increasing in membership at each meeting.

In the city election held in North dams, Nov. 16, Comrade John J, Clark received 684 votes for Alder man-at-Large. He was the first can didate ever nominated by the Social ists in that city. The club was only recently organized there and is con posed of good material.

Nowhere in the state is there a club that promises more for the future the one in Norwood. Although only rganized in October, its membership s already over fifty and increasing each meeting. Norwood is a rapidly growing industrial town, having one of the largest printing establishin in the country, and the club is com ed almost wholly of union men.

The club organized at Northampto few weeks ago started out with wenty-nine members, and should de-velop into a very active force in that city, which has been difficult for us to enter before. Comrade J. H. Charlesbois is mainly responsible for the club's existence, and organization sas affected with the assistance of Courades Wrenn and Brooks of Springfield.

UNION LABOR PARTIES

And the Experiences of the Economic League in Connecticut.

Nearly 250,000 Socialist votes have een cast in the United States at the elections and Socialism has suddenly become a political factor sufficient importance to frighten the capitalist class and their hireling poli-ticians. We may now feel sure that they will try every means at their command to binder the growth of the Socialist Party and, if possible, to destroy it. How will they attempt to do

The Socialist Party appeals directly to the material interests of the working class. The working class is beoming aroused and has for some years past instinctively rebelled against capitalist rule. The organized portion of the working class has within the past two years listened eagerly to the teachings of the Socialists, and is coming into the Socialist movement. This is the reason of this rapid growth which is making Labor real political power. Evidently, ben, the thing for the capitalist polltician to do is to organize a counter demonstration, which will keep the working class where it has always been-in the political parties controlled by capitalists, electing candidates who are capitalist parasites, stupidly begging favors of the enemies of Labor whom Labor has elected to office.

So, look which way you may over the country, you find "Union Labor" parties springing up on every hand. Examine them only a little and you will find them inspired and financed by some shrewd capitalist politician; conducted by a band of "reformers," each of whom has his own pet nos rum to spring on a confiding public and each of whom endures the others order to get a chance to hear himself (alk; and manned by a few inno cents and a horde of "labor fakirs," from the president of the trades coun cli or state federation who gets $25 a night for stumping for the pintocratic party, down to the secretary of "Local who sells his own vote and the of his hangers-on for $10-all of these last in holy horror of losing their making frantic efforts to retain their grip on the union vote. This is the Union Labor party which ur California comrades regard as a spontaneous movement of the working class. How do I know? Because we in Connecticut called the 'Economic League," and about a year ago we, too, thought it was a "spon aneous working-class party."

The Economic League was born in Ansonia. Conn., during the machinists trike for a nine-hour day. Its materpal parent was poor but dishonest. So were most of its nurses. Its father was a wealthy but disinterested gentleman residing in New York who is the proprietor of a paper called the "New York Journal." The manner of its birth was as follows. Machinists on strike at the Farrel Foundry, Anonia, will persist in telling scabs not to go work for the company. Relative of Farrell happens very conveniently to be judge of state court, and issues an injunction restraining strikers from picketing. Strikers persist in picket-ing; and deputy sheriffs arrest a dozen of strike leaders and load them on a train to go to New Haven. One of them waves two-cent American flag and crowd cheers. The flag-waver, Mr. Stephen, Charters, having thus shown that he possesses the proper qualification for a capitalist decoy and got his name and portrait in all the daily papers is sought out by agents of the proprietor of the "Journal" sforesaid, who puts up the money to pay the expense of the trial of Charters and his comrades for violation of the court injunction. Charters runs for Mayor of Ansonia and is elected. The Economic League is launched, and Charters becomes suddenly flush of money, travels around the state, telling all the trade unions "what we did in Ansonia." Also Spillyan, presi dent of the State Federation of Labor. gets into the League and is elected Mayor of Hartford at the same time. This was in November, 1901. The League grew rapidly and the same "Journalistic" influence which at tracted Mr. Charters rapidly frew to-gether a swarm of "labor leaders" and "reformers," who railled to the League like files around a molasses hogshead. It appeared in about a dozen towns and talked a great deal about captur ing the primaries of one of the old parties. This gave it a large and important aspect, calculated to impress the innocents, some of whom had timidly gathered to see what the noise was about.

As the time for the spring election in one or two of the large cities drew near this plan was abandoned, how-ever, as it was discovered (by a com-mittee sent to interview some prominent capitalist politicians) that one or perhaps both old parties would be glad to nominate some prominent member of the League. As each member who had ever nerve enough to get on his feet in a meeting thought himself s.

7. The right of suffrage for women. The international parliament of the international parliament of the conditional union of the poles, the Caschs, Finland, etc.; that the working class has to face this feet in a meeting thought himself s.

prominent member, this was entirely atisfactory, and the entire Leagu waited hopefully for the old-party conventions to take their pick.

The old-party city conventions met and nominated regular machine can-didates with one exception. In New Haven the Democratic convention tool up William Trueman, general manage of a large manufactory and wel known as a Single Taxer and "re former," who was nominated for Al-derman and is one of the leaders of the Economic League.

Under the present city charter for candidates are nominated by each party, and six of these candidates are sure of election. Having nominated Trueman in order to secure the League vote, the machine was put to work to defeat him, and all the ef forts of the League barely sufficed to League and the unions endorsed regu lar Democratic candidates, and thu cratic state committee, a lawyer, be came "Labor Mayor" of Norwich and Labor scored a number of other similar "victories."

This ought to have discouraged the mocents and killed the League, but it didn't. There was more "graft" left in the old thing, and the politicians fixed her up for the state election They were going to capture the primaries, sure. But they failed. Mr Charters was sure to get the Demo cratic nomination for Sheriff. Sullivan, Mayor of Hartford, thought the nomination for Governor would suit him about right. Lawyer Wallace Congressman-at-Large. All of these Economic Leaguers, as well as the aspirants for local offices, were turned down with a dull sickening thud. With the Democratic machine was no monkey business in the state election. Mr. Charters lost all control running as independent candidate of the League for Sheriff, but threw down the League, two weeks befor election and accepted a remunera tive engagement to stump the county for the Democratic party. Mi Sullivan did the same. So did all the rest of the "good men" who were run-ping the League. The few innocents who were left hunted up an obscure pion man and put him in the plaof Charters for Sheriff, endorsed candidates of both parties, right and left. and appeared at the polls on election day with their pockets full of pasters, source of amusement to all observers.

All this political trickery and jobhunting has opened the eyes of nearly all the honest ones who were in the eague and many of them voted the Socialist ticket. But Hearst's money is working again, and already there is on its feet again for further busines in the city elections next spring, and to doubt Labor will win another tory similar to those enumerated above and those won by union labor parties elsewhere, which our California comrades admire so much.

As for the Socialist Party, it will keep in the middle of the road. The omic League and its experiences have had a salutary effect on our com rades. A year ago, when the League was first organized, our comrade who thought they saw the unlos turning toward independent political action were in favor of making a pro-posal to them to co-operate with the Socialist Party. Now the same men have a supreme contempt for the posed co-operation with them would be laughed at and told to join the Economic League.

The tendency to enter into a fusion with the trade unions for political action has been strong in our party in many parts of the country during the past two years and topposition and aroused by the California affair will, I think, help to check this tendency and make our comrade more wary and carefut. The unionists should never go to them.

W. E. WHITE. New Haven, Dec. 14.

Submits Propositions to Be Considered at Amsterdam Congress Next August

Secretary Victor Serwy of the So cialist International Bureau at Brus-sels submits to the Socialist organizations of the world the propositions so far laid before him to be placed on the order of business of the International Socialist Congress, which is to meet at Amsterdam on August 16, 1902. THE WORLD AS IT IS .--

By Horace Traubel.

The world sa'lt is is a world of conflict. The child born into the world ices not find the world its friend. The child finds the world its foe.

The world makes it hard for a child o be born. The world makes it barder for a child to live than to be born The world offers a hard passage to those who cross its birthline.

The world as it is is rich enough for all. And yet the world as it is gives riches to but few. The world is all refusal or all favor.

If you catch the world in one humo it will spoil you with its gifts. If you catch the world in another humor it will destroy you with its frosts, Fathers and mothers view their chil-dren with starm. The child is a threat.

Love itself is a peril.

The world promises you harvests. But few can survive the disastrou prings and summers that precede the harvests. The world sends up prayer for children. But when the children appear the world does not protect The world drives children to the treadmill. The world takes the young-sters before they have had their playtime and apprentices them without re norse to the unsufferable tyrannies of of these children are served up to you in interests, rents and profits.

The world invites you to a feast. Then the world forbids you to eat. The world calls you a freeman. Then the world makes you crawl.

The world does nothing to make me proud of themselves. The world does verything to make men ashamed of hemselves. The world is choked with ems and baws and spologies. world discourages straight talk. The world condemns those who act out the imple dictates of the humanities

The world makes man a slave to his meals and his clothes. No man ought ever to have to think of his meals till the time comes to eat them. breekfast seems to threaten dinner and dinner supper. A man goes to bed wondering if next day is to starve him. The world turns its conscience over to its appetites. The result it calls civilization.

THE NEW SOCIAL STRUCTURE.

A Deep Sermon, a Wise Editorial and a bit of Sage Advice once decided that Humanity was sorely in need of a new Social Structure and fell to discussing plans and specifications and figuring out the number of stories and gables and doors and windows, the parior and dining room and kitchen and laundry and bed room and bath room accommodations that would be required to make Humanity and his family comfortable and happy.

The old and reliable firm of Hard-work and Commonsense stood rendy to undertake the contract and put up the structure immediately if Humanity wanted it and was willing to fo the bills. But the promoters of the enterprise said Humanity wasn't to be trusted, and that they must rely upon Sweet Charity to wheedle the money out of Capital, who has means of squeezing it out of Humanity.

Besides they very much preferred to give the contract to Evolution, a dis-sipated old duffer who doesn't believe in working, but in letting things take their natural course, and who prom-ises to have the structure done in sev-eral hundred, or may be several thou-sand or million years.—Avery Quercus.

CAPITALISM IN JAPAN.

We have read a great deal about the marvellous progress which Japan has made in the last half-century though the introduction of modern methods of stry-that is, of capitalism. There is an aspect of this matter that has not been presented to the public by the respectable newsgatherers and organs of public opinion-the frightful brutality, surpassing anything known under the old feudal régime, which has accompanied the rise of capitalism in that country. Among very many instances which have come to our knowledge we choose one for presentation reporting it in the quaint English of the "Japan Gazette," as follows: "We have airendy reported the ar-rest of the proprietor of a weaving fac-

fecture, his mother and male em ployees on charges of having brutally treated girls in the factory. The preliminary examination of these persons was concluded on the 10th inst. at the Urawa Chiho Saibansho and they were committed for trial. From the decision rendered by the Preliminary Court it appears that the particulars of cruelty to the factory girls pub-lished in the newspapers and some of which have been reproduced in these columns are fully substantiated. The could seem that there 2 buildings it which some 28 girls ranging in age from 15 to 28 are employed in weavstrong fences. Their entrance is shut up all the time so that none of the girls can find access to the factory compound. No decent clothes are given to the girls while only course food is given to them. The girls are dally given much more work than they can finish under ordinary circum-stances and if they fail to finish their work or some of them attempt to run away they are subjected to different methods of torture, shame, and fiendish punishment. In the execution of these the proprietor was assisted by his mother and 4 male employees. On several occasions between October and December last year one of the girls named Kano was subjected to the re cuction of and forced abstention fron On one cold night she was stripped of all ber clothes to do wear ng; on another night she was obliged to sit in the snow stark naked for several hours, but her termentors, no satisfied with the punishment they had inflicted on her, dragged her in the snow, inflicting incerated wounds all over her body. The most fiendish de vice which defies description was apblied to a poor girl in the godown by baring her all of her clothing, as usual binding her hands and feet and gag ging her mouth. As the result of thee ortures her physical strength has been gradually weakened and she compictely lost her eye-sight in March this year. Similar and sometimes more brutal punishment has been meted on in the case of 10 other girls. In fact the proprietor and his accomplices ap-peared to have been always engaged n evolving new and different methods in evolving new and unterest and of torture to add to the shame and colo of the unfortunate girls. Their methods were always combined with a large measure of indecency which they seemed to have thought a most effective means of punishment. Now that these flends have been committed for trial it will not be long before they will get the punishment they de-serve. Unfortunately this state of af-fairs is not confined to this particular tactory but it is prevalent among toany other factories in a greater of less degree. It is to be hoped that the resent case shall prove an example o prevent the continuance of such harbarous practices." In the United States and the more advanced countries of Europe, where capitalism is more fully developed, these crude brutalities have given place to more effective and more subtle but no less cruel methods of coercin

the working class. We know, of course, that the development of capitalism in these coun tries, with all its horrors, is a stage through which such countries as Japan must pass through; the redeeming feature is that an intelligent and aggressive trade-union and Socialist movement has arisen in Japan, in touch with the international Socialist movement, which will shorten the process of development from feudalism through capitalism to the Co nwealth.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This conversitie analysis the CAUers. This ownership enables the capi-talists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is respon-sible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and ulsery of the working class, and it di-rides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. vide The once powerful middle class is rap idly disappearing in the mill of com-petition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and so-cial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capi-talist class dominate our entire social system: the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indisriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial domin-ion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home. But the same economic causes which leveloped capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class, All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of realth production. The Democratic. Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete verthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political rep-sentatives of the capitalist class. The workers can most effectively act

While we declare that the developsent of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the tir of the transition to Socialism also de-pend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost import-ance for the Socialist Party-to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect So cialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end-

WILL HE DEBATE?

Chairman of National Economic League Is Challenged.

Comrade Alexander Fraser Invites Silas B. Dutcher to Submit His "Impartial Movement to Oppose Socialism and Class Haired" to the Test of Fair Discussion.

In the issue of Dec. 28, The Worker gave some account of the National nomic League, an organization formed, according to its own statement, "to carry on an IMPARTIAL educational movement to OPPOSE Socialism and class hatred," and officered by such men as Silas B. Dutcher. Ex-Mayor Schleren, Lyman J. Gage, Bishop Potter, Henry Clews, John D. Long, O. H. Kuhn, Levi P. Morton, and J. L. Greatsinger.

Mr. Dutcher is somewhat widely if not too favorably known in Brooklyn as a politician, and Comrade Fraser. one of the active Social Democrats of that borough has accordingly sent him the following invitation or challenge:

"Hon."Silas B. Dutcher,
"Dear Sir:-Having read a circular issued by the National Economic League and signed by you as Chair-man, in which you state it to be your purpose to oppose Socialism and class batred,' I write to ask if you will consent to debate upon some phase of So-cialism at the Socialist Propaganda Club, which meets at 315 Washington street, Brooklyn, every Sunday even-

"The Socialists desire to establish a better order of society and believe that this can only be accomplished through the collective ownership by the whole of society of all the great natural resources and of the means of production and distribution, thereby replacing the present system whereby a few own all the sources of wealth and the means of producing wealth, with the remainder of society dependent upon them, while the workers compete amongst themselves for the oppor-tunity to earn a living and at the same time carry on a constant struggle with the possessors of wealth for a larger share of the wealth produced.

"I cannot imagine that you purpose ly place Socialism and class hatred in same category. Our great aim le to establish fraternal relations be tween all men and to abolish this class batred and these class antagonisms which manifest themselves in frequent strikes, boycotts, and riots, and in the calling out of the militia and the poclashes between the capitalists and the orkers are inherent in and insepara e from the present order of society They arise from causes over which w have no control-while we are satis gime, and may safely be expected t recur with increasing intensity and over a much wider area, while business is conducted solely with a view to profit.

suffering intensely during the present winter because of the shortage in the supply of coal due to the coal strike In the future these conflicts may cause artificial famine and perhaps provoke bloodshed through the temporary in-terruption of the work of production. What course do you expect to pursue in order to put an end to these conflicts between Labor and Capital? repeat, the object of the Socialists is, put an end to these class antagon

"The large Socialist vote cast at last election doubtless convinces you that Socialism is a growing force, and if you wish to combat it successfully, you cannot better accomplish your purpose than by entering the lists against it in an open and straightfor ward manner. If you are convinced of the justice of your position and that you are working in the cause of humanity and of the truth, we shall error of our ways, for we have no de What is not of the truth cannot stand and we shall all be measured by that standard ultimately. Should you decide to debate with us, or have some member of your League do so, we shall accord you the greatest courtesy and assure you that ely fair and impartial

"Yours sincerely, "ALEX FRASER 'Brooklyn, Jan. 2, 1963."

In connection with this it is inter esting to note that Comrade Hayes of Cleveland challenged D. M. Parry of Indianapolis, President of the Nationa Manufacturers' Association, to debate ods of Socialism, Mr. Parry having, in the many circulars of his organization, repeatedly made violent and malicious attacks upon the Socialist movement Mr. Parry, however, did not have the nerve to defend his statements face to face with a Socialist. The reason he gave for refusing to debate is rather cotted by the American Federation of Labor and that therefore "no work-ingman could attend the debate without being fined for violating the boy cott rules." Mr. Parry probably knows little more about the trade unions than he does about Socialism, but it is hardly conceivable that he is so ignorant on the subject to believe what he here says. His refusal is a simple "sneak." It remains to be seen whether Mr. Dutcher will show more

COST OF LIVING.

Not Coming Down as Prosperity Shriekers Say.

Examination of Prosperity Statistics Shows that Infinitesimal Reduction In Cost of Food Is More than Balanced by Rise in Cost of Fuel, Rent, and Clothing.

The capitalist moulders of public ppinion, in their alarm at the general invest of the working class and their desire to convince the working class that there is no good cause for dissatisfaction, are putting a good deal of emphasis, of late, on the alleged reduction of the cost of living.

The average workingman-or his wife, who has to undertake the diffi-cult task of "making both ends meet" -finds it hard to believe that any such reduction has taken place, whatever the figures that are put before him.

The average workingman and his wife are right, and it may be worth while to examine the statistics that are cited to prove the capitalists pdint.

The figures which are then as being authoritative on this question— and, on the whole, they are fairly re-liable—are those of Dun's Agency. We agree in taking these as the basis of Dun's had made an estimate of the amount of various commodities constituting a year's supply of the necessaries of life for an average person in the United States, and gives the cost of such a supply at wholesale prices at various times as an index of the rise or fall of the cost of living.

Dun's statement for Jan. 1, 1903, onts this index at $100.30 cents at prices now prevailing, as compared with $101.50 at prices prevailing a year ago, and $72.46 at prices prevail-ing on July 1, 1807.

The figures are given for the three periods and by classes of commodities ncluded in the year's supply in the following table:

Jan. 1, 1902, $20,002 9,670 15,248 8,952 15,547 15,375 16,703

July 1, 1897. $10,587 7,520 8,714 7,887 13,808 11,642 12,288

Even though we accept the state-nent as it stands, the fall in the cost of a year's living as compared with the beginning of 1902-$1.21 for a person ar about $6 for a family-is so small as to be hardly worth mentioning. At this rate it would still be about twenty-five years before the cost of living would have fallen to the standard of 1897.

On two points, however, qualification must be made. We are not informed just what expenses are included under the item "miscellaneous." From the smallness of the item, however, it is certain that it cannot include eithe

Now there can be no doubt that there has been a general, although not, perhaps, a very large, advance of rents during the last year. Even were the advance no more than an average of 50 cents a month for a family, this would counterbalance the reduction in the cost of those commodities included

As for fuel, it is necessary to say that there has been an enormous in-crease in prices-not for anthracite slone, but for soft coal, coke, wood, and kerosene. This advance began more than a year ago—long before the beginning of the coal strike. Since the strike and since winter came ou, it has been carried still farther. And we are told that there is little chance for any considerable reduction in the nes

Taking these things into considera tion, it appears that the cost of living, so far from having been reduced during the last year, has been positively advanced, and has reached the higher point ever yet recorded. Nor is the any reason to expect a reduction-until the next period of industrial depres prices will be more than counter calanced, so far as the workers are and the increased difficulty of getting

"INDEPENDENT" WORKINGMEN

National Scab Bureau Is Being Organized.

The British "Free" Labor Associatio to Have a Counterpart in This Coun try-Some Interesting Features o the Plan.

The British employers have for some time had an organization for the double purpose of fighting labor legis-lation and, in general, through the press and otherwise, prejudicing public opinion against the labor move-ment and of maintaining a force of scabs or strike-breakers for use in emergencies. This organization—one of the means by which the benevolen capitalists propose to "harmonize Capi-tal and Labor"—is designated, by a tine stroke of irony, the Free Labor Association.

In this country the husiness of strike breaking has never yet been fully or-ganized, being provided for, in general, only through the ordinary agen-cies of employment bureaus, charity organizations, and the willing services of the capitalist press.

The activity and increasing aggresiveness of the labor movement, how ver, has now resulted in a new move ment on the part of the capitalists, and the British "Free" Labor Associa tion will soon have a counterpart in the United States, as shown by this recent news from Albany:

"Independent" Workmen,

"The Rev. E. M. Fairchild of Albany, who has been called into consultation by the workmen interested n the formation of the National Asgue of Independent Workmen of America said to-night:

"The League will be organized in the near future. It is proposed to put a National organizer in the field and to organise local branches all over the country and demand that employers run their shops as "open shops," in which union and league men can have an equal and fair chance for employ

"'The League will be strictly a boring man's affair, but it will be incorporated, so as to command the con-fidence of employers and the general public, and be in position to defend the rights of its members through the courts. Only American citizens will be eligible to membership.

"The specific objects for which the independent workmen propose to or ganize are as follows:

"First—To protect independent workmen in their independence. "'Second—To sustain high wages by skilful, energetic co-operation with ou employers.

"Third—To establish reasonable hours of labor according to the exi-gencies of the trades.
"'Fourth-To promote intelligent understanding of our work.

"Fifth-To furnish favorable conditions for training apprentices in order that our boys may become successful " 'Sixth-To maintain sanitary conditions of employment by means of state laws and inspectors. "Serenth—To compel officers of the government to enforce the laws. "'Eighth—To compel labor unions to observe the laws.

"'Ninth-To protect the members against unjust treatment from employ ers by due process of law.
"Tenth—To provide a labor bureau for its members. It is easy to imagine how "independ ent" are the traitors to the working class who form this organization and how much truth there is in the statement that it "will be strictly a labor-ing man's affair." The nature and purpose of the plan are so evident to any intelligent workingman—be he a union member or not—that only a few of its features call for comment,

A Wise Precaution-

The association is to be incorporated observed the dangerous tendency of even organized scabs to develop into made by the non-union miners in Pennsylvania-and wish to be in a n sition to hold the "independent" work ingmen to their original function and to smash their organization if it should ever become rebellious against its masters.

Only American citisens eligible to membership. This is a once "a play to the gallery" of wha is commonly called public opinion and a measure in line with the genera policy pursued by capitalist agents o pathies among the workers.

The second, third, and fourth of the "specific objects" mean simply that, in times of peace (or truce) between strikes, the "independents" are to serve as "pace-makers" in the shops to force their fellow employees to

The Apprentice Question.

The organization will try to "furnis favorable conditions for training apprentices" and so forth. Every work ingman knows that the old apprenti system has long ago broken down and become unadapted to modern industrial methods, and that the rules of trade unions limiting the employment of apprentices, whatever real or see ing hardships they may work, are ab-solutely necessary to limit, though they cannot prevent, the far greater evil of child labor. This raises a question that few of the unions have as yet attempted runlly to solve—how to give the boy a chance to learn a trade without giving the employer a chance to use the boy in cutting down the man's wages. That question must be met. But self-respecting workingmen. will not be slow to meet the attack implied in this declaration of the "in-

The provision of a labor bureau for members means, of course, nothing more nor less than the establishment of a thorough system for supplying "independents" — commonly—called scabs—to employers involved in labor. disputes. And we venture to guess that in time of need the employers will not inquire too closely after the American citizenship of the scabs supplied.

After all, it is good to see such mo nents as this springing up. They prove that the labor movement is do ng its work, that the capitalists are feeling and fearing its attacks, and they help in turn, to bring out more clearly the class antagonism between capitalists and workers and so to bring us nearer to the final struggle.

KENTUCKY'S VOTE.

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 4.-The Worker in its issue of this date understates the vote of the Socialist Party in Kentucky. The official report gives us, not 1,665, but 1,886 votes. This is a gain of 148 per cent. In two years, our vote in the presidential election

TEXAS VOTE DOUBLED.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., Jan. 1,-The official returns show that the Socialist Party has doubled its vote in Texas in the last two years. We do not yet know our vote for Governor and Licuteman Governor, as that must be canvassed by the Legislature, but for the other six places on the state ticket we polled as follows: Langworthy, for Comptroller, 3,513; Bruce, for Treas urer, 2,278; Kuykondall, for Lan Commissioner, 4.508; Gibsons, for Su perintendent of Public Instruction 3,641; Clear, for Railway Commis sioner, 4,231; McBride, for Attorney General, 3,615. In the national elec-tion of 1900 we had 1,846 votes.

ARIZONA'S GOOD START.

GLOHE, Ariz, Dec. 20.-We have a ist the uticial report of the vote cas for the Socialist Party in this territor; on November 4, and it greatly exceed our expectations. Dr. William Nelse headed our ticket as candidate for Delegate to Congress. He received 510 votes. This is over 2 per cent. of the total vote. As only one per cent. is required for official standing, we are now a recognised party and can go on the ballot next year without petition.

As this is our first attempt, we con sider the result very satisfactory, especially in view of the great difficulties put in our way. Mining is the prin-cipal industry and is controlled by a few great companies, which thus have almost unlimited power. Here in Globe, which is the center of the movement, we had to meet the machina tions of a traitor, one William Jenkins, an officer of the Miners' Union, who was formerly a member of the party and was expelled for cause. He acted as a spy for the bosses and succeeded in getting every active Socialist or sympathizer on the blacklist, so that ost of our party workers had to leave the camp. However, the miner com rades have exposed him and brought charges against him, with the result that he resigned and left town. The Socialist Party will move on, in spite of the efforts of capitalists or their hirelings.

HAVERHILL HOTES.

Fourth annual fair of the Haverhill Socialists will be held in Lafayette Hall on Jan. 22 to 26. This will be a big event as usual and comrades from neighboring towns should attend. Season tickets, 50 cents; single tickets, 25 cents.

A pleasing feature of our city elecwas the solidity of the vote ting about 2,000, while the highest got about 2,100; the average increase over the vote of last year was about 400 but the vote was much more nearly Our candidate for May as in the past our vote has varied from 600 to 800 between the highest and the lowest figures on the city ticket. We are getting to bedrock Party vote. When we carry the city again, as we shall in a year or tw we shall carry it "for keeps."

Assistant Assessor Morrill of Ward 5 (Carey's district) ran about fifty votes ahead of the rest of the Social ist ticket. It will be remembered tha Comrade Morrill had a controversy with the Assessors, owing to their action in putting a Republican assist ant into Ward 5 without his consess and contrary to law, and that upon going over the territory which had been illegally covered Comrade Morrill discovered forty or fifty names which had been dropped from the voting list, the most of them being Socialists He compelled the Assessors to resign to him all his rights. The Works stated at the time that the voters were indignant and threatened the action of the Assessors at the polls and this has

While It Invades the Old World II Tightens Its Grip At Home-Opposition Can Proceed Only on Lines that Hasten the Tendency to Centralization.

While the little retail tobacco and cigar dealers are trying to get together for a fight against the Tobacco Trust "octopus" is steadily tightening its hold on the industry in all its branches, not in this country alone, but also in the Old World.

It will be remembered that this trust—the American Tobacco Company, to use its real name-began an invasion of England about a year ago; that the English companies were obliged to unite into a trust to fight it; and that a lively struggle ended, after a few months, in a treaty of peace and the consolidation of the two concerns on a besis of common interest which seems to assure the permanence of the combine.

Invades Germany,

Now comes a dispatch from Berlin, stating that "the Anglo-American Tobacco Trust will introduce in Germany on New Year's Day a system of rebates and premiums to small dealers -a system similar to that by which it forced the consolidation first in the United States and then in Great Britain. The dispatch further states that the Trust owns, as yet, only one establishment in Germany-the Jas matzi factory at Dresdon but that it has greatly enlarged the mil equipped it with the latest American machinery for making eigerettes. A number of the smaller manufacturers have offered to surrender and be merged in the Trust, but their offers have been refused until the question shall have been settled with the two or three targest establishments in Germany; this having been done, the Trust can take the small concerns in at its own terms or kill them if it so prefers. The dispatch says that the email manufacescaping or resisting the attack of the Trust.

At home, the Trust signalized the be gianing of the new year by acquiring control; through the Continental To bacco Company, one of its ambidiary organizations, of the Harry Weiss-inger Company of Louisville, which was its only considerable surviving rival in the manufacture of plug and other chewing tobacco. The Conti-nental increased its capital from $30, 000,000 to $40,000,000, the increase being taken chiefly by A. N. Brady, J. B and B. N. Duke, W. L. Elkins, W. C. Whitney, T. F. Ryan, P. A. B. The comment made cook this even The comment made are the event by the New York "Evening Post" is worthy of notice, as illustrating the loose conceptions of a og and good faith prevailing among the capitalists themselves—by which we may judge how little reason the working class has for trusting their professions. The "Post" says:

"There have been many conjectures as to what the Trust intended to do in the matter of the Welssinger Company. The latest account has it that ulsville company is to be liqui dated. The Trust has an adequate number of factories for the production of its wares, and may see no reason for the continuance of the Weissinger Company. That it has felt the com-petition of the goods of the Weiszinger Company is common talk in the to-bacco trade. One of these negotiations for the purchase of the company, would not listen to the price the Trust offered, $105 per share. He maintained that the Weissinger business was highly profitable, that its net profits for last year were $125,000, and that the business was paying about 10

Socialists Hold Great Coal Famine Meeting.

Carey, MacCartney, Mahoney, Cutting, Mailly, and Legate Point the Way Out-Democratic Free-Trade Humbur Exposed.

"Resolved, by the citizens of Bos ton, in mass meeting assembled, in Fancuil Hall, Friday, Jan. 2, 1963, that we condenin the condition that causes the prevailing fuel famine as the result of private ownership of the means of fuel production, distribution and supply, as represented by the Trust, the railroad combine and the retail dealers' organization.

"Resolved, further, that we demand ownership by the people of municipal fuel yards, railroads and coal mines as a step toward the abolition of the system of private ownership which enables the capitalist class to rob the miner who produces the coal, the railroad man who transports it, and the people who consume it; and following upon that, as a logical consequence, the establishment of Socialism-the ollective ownership of industry,

"Resolved, further, that we indors the petition now being circulated which supports the bills to be introduced by the Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature seeking to establish municipal fuel yards and government ownership of coal mines."

A Record-Breaking Meeting.

Such were the resolutions adopted with ringing applause at the meeting held in Fancuil Hall under the auspi ces of the Boston Central Committee of the Socialist Party on Friday of last week. The meeting, it is admitted by the local daily press, was one of the largest ever held in that relebrated place, and the straight Socialist utterances of the speakers were greeted by the audience with un-

State Secretary William Mailly pre sided and the speakers were Repre-sentatives Carey and MacCartney, President Mahoney of the Cigarmak ers' Union, George G. Cutting of the Typographical Union, and Henry R. Legate:

The Free-Trade Humbug.

In calling the meeting to order Com rade Mailly referred to the meeting held a few days before, under the auspices of the American Free Trade League, and said that "not one note was struck there that sought to re-lieve the sufferings of the working class." His defense of the miners, on whom the capitalist apologists seek to famine, was evidently in entire sym pathy with the sentiments of the nudi ence and was warmly applauded.

Comrade Cutting was the first peaker. He showed that the coal famine is directly traceable to the pri rate ownership of the mines and rail-roads and their operation for private profit and that the only way out is public ownership for public use, as advocated by Socialists all over the world. The removal of the tariff. which the Democrats are so voci-ferously demanding, would, at the most, as he clearly showed, have no other result than to hasten the for tion of an international instead of a national coal trust.

Representative MacCartney had an enthusiastic greeting. "The conditions which prevail among millions of our he said, "from the lack of the conditions that for twenty years have been leading up to the existing situation, all of the forces which have been at work leading up to this crists these forces to-night join in an indictment of the present capitalist system."

His praise of the miners was hardly more warmly applauded than his con-demnation of the operators. From an operators. From an arraignment of the operators he passed to the leaders of the great political velt for the part he played in entrapping the miners into a "settlement" which, as is now plainly evident, will be wholly favorable to the mine He held up to the ridicule of his audience the free traders' mass meeting, and said it was symbolic of the ecay of leadership and a prophecy of the time when the people would choose their own leaders from the ranks of the people. "What did they propose?" he thundered. "Sixty-seven cents off the tariff!" the Socialist Party comes to

No Race Line Among Workers. Before introducing the next speaker the chairman called attention to an error made at a meeting of colored citizens in Fanceti Hall on Thursday

WHY WE GET CONCESSIONS. Does it pay to organize and agitate? , that so clearly proved the awakening Does it pay to strike and to vote as we strike? Does it pay to be radical, to be bold, to throw defiance in the face of the capitalist class? The capitalists have answered that question for us, by their recent actions, so clearly and emphatically that the wayfaring man, though a fool, can hardly fall to understand. During he last year the working

open in voicing its dissatisfaction, more aggressive in its spirit, more radical in its demands, more united and energetic in its action, than ever before. Never before was there such a strike as that of the anthracite miners; never before was a strike so well supported. And hardly is that strike suspended when the bituminous miners begin to talk of making similar de mands. The railroad men, meanwhile, have declared their determination to share in the forward movement. Almost every other trade has had its strikes or its threats to strike. In the Far West the miners and other workinguen have openly declared their intention not to stop short of the complete emancipation offered by Socialism. The Federation convention has come nearer to declaring for Socialism than ever before. And, at the same time, the political Socialist movement has strengthened its organization in every part of the country and, close upon the heels of the great strike, has come the general election showing an upparaticled increase of the straight Socialist vote.

Conservative labor leaders have been frightened by these phenomena; they have warned their followers that by demanding too much they would risk osing all. But the rank and file has wakened and the leaders have been forced to move forward or to step aside, "Respectable public opinion" has been shocked and its subsidized organs have vacillated from frantic menace to abject pleading, from preensions of friendly counsel back to blustering arrogance. But in spite of injunctions, in spite of blacklists, in spite of browbeating and of cajolery. in spite of Citizens' Alliances and of Civic Federations, in spite of threats of suppression and of promises of arbitration, the workers, having realized at once their wrongs and their power to right them, have gone on from one bold step to another, with the assurances of still bolder steps to be taken in the near future.

Within a month after the election

Comrade Mahoney followed with a forcible speech, calling on the people who use coal to stand together as the people who mine coal had done, to work for Socialism, and overthrow the system which enabled a few idle individuals to levy tribute on the needs of every worker in the land.

Comrade Legate, who is in charge of the petition being circulated throughout the state, asking the Legislature to memorialize Congress for na-tional ownership of the coal mines, and to pass an amendment to the constitution providing for municipal fuel yards, urged his hearers to join in the work of getting signatures. careful canvass of the state were made," he said, "I think fully 80 per cent, of the people would sign the peti-tion." He also pointed out that the Socialist Party has now three members, instead of two, as last year, to on such measures on the fl of the Legislature-men who owe allegiance to the producers alone and will not shirk their duty.

Paul E. Averett, a negro, succeeded at this point in getting recognition from the chair, to say that in his opinion the meeting of colored m was not representative of the colored workmen of Boston. "I am a member of a union myself," he declared, "and know that no such discrimination is made."

The chairman then read the resolutions printed above, which were frequently interrupted with applause. They were unanimously carried.

Carey on Prosperity. Representative James F. Carey was introduced as the last speaker, and was given three hearty cheers. He referred to the fact that at the Salvation Army's Christmas dinner 11,000 children in Boston, representing 4,000 families, had been fed, and asked if that was the sort of prosperity referred to in the annual reviews which terrec to in the annual reviews which have appeared in the newspapers. He ridiculed the idea that any relief of the coal situation could be obtained from the removal of the tariff duty on

It is worthy of note that this most successful meeting was arranged with-out spending one cent for advertising. The only announcement was by notice given through the papers, Co. Sherman having acted as press agent! That the size and spirit of the meet-

THE AUTONOMY DISCUSSION.

We give more space than usual in the present issue of The Worker to unications on questions of party erganization, particularly of "state autonomy" and the functions of the National Committee. We regret the necessity of sparing from news and propaganda matter of general interest so many columns for matter interesting, in general, only to party members, But the necessity exists. The approaching annual session of the National Committee makes the discussion of these questions timely. We have been compelled by obvious limitations to select for publication only a few of the many letters addressed to us; still the number and length of those which we feel it necessary to give is such that they will occupy what some readern may consider undue space, not only in this, but in some succeeding pression of our own indement on the state autonomy question. For the present we would comment rather on the method of discussing and considering this and other matters of the sor than on the point directly at leane.

are none of us free from the temptapoint-succumbing to the temptation quite unconsciously, in the great majority of cases, but none the less disestrously for that. Three such dan vers are especially common: The tendency to think that by citing a few particular facts we have established a general principle, without stopping to nak ourselves whether equally weighty instances might not be cited on the other side: the far more dangerous tendency to accept a general principle especially if it be one hallowed by custom and tradition, and to deduce from it conclusions which may be eafte at variance with existing facts; most of all, the tendency to use ready-made phrases which have justly securived some offum or favor is as application different from the original extended and which curtailed or train-

To apply these remarks to the pres ent discussion: Those who support what is called state autonomy—a phrase, by the way, which seems to have varying meanings in various mouths—can cite certain cases in which the National Committee or its Local Quorum or the National Secretary took action which seems to them to have been both unwise and unwarrantable. In several of these cases we heartily agree with the critics. But do we agree with them in thinking that this is a conclusive argument in favor of abolishing the National Committee or, at least further limiting its functions? Not at all. We remember that state committees also may take unwise or unwarrantable actions whose evil results extend far beyond their respective states not only may do so, but sometimes have done so. Giving attention only to the errors of state committees, others reach an equally hasty conclusion that state committees should be abolished or, at least, brought much more closely under national control. The advancement and reiteration of such generalizations and countergeneralizations does not materially

Again, some of the autonomists appeal to the time-honored Jeffersonian dectrine that government or discipline is, at best, but a necessary evil, that they are governed best who are governed least, and from this general principle they deduce the particular conclusion that the functions and powers of the higher party organizations should be minimized. On the other hand, some of their opponents appeal to the general evolutionary tendency toward centralization and deduce the conclusion that the higher party organizations must be progressively strengthened. Jeffersonianism is, of course, a political doctrine quite out of harmony with twentleth-century conditions, useful as was the service ! did a hundred years ago; it is radically nconsistent with the philosophy of Spelalism and those who cite its maxims in this controversy would not admit its application to larger social questions. Were we to decide by offhand reference to general principles, we should have to go the whole leugth against state autonomy. But when general principles are in question it is well to remember Dick Bunsby's sagacious remark: "The bearin's o' this observation lays in the application on it"-in other words, that special circumstances have always to be considered in the application even of the oundest general principles, Finally, we need cite but one exaniple of the use, or abuse, of ready-

uade phrases as a substitute for argument. The word "De Leonism" is justly odious to Socialist ears. To impute De Leonism to a comrade is to make a very grave charge indeed nguinst him-to accuse him, if the word be taken in its true sense, of deliberate and systematic and malicious dishonesty prompted by personal and base motives. Yet in this and in other party discussions, this word has been so lightly bandled about that it has lost much of its offensiveness and most of its definite meaning. Does omeone wish to argue against having a strong National Committee, and is be too indolent to make a real argument against it? He says the National Committee is a relic of De Leonism. Does someone else think we ought not to fight Hearst, or Jones, or Johnson or the Union Labor Party, and does he think it too much trouble to show us why we ought not? He says that it is Does someone else think we ought to enter the lists to defend the larger and more conservative faction of the trademion movement against the smalle and more radical, and does he find it hard to convince us that such is our duty? He says those who look with favor or with hope to the younger faction are following a De Leonistic policy. Within the last six months w have seen the word misused in all these and several other connections in our party press. No one has been convinced by the indiscriminate use of this word; but many have been exas perated and thus made harder to con vince; and, incidentally, the loose use of a word so full of meaning gues for to obscure the very important lesson

Socialists are humanly fallible. We learned from the experience of 1809.

And above all, when a decision is made, let it be accepted by its opponents in good faith, not as final, but as having, until revoked, the authority of the party which is greater than any of us, and let a fair chance be thus given us to learn by experience whether the decision was a wise or s foolish one. But this is a point that calls for separate treatment and to which we shall recur.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Jerome will keep his promise to appear before the Central Federated Union and an swer questions. If he does, there will be fun. The New York Central tunnel horror the Tarrant case, the continual violation of law by the elevated and street-railway companies to the injury both of the employees and of the passengers, the clubbing of women on the East Side during the Meat Trust demonstrations-a few clearly put questions on these points and others that will suggest themselves will probably provoke poor Jerome to another of his hysterical outbursts and help to expose the humbug of "respectable re form." J. Fall

The malodorous Devery visiting labor organizations (and with an honor ary-membership card in his pocket), putting himself forward as the champion of the laboring people, and being greeted with applause-this is a spectacle which may well give pause to those comrades who are in a hurry to extend the olive-branch to anything that calls itself a labor party. And, after all, if only because he is so bragen and shameless, Devery is far less dangerous than some of the other politicians who are playing for the favor of the working class.

If as is now expected the Third Arenellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York, composed wholly of Republican judges, decides that the Franchise Tax Law is unconstitutional, it will be well to remember that it was David Bennett Hill, leader of the Democratic party in the state, honored by that party as Governor and as Senator, who, as counsel for a score or more of franchise corporations, appeared at a hearing before Republican Governor Roosevelt to oppose the signing of that bill in its original and much more effective form and prevailed upon him to call a special session of the Legislature to amend the bill in such a way that, if sustained by the ourts, it would, at most, be less offensive to his millionaire clients. In this, as in other things, the two old parties are, to use Mark Twain's phrase, "Kin in sin."

It is up to our Republican Govern and our Democratic Attorney-General. The finding of the Kings County Grand Jury in the matter of the rapidtransit abases puts plainly before them the question of public welfare versus private profit. Either one of them can act. If either shirks his duty, the other can put the responsibility squarely mon him. But will either of them dare to follow the Grand Jury's advice and take steps to revoke the charters? Not a bit of it. And why? Because they know their masters. Because Cuproen knows as well who supplies the Democratic campaign funds as Odell knows who supplies the Republican campaign funds. "Who pays the piper may call 'he tune."

Now, like duli imitators everywhere the "Times" is generally accurate very seldom inadvertent. I beg, there-fore, to call the attention of the old lady, who, though suffering from senile entia, continues to write the "Times" labor articles, to the odd use of the word "premature" in her yap of December 35 on the coal strike arbitration. Although it is to be resident within be appointed by state authorities and no Governor will have the slightes control of that portion of it resident o quartered in his state. It is to be absolutely under the control of the President, and subject to his call for service either within or without the limits of the territory of the United States. The constitution, for which capital ism professes such an inordinate re gard, expressly reserves to the stat the power to appoint the officers of the militia. This "volunteer reserve," therefore, cannot be any part of the organized militia of the country, and to place it in a bilt designed to effect a reorganization of the militia is to creep up under cover. It is evident that the present Secre tary of War, by and with the consent of the President and his Cabluct, is attempting to do by stealth what the people would frown upon if brought honestly and directly before them reserve, but is in effect a 100,000 increase of the regular army. It is designed to give to the servants of capitalism in each state a body of armed men that can be used locally against the working class in its effort to free itself from economic tyrancy, particu larly at such times as the Govern who may recognize the wrongs of the workers, refuses to call out the militla at capitalist mandate.

The movement to abolish universal suffrage in Germany is taking such a defined shape that something like a crisis exists both within the Social Democratic Party and the ranks of the conservative and reactionary Agrari-nus. The Emperor William has followed up his statement that he does "not wish for the German people free-dom to govern badly." He adds to it other public utterances which give meern to the Socialist "Vor warts" (Berlin). That paper says that the reactionaries are frankly aiming at the subversion of popular institutions so far as they exist in Germany. This heroic undertaking is the only method by means of which the reactionaries can maintain their supremacy. Figures show that Social Democratic election of 1898 the Socialists polled 2.107.100 votes, but are allowed only the Roman Catholic Center party polled only 1,455,100 votes and is allowed 102 members. This is the result of under-representation of the cities; but it has falled to destroy the Socialist strength. Consequently a revolu-tionary proceeding is contemplated.

This charge is met with a rather sur prising frankness by the "Kreux Zeltung" (Berlin), "the Byzantine organ of absolutism," as the Socialist paper save. There is no doubt, asserts the conservative sheet, that the Social Democratic Party has brought about an intolerable condition within the German empire. Respect for the throne and the altar has been under-mined to an extent that is frightful. The good old German ideas of the fathers and the grandfathers of the race are speered away. The land is pervaded with notions from the United States. God belp the fatherland! The perfit calls for constitutional remedies, and the men at the head of affairs will not be daunted by the necessity. This is the gist of what the Conservative organ says from day to day, quoting freely from other papers in support of its position.

of the common-looking folk around us. Was ever despairing humanity so bread-driven as this before, in all the It is impossible to determine the force of all the currents of thought and feeling and of economic and industrial tan found itself occupying a meek and lowly estate. Now, on the other hand, the Puritan is the most noble and development which go to make up the tream of modern social life, and to decide off-hand whether they will at last bring the world into the socialistic state, of which some of the more ardent and intent Socialists dream, is far beyond the power of any man wh now lives. If we were able to put ourselves back to the conditions of no this state of Massachusetts and were to contemplate from the point of view of the then living men some of the propositions of social activity and or-ganization which have now bear mistured into practice and which are uni versally accepted as to be permanent, we should at once see how absurd they seemed to the most enlightened thought and the most unselfish heart of that day. That a community should take upon itself, as a community, to conduct certain enterprises and activi-ties for the benefit of all the people was all but incomprehensible, even though at that very time the germ of this policy was accepted as part of the principle of the Massachusetts town ship. The occasional dreamer of a wider extension of the office of society in such directions was only the be-liever in an "ism" which to his neighbors' view wasn't going to amount to much. And if we look at the matter closely we shall discover that there were Isms and bons, and that some of them have amounted to much and some of them haven't; but, on the whole, in neither case is the prevision of their contemporaries concerning them proof of abundant accuracy of foresight. It seems to us that that is much the case with Socialism. We have what some of the extreme Socialists have no patience with in those things which are usually denominated as socialistic in their tendency, and we have the propositions for a good many more. Some of them are apparently coming in not many years; some of them are uncertain; some of them seem to most of us impossible. But hard with the Tories. The most significant result of these local contests however is the large increase in the labor and Socialist vote. The attacks of the "Times" upon "Municipal So-cialism" have only had the effect of eipal Socialists' position. They have gained a large number of seats and have made it sufficiently clear that collectivism is a coming force in British politics. In Glasgow, which es" made the subject of spehe "Th int attack, the contests were of an exelting character. Heavy polis were recorded and the labor party won some remarkable triumphs. The Lord Provost himself, one of the most popular men in Glasgow, and a progressive of the official Liberal type, was beaten by Mr. Scott-Gibson, a young Socialist, by a majority of 1,112 on a total post West Ham, whose attracted the attention of the "Times" ritic, replied by adding two more So also increased the progressive strength on the borough council by two Socialist votes. At Blackburn and Nelson also the labor party gained two seats and one each at Manchester, Salford, In Lincolnshire, as well as in Lan-

A labor man has aise triumphed at Croydon, in spite of its proximity to London villadom. Official Liberals will do well to take note of these remarkable labor tri-umphs. They indicate that in the near future, as we have often contended there will be only two possible political parties, the party of Labor and the party of Capital. are the problems of the future.

Bocialism stands for nothing so much as it does for the destruction of the wage system. In this fraudulent device it recognizes the wrong that makes untold millions toil from their roung unabood to the grave, receive of life, in order that a few men may obtain from the labor of others more wealth than they could spend for their wn necessities if they were to live ten thousand years.

uffers, The wage system is the hateful thing that must be rooted out before labor can obtain what it creates. It is the bindgeon that capitalism uses to enrich itself at the expense of others. And so long as it shall exist, there can only be comparative degrees of the rong that will follow its dominion because, under it, capitalism will never pay more for labor than it is compelled to pay, and all history shows that it is seldom compelled to pay more than the inflorer requires to live.

That man really works for capitalism who seeks to benefit labor without recognizing the prime necessity of destroying the wage system that robs labor. It matters not how sincere he may be or how carnest he may be. The result is the same. He may reduce, to a small extent, the amount of the robbery, but the reduction will constitute only a small part of the that are not quite so disastrous to the toiler, he may appear to have helped him, but he has, in fact, delayed the coming of the time when labor shall not be robbed at all-when it shall have what it produces

How much of justice will the coal cressed 20 per cent.? There will be less suffering, it is true. There will these when it is considered that the coal trust could increase the wages of the miners 200 per cent, and still obtalp a profit of 100 per cent, at the present selling price of coal?

These wrongs, in varying degrees, exists.

It is blindness, except for present necessities, to seek to decrease by a trifle the robbery of the wage system unless these efforts be nec bery at the earliest possible moment by destroying the system itself.

THE QUESTION OF INCENTIVE. Two news items in the daily press of Monday, Dec. 1, illustrate very plainly where the incentive under Socialism would come from. One item gives an account of a sixteen-year-old bank bers, and who defended the bank's strong box against big odds and finally gave up his life. This youth did not have time to think of any reward that he might receive for protecting his employers' interests; it was duty which impelled him to give up his life. The other case was that of a young nursa who rendered valuable assistance in looking after the wants of the injured in a railroad wreck. Neither one of these beroic deeds had gold as an inducement to act, but the mere thought of duty and to relieve distress was incentive enough for them to act as they did. There are many cases similar to these happening every day and not one of them is impelied to sacrifice himself or herself on account of the competitive system's great incentive—gold.— Iowa Socialist.

A WARNING TO NEW READERS.

The party which The Worker supports is known in the nation as the Socialist Party. In New York, on acount of certain provisions of the election laws, it is obliged to call itself the Social Democratic Party; its emblen in New York is the Arm and Torch. The Socialist Labor Party is an en tirely acparate and hostile organiza-Leon. It is important that the distinct tion be made clear, as a study of the election returns shows that the S. L. P. gets many votes not intended for it. n account of the similarity of names. The present Socialist Party was formed three years ago by the union of the old Social Democratic Party, organized in 1897, with the majority faction of the old Socialist Labor Party, which had split in the summer

This Socialist Party or Social Democratic Party polled about 97,000 votes in 1900, with Eugene V. Debs and Joi Harriman as its national candidates in 1902 it increased its vote to about 230,000. The Socialist Labor Purty polled less than 35,000 in 1900 and about 50,000 in 1902.

The leading question of party policy at issue in the split of 1800 was that of the attitude of the party toward the trade unions. The opponents of De Leonism held that the party, as the political organization of the working class, and the unions, as its economic organization, should work fraternally. though independently, in their sepa-rate fields. The De Leonites main tained that it was necessary to mash" all existing unle

Since the split while the Socialist Party or Social Democratic Party has vigorously attacked expitalism and taught Socialist principles, the Socialist Labor Party, disgracing its once henorable name, has devoted its efforts almost exclusively to two obfects: First, to hamper the growth of the Socialist Party; second, to attack, undermine, or disrupt the trade unlons

By Horace Traubel.

The world that is to be must be a world without social antagonisms. This does not mean a world of saints It means a world in which the saint is possible. It does not mean a world which the giant may be developed.

The world now believes that nothing decent can come to it without a fight. We are not supposed to be on good terms with each other unless we are capable of war. We are supposed to be hereditary and constitutional enemies. We are to take care of ourselves. Each man his own separated entity. Take care is to the individual aw. The cost of taking care of the elf, of shaping all life into attributes of the self, is social contrariefy and death. The bill is paid in blood

But in the world that is to be every child will find itself introduced to a community of friends. No child will shrink from birth. Now I can imagine the children debating with themselves back in space whether it is safe to venture into this caste-strewn world. The new child will find itself welcome. It will find all the hands there are our stretched offering it succor and care The new world will inject no threat upon the cradle. The child may sleep all its sleep screnely. No clouds will surreptitiously play over its unguessyouth.

You have believed that men must be perfect before justice can come. But man is potentially perfect. You have not tried man by the real standards The new world will have no other,

It is that of the home. The new world will not play traitor to its own good will. This world will not play sheak upon the man. Men will live unafraid. Men will not tremble with a last cent. Men with the last cent will be as well off as men with the first. Men will not keep life suspended over analyses. The new world will make men feel secure. Man will not in this world feel like an allen. Man will migrate anywhere and find his liberties there before him. That is, find his living. For to talk about liberty to a man without a living is the last crime of cant.

The world as it is to be is to be a home. It is not to be a home for a few or for the good but for all, including the evil. This world will make little of evil. It will offer so many incentives for good, evil will find itself at a loss for a motive.

The world as it is to be is to be the world of the body and the soul, Every inch of any man's body is as sacred as any inch of any other man's body and as much worth maintaining in its integral cleanliness. Civilization means cleanliness. It means enough out of the universal plenty to work with and lonf with. It means a condition in which all the dangerous edges are

The world as it is to be could not exist under the dominion of the lords of the soil and the soul. For he who ords it over the soil lords it over the And he who thinks that the actory is made for him rather than that he is made for the factory. And he who thinks the tools of the world, toil of the world, can be branded to the chest of privilege. And he who thrusts too deep a palm into the com-mon fund. He might as well be dead. For the world we are preparing for is not a world whose artifice will shield his rapacity. STATE AUTONOMY.

Simons, Martin and Others on Questions of Party Organization. The Worker has been obliged, since election, to devote a great deal of attention to internal party affairs. Much as we regret the necessity of infringing upon space that might other wise be used for propaganda matter we realize the importance of free and general discussion of party questions and desire to give the fullest oppor tunity for it in our columns. mount of such matter pressing for admission has, however, been so great that the publication of some important communications has been long de layed. We now bring together several such articles on the state autor and connected questions.

[Article by W. G. Critchlow, State ecretary of the Socialist Party in Ohio, written in November, I

So much abuse has been thrust up has fared at the hands of its opponents as has the term "Socialism" at the hands of the capitalist papers. It appears that the opponents of state autonomy in the party organization having been unable to meet the argu ments of the "autonomists," have at tempted to vulgarize the term with the intent of hiding the real issue until such time as the advocates of centralization could come forth and control the field.

State autonomy properly applied means the right of each stare to conduct its own business as pertains organization, propaganda and fluancial matters. It means that the state or-ganizations will be held responsible for the safe conduct of the affairs of their respective states. The placing of this responsibility means the developing of large army of workers and speakers that could not be otherwise reached. It means a better organization of each It means that each state will be conduct a better and more thorough propaganda than were this responsiennization. "It allows the national organization to conduct the general and executive work of the party in place of confining them to the routing details of the entire nation and hav-ing no time to do the more important

State autonomy does not mean that Wisconsin can refuse the national orcontention a fist of their state locals; that Kathan can abolish the dues-pay-ing system, that the California comrades can fuse with another political separate list and form of printed supplies. No indeed, comrades, state nutonomy does not allow of this. If the national constitution does really allow of these things now it is then a matter to be remedled at the very first opportunity.

There should be uniformity of printed supplies to be issued by the national organization and sold to the locals direct in the unorganized states and only to the State Committees in the organized states. There should be a compulsory dues system enforced upon the states. There should be a perfect system of monthly reports from the states to the national headquarters. Now to apply these ideas will not about state autonomy in the least. They are simply reforms made necessary by experience. We certainly did not expect to launch out into a new system of organization and have it perfected at once, did we? Why no, of course not. So now these things must be done to correct the abuses to which state autonomy has been put in the past year.

Our organization has onigrown the old form and we must not retrogress. We must look forward and adopt progressive measures. Our organiza ton is here too large and nawleldy to headquarters. The national organiza tion could not have done the work of the past campaign. I do not believe that they could have done the work of three of the larger State Committees work in this state during the past year than the national organization could

We must have state autonomy coper or later as a permanent meas its being abolished we will be forced to return to it by force of the manner in which the political laws of the country are enacted. We now vote by states; get official standing by states. All the election laws are made by states and therefore the Socialis Party must be organized with th states as units of the party or dis-

We now allow the cities fo conduct their own business and organize them-selves into ward clubs. This is local cess wherever the organization is large enough to warrant the division rect principle for the organization of cities then it is likewise correct for the ganization to have a strong centralized power at national headquarters and they doing all the business direct with the locals why would it not be well to extend the form of organisation and abolish the locals entirely and have the national headquarters to do all business direct with the members, and sible to no one except the national or ganization. This would be centralise

Then with a centralized power and the National Committee doing all the party business it would be impossible for them to do the necessary work in getting the tickets on the ballet where we have not yet gained official stand-ing and as a result it would became mary to have a state organization without any means of support and in would be forced to adopt the form organization that we now enjoy-state

Without state autonomy, Ohio would not have obtained official standing and become the third party in the state this year.

No, comrades, we must not abolish state autonomy but we must correct its abuses. To abolish it would mean reactionary policy that it would take years to overcome. The organization with the ever growing movement. We must pay no attention to the wails of discontent that occasionally emanate from the national headquarters against state autonomy. They want more power and there lies many dangers in granting it to them. have shown what they could do had they a little more constitutional power. If the officers at national headquarters would be given the authority to expel Western Socialist locals to club the American Labor Union out of exist exce and then change the name of the Socialist Party to the Union Labor Party they would be much pleased.

However, they are not going to have this power and the Socialist Party is going to retain the form of organiza tion which it adopted at the Unity Convention in 1901 and under which we have made such wonderful and suprecedented progress during the Past year."

[Circular letter from the Local Quorum of the Ohio State Committe at Dayton to members of the National Committee and to the various State Sceretaries, dated Nov. 27, 1902.1

Comrades:-We beg to call to your ttention some of the acts of the Na tional Secretary of the Socialist Party. We find that it is necessary to bring these things to your attention, as be cems unwilling to give us any eatis taction whatsoever. First, we will quote Section 4, Article 6, of the na-tional constitution, which bears on the case in question:

"In states and territories in which there is one central organization affiliated with the party and representing at least ten local organizations in dif-ferent parts of such state or territory respectively, the state or ferritorial or-ganization shall have the sole jurisdiction of the members residing within their respective territories, and the sole propaganda, organization and financial offairs within such state or territory and the National Committee and subcommittee or officers thereof shall have no right to interfere in such mat-ters without the consent of the respective state or territorial organizations.

Now this part of the constitution is very plain and there is certainly no excuse for not being able to comprehend its meaning. One of the came dissatisfied with the form of nembership cards in use in Ohio and, majority or use the referendum to give ion to their dissatisfaction, ap plied direct to the National Secretary for a supply of membership cards, thus ignoring their City Central Committee and state organization. As soon as our state Secretary learned of this, he informed National Secretary Greenbaum that to furnish this order would be a rielation of the national constitution and he should not therefore supply the branch as requested. The National Secretary promptly replied that they had furnished the order, and cialmed authority from the National Commit-tee for so doing. However, he was very careful to not mention the national constitution at all. Upon re-ccipt of this our State Secretary, W. G. Crifchlow, wrote him a very warm let-ter, telling him in plain words what he thought and that he was meddling where he had no business, ams was quite lengthy letter and dealt in tail with the point at issue. In reply to this National Secretary Greenbaum said that he was in the habit of doing lusiness this way is the past and in addition to this he again claimed authority from the National Commit-tee for his action. It is a noticeable thing that the authority he quotes also mentions due stamps; and of course, in standing upon this ground, he also to anybody who has the cash to pay for them. We cannot get any satisfactory explanation from the National Secretary as to his act nor will be acknowledge that he is wrong.

Now, we are not trying to argue as to the justness of the national consti-tution at all, but we do insist that this is an open violation of the law of the party and the National Secretary has no right to meddle in the affairs of a state such as Ohio which has been progressing so nicely in the past year. It is indeed a serious matter when the National Secretary will co-operate with some dissatisfied person or set of per-sons in an organized state. This has raised quite a rumpus in this state and we refuse to allow it to pass unnoticed. tional Secretary Greenbaum taking the law-making power into his own hands and running things to suit himself. He has assumed power before this that was not given him by the from other State Committees have

The truth of the whole matter is that National Secretary Greenbaum is ac prejudiced against the present form of organization that he takes every opportunity to help breek it down. He tional constitution provides for an or ganization by states. He has no righ to use his personal prejudices to the detriment of the party in any state His business is very clearly outlined in the national constitution and if he will follow those instructions he will have no time to meddle with the de

Quorum wishes to emphasize its pro-Greenbaum in meddling in the affairs of Ohio by selling membership cards, of a different design than is in use in Ohio, to a branch of one of the state locals and we insist upon his attending to his duties as outlined in the con-already organized states. The national constitution cannot be changed by the National Secretary nor the National Committee. It can only be altered by a referend sist upon our rights as is guaranteed by the national constitution and we call upon the National Committee at their meeting at St. Louis in January to take such action as will protect from such meddlesome acts in the Members Local Quorum, Ohio State W. G. CRITCHLOW,

[Communication to The Worker by Charles R. Martin of Local Toledo, dated Nov. 30, 1902.1

Editor of The Worker:-A communication from Local Dayton, Ohio, came to the attention of the City Central Committee (Local Toledo) to-day, that was considered of importance enough to merit publicity in your paper for the enlightenment of members generally and of those in Ohio in particular, as tending to show the confusion that we are up against, and offering a text for discussion of same. Under date of Nov. 22, our very efficlent State Secretary sent out a cirular letter calling for the nomination member of the National Committee, as provided for in Article2, Sections 1 and 2, of the national constitution. Section 2, Article 19, of our state constitution provides that such nominarote taken in November.

The letter from Local Dayton is nominating Comrade W. G. Critchlow. our State Secretary, for member of National Committee. Accompanying this is a circular letter, of the same date, of which the following is a copy: "Mr. E. I. Rodgers, Secretary Local Dayton, etc.
"Dear Comrade:-Your note at hand advising me of my nomination as a candidate for National Committeeman from Ohio by Local Dayton of the So clalist Party.

"I feel it would be best for m give you a clear understanding of the ideas that I hold in connection with the state work, so that my position may not be misunderstood. You know there has been some wrangling in the party lately as to the various phases of state autonomy as well as to the fusion affair in California, where o movement has come out and openly fused with a pure and simple labor party

"I am unalterably opposed to fusion whatsoever, whether it be with a clear-cut capitalist party or a pure and-simple labor party with the capi talists backing it. I have carefully read all the details of the California affair, as well as the arguments pro and con, and I take the stand that a ompromise has been effected and th National Committee must take steps to right it at once.

"I am a state autonomist in all that the term implies. However, this form of organization has been much abused in the past year; but, nevertheless, these abuses can be easily remedied and the present form of organization kent intact. It must be remembered it is to this form of organization that our great growth is to a degree respon of the present form of organization by unscrupulous persons, or states, I advocate and will work for the followirg: A uniform charter, membership eards, application blank, dues stam formity in all regular printed supplies these to be issued by the national of ganization. There should be a compulsory dues system enforced upoz each state. There should be a perfect national headquarters each month. These are reforms for the presin no case to changing the present form of organization. I insist on th right of the states to govern then selves as to organization, propagands and financial matters, and I insist o the responsibility being so fixed that the national officers can attend to the general business with the organized states and devote the balance of time to organizing the unorganized states. This is state autonomy as I your nomination and in case of election I pledge myself to work for the on the lines as laid out above.

"Fraternally yours,
"W. G. CRITCHLOW." No time being set for the return of nominations in the circular sent out by the State Secretary, and the time for election being so close, we realize the election of Comrade Critchlow is prac-tically assured. We do not assume the situation to have been planned, but we do want to point out some of the con-tradictions in the above letter, and to once more say that Toledo voted against state autonomy in the unity, convention at Indianapolis—where it was passed to appease certain persons attitude threatened unity-mor as an expediency measure than well thought-out principle. A great majority, if not all, of the members here want to vote for someone for Na-tional Committeeman who is opposed to state autonomy.

We consider Comrade Critchlow's letter about as self-contradictory as it is possible to make it, and it is a great is possible to make it, and it is a great surprise to the workers here. State autonomy as he "sees it" would hardly be autonomy. "There should be a compulsory dues system enforced upon each state" is hardly in accord with Every Reader of The Worker should decorate his home with the

THE COMRADES' SONG.

[Written for the General German Workmen's Union by George Herwegh in April, 1864. Translated by "Hebe,"]

Work and pray, so you are told, Briefly pray, for time means gold; Poverty gains o'er your bed-Briefly pray, for time means bread.

And you dig and plough and mow. And you saw and drill and sew, And you hammer and you spin What do you, O workers, win? At the loom you toll and weave.

For their ore the rocks you cleave, And the horn of plenty still To its very brim you fill.

Where, tho, is prepared your meal? Where may you a warm hearth feel? Where for you a sword so sharp?

Everything by you is wrought, But of all for you there's naught! And of all things but alone, Is the chain you forge, your own. Chain that round your body clings,

That has beht your spirits' wings, That is the reward for you. Gems you raise from darkest mine,

Are but made for rogues to shine; Cloth you weave, but curse and fear Bears for you in soldiers' gear. Houses that your hands erect,

Have no roof you to protect. Those, whom you with all provide, Tread on you in baughty pride. Human bees, did nature true

Give but honey unto you?

Have you lost the sting you bore?

Waken, laborers, to your right! Learn at last to know your might! All the wheels will cease to go If your strong arm wants it so.

When your burden you will spurn, When aside the plough you lay, When, it is enough, you say.

Break the double yoke in twain! Break the dread of slavery's pain! Break the pain of slavery's dread! Bread means freedom, freedom bread!

REVIEW OF THE CAMPAIGN.

Report of New York State Committee.

Shows the Magnitude of the Work Done, the Difficulties Encountered, and the Hocessity of Still More Strenuous Effort in the Future.

The following is the report of the State Committee of the Social Demoeratic Party of New York on its work during the last half-year, including the late campaign.]

We offer the following to the con rades as a concise review of the work of the State Committee during its incumbency in office.

The following comrades constitute the State Committee: Emil Neppel, I. Phillips, Herman Reich, Henry L. Slobolin, Leonard D. Abbott, H. C. was ordered and distributed during the Bowerman, and James N. Wood of New York; Dr. Chas. Furman of Kings: Chris. Rub of Queens; and Godfrey Lehner of Westchester. The offi-cers are: Henry L. Slobodin, Corresponding and Financial Secretary; James N. Wood, Assistant Financial James N. Wood, Assistant Financial Secretary; H. C. Bowerman, Recording Secretary; Emil Neppel, Treasurer; Herman Reich, Literature Agent.

ganized on the eve of a campaign and had immediately to prepare the plans and the material for Socialist propaganda. This is had to do under great difficulties. There was a paid Organ-izer, Comrade F. J. Spring, in the field, at the expense of about $35 a week. Great quantities of printed matter had to be ordered. Yet there were no funds available. On the contrary, there was a permanent deficit, which was growing larger every week.

by the lassitude and inertness which alled among the party members But gradually the coal striks, which began to engross public attention, roused also the Socialists to action, roused also the Socialists to action, and when the campaign developed into full swing all the comrades were found at their posts.

It was the intention of the State Committee to prepare early in the campaign the bulk of the necessary litera-ture; but in this, as in its other plans, it was frustrated by the absence of the cesary funds. It is one of the greatest drawbacks in our work that we start the campaign without any funds. The contributions come late in the campaign, while speakers have to be sent out and literature ordered early in the campaign. The result is that the State Committee is compelled to borrow money, to be tardy in the payment of bills, and to be handleapped in many ways. Comrade Hanford made two agitation tours through the state. The tours extended over eleven weeks. The cost was about $480, a very small part of which was contributed by the locals. The greater part had to be paid out of the campaign fund of the State Committee. As Comrade Hanford's personal presence was the main factor in arousing the comrades to activity, it was necessary to arrange meetings in as many places as possible. In r previous campaign has Comrade Ha ford worked so hard and so long. The result to bimself was that at the en of the campaign be was completely exhausted and his health impaired. left a position where he was earning comparative case much mor he State Committee paid him, is evident that he has done his sha during the past campaign.

work has been published before may add that he has given saisfactio to the State Committee as well as t the comrades at large. All his work was done in the state outside of New York City. The comrades of the state have, however, contributed but a small share of his expenses. His expenses during the campaign were about $520, of which $100 is still due to him. Comrade W. T. Brown could devote but a few days to this state, as he had made engagements to speak in other states during the campaign.

Comrade Alexander Jonas made German agitation tour. There are only a few places, outside of New York City, where a German speaker is gladly reseived. These are Johnstown falo. In other places even German comrade prefer to have an English speaker, claiming that all Germans rho may care to come to a Socialis meeting will understand and prefer an

In our election campaign we were terribly handicapped by the name which at one time the party in this state was compelled to assume. Our speakers and our literature agitate at times for Socialism and not for Soweeklies published outside of this state siderable circulation in this state. And every one of them, as well as every piece of Socialist literature exh as was published by the State Committee, spoke for the Socialist Party and not for the Social Democratic Party. The "Appeal to Reason," which enjoys a popularity among the rural Socialists and is circulated by some of our locals for propaganda pu poses, came out in one of its issues b fore election with the design of the Arm and Hammer, the official emblem of the Socialist Labor Party, designating it as the emblem of Labor. The cir culation of The Worker in this state is. cient even to neutralize the misinformation disseminated through other mediums. To add to this confusion, the Social Democratic ticket on the ballot had the Socialist Labor Party icket on its left and the Liberal Dem cratic on its right. There was thus langer that the Socialist voters of this state and especially the new converts to Socialism might be led to forget or to ignore the fact that the Socialist movement of the United States was represented in this state by the Social Democratic Party and that to vote for the Socialist Labor Party is to invite and encourage dissension and division in the Socialist movement. The State Committee saw the necessity of doing all in its power to keep that fact before the voters. This it could do only through the medium of agitation leaflets. But there are one million and a half of voters in this state and something like an adequate supply of literature meant millions of caffets and an outlay of thousands of dollars. The State Committee did not have at its disposal cash funds. But it made an estimate of the prob-able income and gave orders accord-

It was absolutely impossible for the State Committee to compel the locals to pay cash for literature. That would been to withhold it from the locals. The comrades made the air blue with clamor if the Committee happened to be tardy with the literature, and were equally indignant when requested to pay for it.

The total receipts of the State Committee for literature are $428, of which Local New York paid $233 and the rest of the state paid $195. The liabilities of the locals for literature are about $500, distributed as follows: Local New York, $320; Albany, $4.70; Union Springs, $2.30; Buffalo, $10.06; Ticon-deroga, $2.71; Gloversville, $7.10; deroga, $2.71; Gloversville, $7.10; Frankfort, $3; Herkimer, $3.43; Water lown, $5.80; Onelda, $2.76; Rochester $58; Niagara Falis, $1.85; Utica, $5.05; Syracuse, $7.10; Highland Falls, $1.94 Middletown, $1.80; Newburgh, $1.30; Island City, $7.10; Troy, $4.70; Pearl River, $2.95; Schenectady, $5.28 Corning, $3.50; Hornellsville, $1.30; Painted Post, $1.50; Mt. SOCIALISM AND

"The Socialist Party, in convention assembled, declares that the trad mion movement and independent political action are the emancipating factors of the wage-working class The trade union movement is the atural result of capitalist production and represents the economic side of the working class movement. We con ider if the duty of the Socialists to join the unions of their respective rades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor organi-tations. We recognize that trade unions are by historical necessity organized on neutral grounds as far as political affiliation is concerned.

"We call the attention of trade nists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trade union forces to-day, while it may re-sult in lessening the exploitation of labor, can never abolish that exploitation. The exploitation of labor will to an end only when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the eople. It is the duty of every trade dependent political action on class-con cious lines, to join the Socialist Party and to assist in building up a strong political movement of the wage working class, whose ultimate aim and object must be the abolition of wage slavery and the establishment of a cooperative state of society based on the republicans, Seconded by Democrats. Start the Leasion Ausniniously for Capitalist Corporations, but the Voice of the Workers Will Be Heard Through Carey, MacCartney, and Ransdee.

ROSTON, Jan. 12.—The customary routine involved in the process of er-ganization was disturbed on the open-ing day of this session of the Massachusetts Legislature by the introduc chusetts Legislature by the introduc-tion of an order by Representative Cal-lender seeking to instruct the Attorsey, General to appear before the Suprema Court and pray for an injunction to re-strain the Massachusetts gas com-panies from voting to add $20,000,000 of watered slock in violation of the state have, at a meeting called for the following day. The leaders of the House attempted to choke off con-sideration of the order by moving the adoption of last year's rules until new ones were adopted. The result would be the laying over of the order until the following day, too late to make it

Callender protested against this pro cedure and was supported by Representative Carey, who denounced the attempt to siderrack the order by the use of parliamentary technicalities as aiding the violation of law, which in turn involved a species of anarchy, respectable perhaps, but nevertheless archy of a kind far worse than which respectable people professed to

The order was laid over until the fternoon, and then taken up and passed. The Attorney-General, upor receiving if administered a rebuke to the Legislature for "exceeding its jurisdiction," and Callender thereupon introduced an order requesting the At torney-General to co-operate in a suit already in process against the gas companies. Meanwhile the companies directors held their meeting and the speaker Myers was re-elected, there being no opposition except from the Socialists, who voted for Carey. The Democrats decided not to run a didate, evidently because they did wish to antagonise Speaker Myers and injure their chances for rec and committee appointments, ceeding clearly illustrative caliber of the Democratic party.

Committees Safely "Fixed,"

The committee appointments, so far as the Socialists were concerned, were quite what was expected. The Com-nittee on Labor is composed almost entirely of the same members who the new members are no better tha the old ones. That Speaker Myers in nores the Socialist members in the make-up of this committee, when Carey and MacCartney have come to be the acknowledged spokesmen of Labor in the House, is eloquent Testiment of his capitalist class-consciousness and that the Socialists are the work ing-class representatives.

WE WANT COAL, NOT WORDS.

Never was the utter brutality of the [trated than by the "coal famine" now prevailing all over the land.

Millions of people are suffering the seenest privation, men and women and children are dring every day, because of the high price of fuel.,

We cry for relief, and "the Christian gentlemen to who God in His infinite wisdom has given control of the property interests of this country" respond by putting the price a notch higher and then, sitting at ease in their well heated offices or their comfortable homes and clubs, sanctimentously prating of the sacred rights of property and the wicked improvidence and ingratitude of the poor.

We cry again for relief, and the men whom these Christian gentlemen have pominated and whom workingmen's votes have sent to City Hall and State House and Capitol to make and judge and execute the laws say they have no nower to act. They tell us to be patient, to respect law and order, to be frugal and industrious, to contemplate the proof of our prosperity in the increase of coroprate dividends.

But, we say, we who work and shiver or seek for work and freeze, we have no share in those dividends. We are frugal already, because we cannot help it. Our industry does not save our wives and bables from suffering. Law and order does not cook our food or warm our wretched tenements. Patience sometimes ceases to be a virtue. And we want coal

Then again they reply that they car do nothing. They have no power to act. SACRED PROPERTY RIGHTS ARE IN THE WAY. The constitution is in the way. Everything is in the way, when it is a question of saving us from the men who own the coal.

Government is powerful when property rights are threatened. The contitution has never prevented the isnance of injunctions and the use of troops to break strikes. But now property rights are threatening us-nay, olning our very lives into profit. What does Government do?

The most that the strenuous Roose velt or the benevolent Hoar or the most truculent of the Democrats-even the Democrats, with the advantage of being an irresponsible minority-the most they offer us is that, perhaps after a while, when they have talked about it long enough, they may take the tariff off coal! WE ARE NOW PAYING FROM $5 TO $15 A TON ABOVE THE NOR-MAL PRICE FOR COAL, THE TARIFF IS 67 CENTS A TON. IT IS A CENEROUS PROPOSITION IS IT NOT?

And the same men who control the Coal Trust control also the Shipping

The removal of the tariff would not reduce the price of coal even G7 cents a ton, probably not one cent. And its only real permanent effect would be to hasten a little the day when the Coal Trust will become international, as the Oil Trust and the Shipping Trust and the Tobacco Trust already are. In our opening sentence we put the

There is no reason to believe that there is a real coal famine, a real and serious lack of coal. There is every reason to believe that coal is being deliberately held back from the market to-day.

The Worker has received trustworthy information that an officer of the Eric Railroad-speaking, as he supposed, among friends who would not repeat his words-openly declared that his company, among others, was holding back coal in order to keep up the price. Trainmen on the coal-carrying roads report that enormous quantities of coal are sidetracked all along the lines. The capitalist papers are not publishing these facts. It is not their business to publish the whole truth. IT IS GOOD BUSINESS TO MAKE

AN ARTIFICIAL SCARCITY OF A COMMODITY THAT THE PEOPLE MUST HAVE. It costs no more to the mine owners to get a ton of coal mined and carried to the market now than It did a year ago. It therefore pays much better to sell one ton for ten dollars than to sell two tons at five dollars

The mine owners and their spokes men-politicians, editors, preachers, college professors, and others-are telling us that the miners are to blame for our present sufferings, because they went on strike last summer. That is a lie. Even though the strike had entailed a lack of coal at the present time-which, we maintain, it did not-it has not increased the cost of the coal that is mined and therefore has not justified the increase of prices.

Observe, too, that there was no strike espitalist system more terribly illus- in the bituminous fields; yet the price. of soft coal has been raised 50 per cent. or more. There was no strike in the oli industry; yet the price of kerosene, a partial substitute for coal, has been raised 40 per cent. or more. There was no strike in the gas works; yet the gas companies, not being allowed to raise the price of gas, have compassed the same end by reducing its quality. So here we are, suffering from AN ARTIFICAL FAMINE, RESULTING FROM THE PRIVATE OWNER SHIP OF MEANS OF PRODUCTION CONSISTING PARTLY IN THE BOUNTY OF NATURE AND PART-LY IN THE RESULT OF THE PAST LABOR OF MYRIADS OF WORKINGMEN. What are we going to do about it? . . .

To get immediate relief, something can be done-not much, but something.

Trade unions, workingmen's societies of all sorts, and workingmen and sincere sympathizers of the working class as individuals can bestir themselves to scare the capitalists and the capitalist politicians into some measure of de-DON'T THINK YOU CAN APPEAL

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

The article on 'The Socialist Party and the Trade l'nions" in our issue of December 14 seems to have struck the right apot. With all due modesty we ncede a belief that it was a pretty mod statement of the true position of the Socialist Party on this question and well adapted for circulation among trade unionists, some of whom are afraid the Socialists are working some scheme to "capture" them. A number of orders for the issue containing this article came too late to be filled and neveral readers have requested that it be printed as a leadet. To meet this demand we shall reprint the article in our isone of February 1, two weeks from to-day.

TO NEW YORK COMPADES.

We would commend the report of the State Committee of the Social Demo eratic Party of New York to the care ful attention of all comrades and sym enathizers in the state-more especially of those outside New York City.

There is probably no other state which presents such a combination of difficulties for the Socialist movement as New York. The wonderful develop ment of political corruption under Tammany and under Platt-more efficient if not more infamous than ever the rule of a Quay or an Addicks or a Carter Harrison-has engendered a evnical anathy in the great mass of the uncorrupted voters, which makes It hard to awaken them to enthusias for the Socialist ideal. The S. L. P. working for dissension and disruption is stronger and viler here than any where else, and we still suffer for it ds. Added to all this, we have the handicap of a party name different from that used in other states and oper to misconstruction by the imperfectly informed voter. All this, to say noth ing of the conservative prejudice matural to long settled rural communi

n certain parts of this state, make ou msk here a difficult one

But to the true Socialist the enumera tion of difficulties is only a stimulus to increased effort. In spite of every factory gain in this state in the late election. If we have fallen from first to second rank in the table of the Socinfist vote, it was through the greater success of our Massachusetts comndes, not through our own failure. And we have to remember that, as we are fighting capitalism in its very citadel and stronghold, the eyes of Socialists all over the country are watch ing the progress of the party in New York and that a special responsibility is thus imposed upon us.

As the report of the State Committee shows, the comrades of Greater New York have done more than their full share in the recent state campaign. They have done it cheerfully and will cheerfully do it again, to the extent of their ability. But we have a most important city campaign this year and the party in the city will feel that it has a right to devote most of its efforts for the time to its own work The responsibility for the progress of the movement "up the state". during the coming year must be borne chiefly by the locals outside New York City.

The election of 1904 will be of such importance as to require the most thorough preparatory work-presidential, congressional, state, legislative, and, in many places, local elections all coming together. About twenty-one months remain in which to strengthen the party organization, extend its work to every heretofore neglected corner of the state, and make the principles and nurposes and methods of the party familiar to every voter. It is a heavy task. The State Committee will undertake it bravely. But it must be given carnest support, financial as well as moral, in order to fulfil its obliga-

ought at once, within a month, if pos sible, be supplied with enough money to pay off all its debts. The prompt payment of the indebtedness of the locals for stamps and for literature would go far to accomplish this. A comparatively small additional contribution from each local, together with scrupulous care in the future in regard to the payment of dues would soon cover the remainder of the debt and put the State Committee in a position to meet the demand for speakers and Bterature.

Local New York is already taking steps to clear up its indebtedness to the State Committee. So, we believe, is Local Kings County. Let the movement be general and prompt and energetic, and we shall soon be able to undertake vigorous and systematic educational and organizing work throughout the state without being hampered by the incubus of unpaid bills and an empty treasury.

Comrades, with 23,400 votes to ou credit we ought not to be troubled about financial matters. Which will be the first local to clear its account and make a good contribution to meet future needs. We shall not say, "Don't all speak at once." If all speak at once, so much the better.

From all over the mine region of Pennsylvania reports come of many persons being on the blacklist; as usual, it is the men who have been the most active in behalf of their fellows and most of them are Socialists. But if the mine owners think they are goby such methods as this, they little know the temper of the working class. Blacklisting a man does not fill him with love for the blacklisters; and as for the effect on others about him, a few may be frightened into submission, as the capitalists intend, but more are roused to indignation and reminded that "Eternal vigilance is the price of

The Socialist Party has nothing to fear from without, so long as it remains true to itself. Neither by misrepresentation nor by persecution nor by conciliation measures can the forces of capitalism stop or seriously impede its progress, if it holds firmly to its complete ideal. Nor is there any serious danger of the party going astray so long at it adheres to manly and in telligent methods of discussing and deciding upon its problems. The common sense and right feeling of th rank and file can always be depended upon in the long run.

"I voted the Republican ticket for twenty years," writes a new comrade in Ohio, "so you can see how long it since I left I have got some others to come with me." Sometimes the man who is hardest to convince is the bes when we get him; he knows why he is with us and knows how to meet the objections and remove the difficulties in the way of others. It is important full of fire and spirit, should be given an opportunity to work for the cause on certain lines they can do better service than the older comrades.

"I cast my first Socialist vote last fall and there are thousands who ties. Which is nowhere stronger than | would feel just as I do if the matter | that light before?

was only presented to them," writes a subscriber in Menton, Ohlo, "The har vest is ripe in Ohio for an immens rote. The soft coal trust has a stea on of $1.50 a ton; this, in addition to a 50-per-cent, steal on kerosens, on top of all the other thievery, is getting off a good many eyes." Indeed it is, not only in Ohio, but all over the coun try. It is safe to say that thousand tickets "just once more" in Novembe are already regretting it and are ready to come with us. The meral of this during the coming eight months, be fore the opening of the regular fall campaign, to spread a knowledge of our principles and to strengthen our organization. This is seed-time and the harvest on next election day will be in proportion to our activity now.

"Order reigns in Warsaw," was the master, when the murmurs of the Polish people had been silenced with fire and sword. It is in the same sense that the mine "operators" declare, be fore the Arbitration Commission, that "the relations between the companies and their employees had for many years been peaceful and harmonious until they were disturbed by the machinations of the officers and agent of the United Mine Workers."

we find an article by Arthur M'Ewen entitled "Why Bret Harte Died Poor" Some sentences in it are striking-con sidering who is the writer and what is the paper in which they appear-strik ing for their truth. We quote:

"Bret Harte died poor because his whole life long he worked for wages and knew of no other way to fill his purse. • • • "Had Bret Harte possessed a grain

"Or he could have saved his wages and loaned his surplus out at interest either personally or through a bank and his money would have worked for him while he slept. "Wages, Bret Harte ought to have been keen enough to understand, are what a man gets by the sale of the labor of his own hands or head, where for you by others."

One is tempted to make invidious re marks about a man who sees the truth of the Socialist position so clearly and can state it so well as M'Ewen here does and who yet goes on selling his ability to a paper that upholds the profit-and-wages system and that sys ematically seeks to sidetrack all so cialistic tendencies into the swamp of capitalistic Democracy.

We can understand it, of course; th "American" can afford to pay probably twenty times the wages to good writers that the Socialist movement could pay. But the explanation re minds us of an anecdote of Dr. John on. He had been scoring an ac quaince for some dishonorable con duct, and was met with the response "But, Doctor, a man must live." Th caustic old philosopher's reply was "Sir. I fall to see the necessity."

After all, however, "God is served by the mammon of unrighteousness." The "American." Inconsistent and often inus as is its policy and reactionar; as is its aim, does start people think ing; and a man once started in that line cannot always be stopped or turned aside.

THE BUSINESS IDEAL

What has been the message of so ciety to the rising generation for many years? Is it not just this? "You who are to be the men of thicountry, every one of you must become a business man if he hopes to provide comfortably for himself and his family, and to be rated as a free and

It is to be wondered at. Does Geo. N. Palmer, the Democratic leader at Albany, really believe in himself and what he is doing politically, or is he playing an impudent game of bunco in playing an imputent game of ounce in his proposal to take the judges from under partisan influence, by trans-ferring the designation and assign-ment of Supreme Court justices from the Governor to the Court of Appeals? Whence comes the Court of Appeals? From Heaven? Or raked out, like the lovernor, from the three heaps of New class property politicians-BAD, WORSE and WORST? Give us

It has been decided by the Tuscan branch of the Habsburgh family forth-with to pay the Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, who accompanied his runaway sister, the Crown Princess of Saxony, his share of the family for-tune and so dismiss him from the family. What, then, is the family? Is possible that even royal families also, are only small groups of persons physically knotted together to enclose mong them for their own use the collection of property called their for-tune? We used to think it a dignity of blue blood, nobility, and divine appointment; and here it fizzles down to a divvy—giving one of the bandits his share of the booty and kicking him down the hillside. The running away of the woman was womanly; but this with a bag of money as the equivalent of his royal gall, dignity, and descart shows that Americanism has con-quered the world-including the Court

The case of a caudy boy whose eye was smashed with golf-stick wielded by a wealthy sport ing gentleman is but one. The jury awarded over six thousand deliars to the boy. Not a bad work for a Hillis, if only he could keep the day's though out of it. But he cannot. So it is proposed to have American Labor represented on the committee as di-vided into two bodies, organized and unorganized labor. Thus in the very act of honoring Beecher it is attempted to cherish a self-conscious and aggressive scabbery. People who are concerned to know ow the laws of property and its custons which now together seem to make up civilization will fare under Socialism may find an instructive little example of progress by neglect in the case of Charters, the Mayor of An-sonia, Coun. Before the last election Charters had a court injunction over his head as a labor leader, which would certainly have proved him a criminal and sent him to jail had he not been made Mayor of the city. This is now the court's decision: "Condi-tions have so changed since this charge was brought that it is now deemed inadvisable to compel His Honor to stand trial." If Charters were a Socialist and the election had been national here is the revolution in an Ansonia nutshell.

Sidney, Neb., is situated in a timber less district and the folk down there are all shivering in the grash of ley winter without home fires. Now the Union Pacific Railroad has a big staout places where coal can be quietly alde-tracked for speculative purposes. The Sidney people demand that the scal dealers be supplied from that stock that they may buy and be warmed. But that coal was mined for elling at the highest price and no or mon's necessities and must not be for mon's necessities and must not be touched till that price is said. Pathetic Letter of a Russian Entice There Under False Pretenses an Now an Unwilling Seab.

"Mines of Siberia, Nov. 27, 1902. 'My dear Sargy Alexandrowitch:

"I am going now through a terribi ordeal. As you know, I have not worked lately in Mount Carmei more tlan a week. An offer was made to me and gladly consented, which I now rewe are twelve scabs living in dally terror for our heads. Second, th work is terribly hard. The coal is soft a yard high. We are crawling all the line in water. We got dry bread by near the mines; there is a force around us and the village is about twenty miles from here. We must buy everything from the stores of the olupany and pay extortionate prices For instance, for rubbers, which cost $2.50 in Mount Carinel, they charge here $5. "I shake your hand from my tran. Sincerely yours,

The letter is worth considering, no only for the light it throws on condi-tions in the West Virginia mines, but also for the suggestion it gives that matifiable as is the feeling of indigna tion against scabbing, the scab may have much to say in his own defense Bobble Burns said of all who "go : kennia' wrang"--

One point must still be greatly dark the movin' why they do it: And just as lamely can we mark ho far, perhaps, they rue it."

It is safe to say that the majority hase who are gullty of scabbing do it under hard compulsion of want, and cases are myriad, as illustrated in entrapped into a position where they have no other choice. Wanton and wanton and wilful thieves. of wisdom and humanity in the legislator would be, not so much to punish temptation to theft and make honest living easy. So the part of wisdom for organized labor is not so much to condemn or punish the scab as to re move the temptations to scribbing and the conditions which allow men to be so forced into an unhappy and degrading position as in the writer of this letter.

THACKEDAY ON SUCCESS.

I have seen too much of success life to take off my hat and huzza to it, as it passes in its gilt coach; and would do my little part with my neighhers on foot that they should not gape with too much wonder nor applaud too locally. Is it the Lord Mayor going in state to mince-pies and the Mansion Honse? Is it poor Jack of Newgate's procession, with the sheriff and Javelin men conducting him on his last jour-ncy to Tyburn? I look into my heart. and think I am as good as my Lord Mayor, and know I am as bad as Ty-burn Jack. Give me a chair and red gown and a pudding before me, and I could play the part of Alderman very well and sentence Jack after dinner. Starve me, keep me from books and honest people, educate me to love dice. gin, and pleasure, and put me on Hounslow Heath, with a purse before me, and I will take it.—Thackeray, in "Henry Esmond."

State Committee. It must not be assumed that it was all contracted durexisted when this State Committee assumed office.. It is evident that should all the locals pay their and return all the lists with money collected on them, the State Committee would be enabled to settle nearly all ts accounts. The Socialist Labor Party used all neans at its command to discredit the Socialist movement in the eyes of many who would otherwise be converts to the cause. It published a long concection of calumnies against the Social Democratic Party, and it availed liself of the "report" of the National Committee, which it republished in thousands of leaflets and circulated, to gether with its own calumnies, for the purpose of discrediting the Social Democratic Party. The burden of the agita tion of the speakers, leaflets, and pa-per of the Socialist Labor Party was the basest vilideation of the Social Democratic Party and everyone nected with it. This could not but result in infury to the Socialist canno This can be clearly perceived by com-paring the percentage of the Socialist vote (both partles) in places where the Social Democratic agitation predomi-nated with the percentage in places where the Socialist Labor Party was stronger. Only the main centers coclallet propaganda are taken for the object which the leaders of the L. P. have set before them ent or retard the progress of the Socialist movement and growth of the Socialist vote. In this they undo succeeded wherever the vulgarisms of the S. L. P. speakers and writers were very much in svidence. How, under such circumstances, many upright and sincere Socialists-and many of this character are still to be for vall upon themselves to adhere to this party, is past explanation. It is also significant that the S. L. P. gained votes largely in places where the agita tion of the Social Democratic Party was stronger and lost in its own strongholds. This, we repeat, is due to the carelessness of our own comrades who do not advertise sufficiently the name and emblem of the Social Democratic Party and continue distributing papers and literature that speak of the Socialist Party and not of the Social Democratic Party. The comrades often reproach them-selves and one another that their work for Socialism is confined to the campaign period only. We must finally nize defects in our agitation but also to remedy them. In our work we have before us three chief objects-to send out agitators, to publish literature, to raise the necessary funds.

I. We shall shortly, in co-operation with the Daily Globe Publishing Association, send out Sol Fieldman for an neitation tour through the state Comrude Fieldman has given satisfaction wherever he went. His expenses to the locals will be very small.

We are also negotiating with other states of the Atlantic Coast for the establishment of a bureau for arranging interstate lecture tours.

2 While we point out the necessity of distributing only literature mentioning the Social Democratic Party remains that there is now no such literature to be had. The State Committee is willing to publish a series of agitation pamphlets and leaflets at a very low price and furnish them to the relary and stenographer to inke locals at cost, but the condition of its charge of Social Progress, and raise treasury forbids taking any steps in

2. The State Committee pever had ney on hand for agitation. It was always, as it is now, steeped in paying off old debts and making new. There is no reason for such conditions to continue. The comrades and friends are very generous in contributing to aside for the General Agitation Fund. (2) That 10 per cent. of the net income from all festivals or affairs held by any party organization in the state or by any other organization supporting the party be contributed to the General Agitation Fund. An organization would hardly miss 10 per cent. of this net income, but as there are numerous organizations, it will constitute a ource of revenue for the General Agitation Fund. (3) By the issue of 5 cents special agitation stamps to be sold to the locals at half price.

Comrades, the criticism contained in this report is not offered as a grievance of the State Committee. We merely point out defects to be remedied. The comrades should not leave this task to the few men on the State Committee. Yours fraternally, New York State Committee.

THE SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE.

The following fable which appears under the ritle "A Fat Salary little booklet entitled "The Silly Old Dragon and Other Fables," by "Avery Quercus," published by the Straight Edge Press, 1 Seventh avenue, New York, characterizes with beautiful exactness the Social Service League of ganized by W. H. Tolman:

"A Fat Salary once invited a number of friends to a swell ding order to talk over plans for Social Progress. As the subject was a delicate one, only such guests were invited as would inspire awe by reason of their Great Names.

"The guest of honor was Hon, S. T. Policy, who comes from a very respectable family, which was further represented by Business Policy, Social Policy, Government Policy, and others, Among the other guests pres-ent were Popular Sermon, Editorial Wisdom, Good Investment, Gilt Edge Security. Watered Stock, Political and Eminent Respectability.

"The guests who were noticeable for their absence were Simple Justice, who has to work overtime an blindfolded statute on the Court House, and cannot get away for social func-tions; Equal Opportunity, who is not on good terms with the host; and Sound Principle, who has said things and has not a decent suft of clothes to

The increase of the Socialist vote in Malden, Mass., from 70 in the state election of 1901 to 424 in that of 1902 has convinced the comrades there that, if they work as they should, it is only a matter of one or, at the most, two years till the Socialist Party will carry city. They have accordingly gone work in earnest to build up the party organization, increase the circu Intion of the Socialist press, and circulate literature, and they intend to keep at it till the victory is won.

KINGS COUNTY COMMITTEE

At the meeting of the Kings County committee on Jan. 10, Organizer Atkinson reported having sent letters to the trade unions inviting them to The tilobe Conference to meet in the So-clutist Club on Jan. 17. He has re ceived several calls from trade unions for speakers on Socialism. In connection with the new City Executive Committee Comrade Atkinson reported that a sub-committee had been appointed to prepare a prelimi-nary plan on the power and scape of the committee, its source of income and other details, to be submitted at the next meeting.

It was decided that instead of a May

Day demonstration a May Day festival be held at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, that the Organizer invite as many trade unions as would be likely to participate, and that the proceeds of the festival go to the Dally Globe. Comrades Well, Chas. Meyer, Jahnder. Burrowes, and Hopkins were electe as a committee of arrangements.

It was decided that the County Conceum and the Organizer was instructed to make arrangements, Burrowes, Droste, and F Comrade: Burrowes, Droste, and Furman were appointed to get up suitable mottoes to be hung up in the Labor Lyceum. WHAT IS SOCIALISM?

Socialism is a theory of a system of human society based on the common ownership of the means of production and the carrying on of the work of production by all for the benefit of all. In other words, Socialism means that the land, the railways, the shipping, the mines, the factories and all such things as are necessary for the production of the necessaries and comforts of life should be public property, just as our public roads, our public parks, and our public libraries are public property to-day, so that all these things should be used by the whole people to produce the goods that the whole of the people

Socialists say that this is no utopian dream, but the necessary natural out-come of the development of society. It used to be supposed that anything like the collective carrying on of any enterprise was impossible because it was thought that the personal supervision and control of the owners was absolutely necessary to the success of any such enterprise. But we see to-day that the greatest undertakings are tione which are owned by joint stock companies, in which the personal supervision of the proprietors is quite impossible, and in which the whole business is managed and carried on by puld officials, who might just as well be paid by the community to carry on the enterprise in the interest of the general Body of the people as be paid y a few wealthy men to carry it on for their profit.

To-day goods are not produced to satisfy human needs; they are simply produced to provide profit for the class which owns the means of production. It is only for the sake of this profit that the property-owning class owns these means of production. As a conequence, we have shoddy and adulterated goods produced. Also, as this profit is simply the difference between the value of the work which the work-lug people do and the amount they recrive in wages, the actual producers never receive the equivalent of what they produce, and therefore are never able to buy it back again. It happens, therefore, that, as the machinery of production increases and workmen ara able to turn out more goods, they are thrown out of work, and they, with their wives and children, are in want and misery, not because there is any scarcity of the things they need, but because there is more of them than those who have produced them can

Under the present system, therefore, theorery increase of wealth is too often a curse to the wealth producers, sim-ply became those who produce have no ownership in the means of produc tion, and no control over the things produced.

Under Socialism, as the means of production would belong to the whole people, the whole people would have ontrol of the things produced. Every increase of wealth thou would benefit the whole community. Under the present system increased wealth means increased luxury for the few the many. In a Socialist community increased production would mean more leisure, more wealth, more means of enjoying life, more opportunities for

By the discoveries of science, the in rentions of genius, the application of industry, man has acquired such power over nature that he can now roduce wealth of all kinds as plentifully as water. There is no sound reason why poverty and want should exist anywhere on this earth. All that is needed is to establish a more equitable method of distributing the wealth already produced in such pro-fusion. That is what Socialism pro-puses to do. The work of production organized, secinized; it is necessary

o socialize dishrbution as well.
What is to be done to supplant the present system by Socialism; to substitute fraternal co-operation for the cut-throat competition of to-day? The first thing necessary is to organize the workers into a class-conscious party; that is, a party recognizing that as a class the workers are enslaved through the possession of the means of production by another class, recognizing, too, that between these two classes there is an antagonism of interest, a perpetual struggle, a constant class war, which must go on until the workers become possessed of political power, and use that power to become masters of the whole material means of production, When that has been achieved, the war of classies will be at an end, because the division of mankind into classes will have disappeared, the emancipa-tion of the working class will have been accomplished and Socialism will be here.-H. Quelch.

--- It has become an axiom that modern governments are simply com-mittees for managing the common affairs of the capitalist class.

----When the daily papers begin to discuss focialism seriously, it is the duty of focialists to see that the people learn the right of the question. --- Socialism means that the man who produces something will not have to divide up with the man who does

can"-a "twentieth century newspaper" published by Presidential aspirant William R. Hearst-printed a few days ago an alleged interview with Eugene

In this interview Comrade Dobs was reported an saying that, in his opinion, Mr. Hearst would be the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1904; that he Deba, would not be a candidate: that he would not support Hearst; and that, in his opinion, THE MINERS OF THE WESTERN PEDERATION WOULD SUPPORT HEARST.

The Worker knows Comrade Delu too well as a Socialist, on the one hand, and knows the "American" too thoroughly as a disseminator of misin formation, on the other hand, to have given my credence to the alleged interview.. We thought it worth while, record. We therefore wrote to Comrade Debs, asking how much of the interview was genuine and how much manufactured. Comrade Deba' reply

"Editor of The Worker.

"Dear Comrade:- I have seen the in terriew as published. It is notable for containing what I did not say and contiting what I did say. Beyond the statement that Hearst was looming up to Hearstism.

terview of the capitalist press further the interests it represents.
"Praternally yours,

"EUGENE V. DEBS." This is not the first time that the Hearst papers have wantonly and inexcusably lied about the Socialist movement. It will not be the last time. These papers are only a little less truthful than the average of the capitalist press. Falsehood is the stock in trade of capitalism and of its "organs of public opinion." They consider it safe to lie about Socialism and Socialists, especially-as on the eve of the election in 1900, when they published a statement that Debs would withdraw in favor of Bryan-because, as yet, we have no daily press in the English language. This experience only emphasizes the importance of hastening the establishment of such a daily press.

SOCIALIST PARTY AND LABOR PARTIES.

We present under this beading some tion of the attitude of the Socialist Party toward labor parties, as brought to the attention of the party by the action of the San Francisco and Los Angeles comrades.

L. It is my humble opinion that the situation resulting from the attitude of grave one, is a favorable one, not be cause their action was right, but be-cause it has brought about much dis-cussion in our party press and has belied to clear away some very false an attitude taken in good faith by many has opened their eyes to the fact that politics for the sake of votes and offices is espitalist politics, rotten politics, whatever name it may masquer ties is to get at the pie counter. Any means that will elect brings that end, and therefore the means are the whole

But with a Socialist party it is diferent. The end of politics is to force revolutionary change in our economic and political systems. The mere electing of a few Socialists does not secure that end. Therefore the means elect are not the important thing. And, as the important thing is the end no means can logically be employed that may in the least obscure the end.

There are no changing circumstances that can bring sufficient pressure to whatever its name, that does not ever want to land in some fat office.)

If the Labor Union party is here and t must be met, let us meet it in an moment and upright manner; let us meet it like men and not like cowards the Socialist Party to fight and destroy, neither room nor cause to fight bethe political field, and where the Sc cialist party is not already in the field a labor union party of that character would be welcomed by all comrades. All trade-union leaders do not sell out, not by any means; many could not if they would. They are not worth buying. Who would be foolish enough to buy something that he already owns and controls? I deff successful contradiction to the assertion that a large number of trade-union leaders have used or are using the trade-union movement as a stepping stone to a position with the enemies of union-

In this matter there is no middle ground. If you believe that labor is right, then when you enter the camp of the enemy you become a traitor to labor. Of course, many labor leaders do not hold their position because they believe labor is right. They are not working for a principle. They hold it because they are paid for it. They would accept a position with the devil

In my twenty years' experience as active trade-unionist (I have worked over fifteen years under ground mining and loading coal) I have met thousands of individuals who were active in the trade-union movement from purely selfish motives. Their aspiration was not the general emancipation of labor but their indi-vidual emancipation from the ranks of common laborers to that of salaried servants of capital. And their activity was always measured by the amount of pay they would receive. Every obpervant trade-unionist is well aware of these facts.

In our trade-union movement there is ancient, and it is now the controlling element, that advocates the common interest of capitalists and laborers Every action of that element is measured by this question: Will that action endanger my chances of getting a good political office or a fat job from some employer in case I get tired of my present position or my consti-tuents get tired of me?

What in the name of comm could the working class or the Social ists ever bone from a political party

The Socialist movement is founded

I am a Socialist because I love the idea of Socialism and I love the idea not only because it is a lovable idea of a future society, but because that idea represents the material interest of my class; the working class.

Anything short of that idea does no represent the material interest of the working class, for the simple reason that reforms whatever may be their nature and to whatever degree they may be beneficial, only benefit a part and not the whole of the working class. Generally reforms benefit one part at the expense of another part,

I am heartily in favor of the Social ist Party reaching a friendly under standing with a genuine Labor Union party whenever it may arise in any locality. But to be genuine it mus advocate without the least equivoca tion the complete emancipation of La bor-the Socialist idea. If it does no advocate this, it may be a Labor Guin party, but it is not a genuine Working Class party. It is controlled by capi talists or their tools and towards su fake Labor party the true Socialist must maintain the same attitude as toward any other capitalist party In following such course we may mak enemics, we may lose friends and votes, but we will have acted honestly with ourselves and others and we will in the long run we will obtain better results than if we had followed :

Before I close it will not be out of place to state here my opinion that some of our own comrades are to a great extent responsible for this Labo Union political movement. Many go into their union to capture it for a Socialist party. While they generally get left so far as capturing is concerned, they instill into members the idea that a trade-union movement may be made a political movement And when their own teachings result in a Labor Union party started to obstruct and destroy the Socialist move ment they find themselves in a quee position. They dare not go back or their own teachings and they have to abadon the straight path to support

The situation in California demands the most thoughtful consideration of the rank and file of the Socialist Party. Only by a dispassionate discussion or the merits of the case can we hope to settle the vital questions of principle and tactics involved in the problem.

It is unfortunate that the editor of one party paper at least ("St. Louis Labor") has seen fit to withhold pub-lication of articles favorable to the Union Labor side of the controversy while finding space for resolutions and editorials denunciatory of the policy pursued by the California organiza ons. It is likewise unfortunate that the editor of the "International Bocial ist Review" should see in the present situation an opportunity for character assassination. What though it is the same old question of our attitude to ward the traide unions that is again ciple.differing only in form-surely this does not necessarily justify the methods of a De Leon in settling the case This is not a personal matter. Let us try and keep this admonition in mind at this juncture and consider this ques-tion on its merits from the standpoint of the interest of the wage-working

The fact that the Union Labor parties both in San Francisco and Los Angeles were the direct outcome of a convention composed only of delegates democratically elected by the local trade unions, is a vital consideration

Question 8—If the failure of the economic organisation to declare for Socialism is no legitimate reason for Socialists refusing to join the same, or to oppose the same, what justification can there be for opposing the political organization of the trade union?

Question 4-Will not opposition by a Socialist Party to the trade union Socialist Party to the trade union movement result the same on either the economic or political field?

THE AUTONOMY QUESTION.

[We present here some further comnunications on the question of state autonomy and party organization, on which we defer editorial comment till next week.]

(Article by A. M. Simons of Chicago, written early in December.]

The circular letter recently sent out by the Ohio State Committee in regard to the attitude of the national organiention toward party matters these subjects once more forcibly to the front. It shows that the question of state autonomy will not down and it may as well be fought to a finish.

clear exactly what I mean when I sag state autonomy and, so far as I have talked with those who defend this pesition, I believe that a majority of them agree with me. However, I do not presume to speak for anyone but myself. I believe in the most complete centralization, of information. The national heroquarters should be the place most capable of routeing speakrs and giving information as to general activity of the party. I believe I was the first one to suggest, in print at least, the formation of a National Lecture Bureau. And whether by coincidence or otherwise, the plan which was announced was practically identical with the plan presented by me in the "Worker's Call" (now Chicago "Socialist") some weeks before the meeting of the National Executive Committee that finally drafted the plan adopted. I fully believe that if the National Secretary had possessed even prdinary tact and had confined himself to the duties for which he was elected, that he could to-day be exercising a far greater influence on the Socialist movement than was ever ex-cretaed by any other individual in the movement. If he had gathered the possible information concerning their morement means the same as trade terms, etc. be could have had a large autonomy in the trade union movethe party now speaking indirectly a least under his control. Instead of this, he proceeded to do something which it was the sense of a large majority of the delegates at Indianapolia ld never be done, be hired national organizers and placed them on This was specifically denounced repeatedly at the convention which elected Leon Greenbaum and it was thoroughly understood by every one there that such organize not directly forbidden by the constitution, so he cannot be said to have literally broken faith on this point.

in regard to ... a number of other things, however, he has deliberately broken faith with the mon who elected him. The national constitution plainly says that he has no right to interfere in the affairs of an organized state, The record of Ohio, Utah, Illinois, North Dakots, and probably other states of which I know nothing, shows that he has interfered and, in every case, to the detriment of the movement in those states. He seems to be laboring under the impression that he was elected as constitutional lawyer and an expert on Socialist econo Unfortunately be is poorly fitted to fill either of these positions. But the convention did not care for his fitness on these subjects: neither does the So Party at the present time. He was elected to act as an organizing center for the Socialists of this coun try, and as a means to co-ordinate the Socialist efforts existing outside of or ganized states or between state organi sations. This field, the only proper one for him to occupy, he has left practically vacant, and is proceeding to instruct the Socialists of this coun-try on what he thinks they ought to do. That this has been contrary to the expressed opinion of the party in its national convention has counted for appear that the Socialist Party is almeration of Labor, and has involved the Socialist Party repeatedly in most em barrassing positions by his actions in this regard. The recent vote at New Orleans shows that the A. F. of L. is becoming rapidly impregnated with Socialism and this is a cause for congratulation by Socialists. It seems to ne that it demonstrates the position Socialists, including the national offi-cials, that if the A. L. U. had remained captured the latter body. However, the Western comrades did not see fit to de this and they having so decided. it was not the business of the national officials of the Bocialist Party to in any way interfere. Now that the two bedies are in existence, there is no nearer the Socialist position than the A. F. of L.

and if my information is incorrect, I hope the National Secretary will be prompt to publicly deny it, that let ters have been sent, qut, from the na tional headquarters endorsing the Cali-fornia fusion and confusion. I am not here discussing the wisdom, or other wise, of the action of the California cause I oppose their action any national pressure should be used to compel them to reconsider it... The question must be fought out in Califernis, and not in St. Louis or in Chicago. But it is silsolutely none of the National Secretary's business and for him to interfere is simply a piece of impertinence. The fact that neither he nor any one of the men who are working in the national headquarters are in any way recognized as authorities on Socialist economics simply makes their meddling in this field more injurious. But as they were not elected for this purpose their lack of knowledge on this point would not have been burtful had they kept to the work for which they were elected. It seems to me that this situation has now reached such a crisis that unless the National Secretary will obey the constitution under which he was elected and attend to the business which constitutes his proper field, he must be removed to make way for someone who will. It he present netions tending to involve the party in

I say all this without the slightest personal animosity toward Comrade Greenbaum. If he would but confine himself to the work for which he was elected I would be only too glad to work with him rather than against him. But it is not a question of personal but of official action which incolves the entire party. Since he has insisted on opposing his personal cpinions to the whole of the party, it would seem that the only possible solution would be to demand his resignation in order that a man who is in accord with the ideas of the party may be given charge of the work. [Article by W. G. Critchlow, written n December.]

Those who oppose the form of organization of the Socialist Party known as state, autonomy produce arguments to prove the fallacy of this form of organization that are, to my mind, contrary to Socialist principles. They claim that state autonomy does not tend to create discipline in the organization and that the movement could reach a far better state of discipline if the autonomy were taken away from the states. Some argue that state autonomy in the Socialist

While I am a trade unionist, being n member of two organizations, and being a strong advocate of industrialism as against trade autonomy, I cannot take the position that so many of my trade union friends do on the question of state autonomy in the Socialist

There is a vant difference between trade autonomy and state autonomy.

Trade autonomy as applied to the trades organizations means the organ-izing of unions on purely trade lines. Each trade will be organized separate ly and in case of there being ten trades employed in a single industry they will all be organised under separate banners and in numerous instances be at war with each other. These trades overlap each other until to-day we have so many different organizations that we have nothing but jurisdiction wrangles for the purpose of determining where certain men belong, and each organization trying to build up their own union at the expense of some other one. In many instances on their brother unionists. Each of these trades has different interests as guard them against the encroachment of other trade

The opponents of trade autonomy, or the industrialists, advocate a change in the methods of organization, holding trade lines is not the correct policy. They contend that the working people orght to be organised by ind and not by trades. They want all the workers in a given industry to belong to a certain organization—for illustra tion, all the brewery employees to be long to the Brewery Workers' Union, ers' Union, etc. This would enable these organizations to completely tie up an industry in a strike with no po-sibility of any other trade scabbing their job. It would be a step towards bem to compete with better chance of success against the large corpora-tions and trusts. It would give them a more concrete form of organization and eliminate the craft prejudice which exists at the present time. A good example of this principle is the rapidly growing organization of the Brotherhood of Railway Employees, which accepts into membership all em-ployees of the railroads, but still al-lows them to retain their separate local unions. Still they are all organized under one head and a strike on any rairoad system controlled by them would meen a complete tie-up, with no danger of the firemen taking the places of the engineers or the brakeganized on the lines as followed out by industries instead of the narrow trade lines as at present.

State autonomy as applied to the Socialist movement is not the same by any means. The Socialist organization has certain lines mapped out by law that must be followed. centralize the work of our movement all we wish and adopt a constitution saying we were not state autonomists, but we would still have to conform to all the various laws in the different withdraw from the national organization at any time and still be the recin spite of anything that the national organization could do. Trade unionists have different interests as such and we often see two large organizations at war with each other trying to protect their conflicting interests. Socialists have no conflicting interests, but are all working for one common goal, and it resolves itself into a question of agreeing on the tacties to be used to accomplish what we desire.

themselves as they see fit in regards to the financial, propagands, and organization matters. They would, of course, be pledged to adhere to the national constitution and platform. This plan does not prevent us from having uniformity of printed supplies, a perfect system of reports from organized states and locals in the unorganized states and the compulsory dues sys em on states. By giving each state the right to govern themselves in th matters above referred to we would

The main argument advanced against state autonomy is that it tends to a greater laxity in the organization's methods and allows the movement to become a tool in the hands of unscrupulous persons as well as to give the members greater freedom from discipline-that is, that the movement would become a better disciplined organization without the state autonomy

Discipline means to be subject to an authority. Many of the trade union have good discipline in their organiza-tions, and the members of such bodies know what it is to strike against their own wishes and to be forced back to work again at the order of a nationa officer. The Socialist Labor Party wa a well disciplined organization and the results of De Leon's discipline are well known to many of us. Every time be would discipline a state he would lose clai ktanding, the national organization though the party still existed and went upon the ballot just the same. The ciplined organization. The soldier are learned to obey, obey, nothing but obey their superior officers. The mili-tary organizations as a whole are the best examples of discipline that we

The Socialist Party does not want, and must not court, this discipline under any circumstances. We can build up and maintain a perfect working organization without drilling such discipline into the members le brought to a point of understanding where they will submit to an author ity on all questions within the move ment. We must have a well organized movement with the great body of mony with each other. We must build up an intelligent working organization who thoroughly understand the principles of Socialism as well as under at and how to make new Socialists in a scientific manner. The Socialist Party of California is a recognized official party of that state. Let us suppose that the Na-tional Committee at the January meeting would revoke the California char-ter and thus discipline the California comrades for their action in fusing with another political party. The result would be that our national organization would have no movement in California, but there would still re and it would appear on the official ballot under that name. Nothing that would prevent this and they could not even go into the state and reorganize curing a place on the ballot under the name Socialist Party. The making of such a constitution by the national body would be the wielding of some discipline which might force the dis-satisfied states to bolt the national organization and exercise the right to mintain a state Socialist party sepa rate from the national movement which they could do if they so desired There has been a constant kick from the direction of St. Louis for the past acceral months about the deficiency of the present form of organization.

This has been done both openly and under cover. A strong agitation has been started from these same quarters for a national convention one year in advance of the regular one for the sole purpose of granting more power to the national officers. They have nothing but complaints to make about the strenous advocates of the anti-autonomy policy, sithough the national conditution plainly calls for state auton ciny at the present time. The National cretary has gone so far in his oppo sition to state autonomy as to openly violate the constitution and called to task for it shifts the blame no logical reason for the national officers being granted more power. I be-lieve they have misused the power already accorded to them to such an extent that it would be sheer folly to rant them a still further extension. If the national officers wish to retain the confidence of the membership at large let them carry on the regular party business and try to organize the unorganized territory and if at the next regular convention it can be shown that the present constitution is inadequate to meet the requirements to change it. Let the national officers hend to the work mapped out for them and stop medding in state affairs contrary to the constitution. Then it will he found that the present form of or-ganization is quite efficient indeed.

The Committee wishes to make a report of progress in this matter in the next issue of The Worker and all who have presents are requested to bring or send to Secretary Butscher, not later than Jan. 24, a full list of presents obtained, with the names of the givers. Many thousands of pres-ents should be collected in order to ensure the full success of the Fair. It is known that a good start has been made by a number of the comrades and the work must be energetically pushed,

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association having decided to meet every two weeks until after the Fair, all members of the Association are urged to attend the next meeting, which will be held at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, on Monday, Jan. 20, at 8 p. m. There is much important work to be done. New members may be proposed at any regular meeting of the Association. Any person who has for six months or more been a member in good standing of the Social Democratic Party (or, as called in other states, the Socialist Party) may be come a member by buying one or more shares of stock at $5 each. Each member has one vote, regardless of the number of shares held.

BROOKLYN CONFERENCE

The first meeting of the Brooklyn Daily Globe Conference was held Jan. 17 at the Socialist Club. Comrado Butscher presided. Julius Bychower elected Pinancial Secretary and John Libskie Corresponding Secretary. A credentials committee was appointed and delegates were seated from various rade unions and assembly districts.

After the chairman's explanation of the objects of the Conference—to work actively for the establishment of a daily paper to be co-operatively owned and controlled by workingmen in the interest of the working class—an Advisory Board was elected, consisting of Comrades Atkinson, Blankenfeld and Janders and the officers. Two more members will be elected at the next meeting.

It was decided to leave the collection of donations for the coming Fa'r in the hands of the Ladies' Socialist Club, and that organization was requested through Mrs. France to appoint two del-agates to this Conference. Comrades Jacquers and Blankenfeld were chosen ulttre on breweries. The New York Conference was requested to supply Brooklyn with necessary station-ery, etc. The next meeting is to be held at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum-on Feb. 4, if hall can be secured that evening. The delogate from Br. 4, W. S. & D. B. F., reported a donation of $40 to the Globe.

All assembly districts and trade unions that failed to send delegates to this Conference should be represented at the next session. Brooklyn comrades can secure Fair Comrade Sam Eiges, Secretary of the Brunz Agitation Committee of the Social Democratic Party, is complaining of the impertment officiousness of the new police administration, as are many others connected with the labor Commissioner Greene inlong with Jerome) will probably de serve- our thanks before he gets through for making the humbug of socalled "reform" thoroughly odious.

The Bronx Agitation Committee arunged a public meeting to be held in Vewer's Hall, on 163d street and Washington avenue, on the evening of Jan. 15. It was announced through the press and by circulars as a meeting of the Social Democratic Party The members of the committee were considerably surprised, when they are rived, at seeing a large force of uniformed policemen and "plain-clothermen" in and around the hall.

The officers were inclined to apole gize for their presence and explained that they were sent by the captain, had to ober orders, and did not know why they were ordered out. They were not delighted with the idea of losing their sleep to "keep order" at what everyone knew would be a perfectly orderly meeting for the intel-ligent discussion of social questions. ligent discussion of social questions A sergeant finally came and withdrev five of the officers.

Further inquiry elicited the explanation that "somebody" had reported that this was to be an Anarchist meet ing and that the order had come from Mulberry Street to send out a big force

Four new members were gained for the party organization and several others promised to join soon.

Cooper Union Packed Two Successive Evenings.

At Mosting for the Dally on Thursday and at Wilshire-Seligman Debate on Friday the Growd of Eager Hearers Exceeds the Great Hall's Coprolty.

The attendance at the Cooper Union meeting for the daily on Thursday of last week and at the Wilshire-Seligman debate in the same place on the following evening go to show what a firm foothold the movement has taken in this city and how much keener and more general is the interest in Sociallam now than ever before.

The middle of January has not, in previous years, been an auspicious time for the holding of large Socialist meetings, and experienced comrades were agreeably surprised on Thursday to see the great hall filled to the limit almost as soon as the doors were opened. Still more remarkable and the occasion of the meeting was one that could not be supposed to be of especial interest to the general public, but rather to party members and active sympathizers, the audience was largely composed of strangers, at-tracted by the simple fact that it was a meeting of the Social Democratic Party and that they were desirous of nowing more about Socialism.

A still larger crowd and one in which he strangers bore a still larger propor tion occupied the hall on Friday even ing to listen to the debate on Socialism between Courade Wilshire and Pro-fessor Seligman of Columbia Uni-

John Spargo presided in the meeting for the Socialist daily and James F. Carey and George D. Herron were the speakers. Comrade Caray received en-thusiastic applause, both for his own witty and eloquent speech and as a representative of the rapidly growing movement in Massachusetts, to which comrades all over the country look with so much pride and hope. Com-rade Herron was given a most hearty greeting on this, his first appearance on the platform in New York since his return from Europe. His address was a strong precentation of the funda-mental principles of Socialism as a self-conscious and self-reliant collective movement, not depending on or inated by leaders, but guided by common thought and carried on by the common thought and carried on by the united energy of the rank and file He pointed out the great service which a daily newspaper can do in the hands of such a movement, using apt and timely illustrations to show how dif ferent would be its conduct from the demagogical policy of the capitalist

Comrade Carey declared that the Socialists of Massachusetts looked enger-ly for the establishment of the Socialist daily in New York, knowing the great service it would do the party in their state and all over the country. Only through a daily press in the hands of the party, he said, could we antisfactorily carry our ideas to the mass of our fellow workers, and be was sure that when such a paper is established in Boston, the next elec-tion would seat a Socialist in the Gov ernor's chair. Comrade Spargo spoke briefly but forcibly in introducing the perennial and always interesting subject of the collection. Over $100 was taken in and piedges to the amount of $125 for cialist Daily Fund were handed to the ushers. This represents, how ever, but a small part of what the meeting accomplished in furthering the plans for the daily, as the chief end of the meeting--to advertise the project and make it a subject of consideration beyond immediate party cir-

It is worthy of note that, notwithstanding the great success of the meeting was observed by a large num-ber of reporters, not one capitalist daily in the city—that is, not one daily except the "Volkszeitung"-gave it so much as a line. That the lesson of this suppression of news, so well illustrated the suppression of news, so we trating the need of a paper to speak for the workers, was not lost on the udience is shown by the following etter, written by one who had been in

In introducing the speakers Professor Smith stated the purpose of the People's Institute to be the realization of the purest and most complete democracy. Comrade Witshire, in opening, took up the words and de-clared that no better definition could be given of the aim of the Socialist movement. Our present political democracy is thwarted and perverted by the industrial despotism laevitably growing out of the competitive or capi-talist system, and it is in order to real-ise true democracy, the rule of the common will for the common good, that Socialists advocate the collective ectarian press. Professor Beligman is undoubtedly an able and a learned man, very deeply learned in his special fields of economic and historical science. His failure to meet Wilshire on any common ground or to make any appeal to the minds of the audience was un-doubtedly due to the minfortune, cammon to the majority of "intellectuals" under capitalism, of living in a world of theory, out of touch with the dom-mon life. Always protesting against the recognition of class divisions, their whole view of the world is colored by an instinctive tendency to make a faise class division—setting up a chi of intelligent people, who must be looked to for light and leading, as agginst the ignorant and helpfel The Socialist movement is

The obituary notices of Gen. Samuel which all great capitalist concerns are to-day virtually linked into one great profit-grinding machine by the fact that each great capitalist is com-monly a stockholder or bondholder in very many companies and a director in several. The case of Gen. The may have been an extreme one, but it is typical. The Evening Post" says:

"At the time of his death he was a director, in the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company, the American Pig Iron Storage Warrant Company the Rowling Green Trust Company, the Canadian Pacific Rathway, the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway, the Cuba Company, the Evansville & Terre Haute Railroad Company, the Indiana Stone Railroad Company, the Metropolitan Trans Company, the Pacific Steel Company, the Plastic Material Metal Covering Company, the Rapid Transit Serry Company, the Richmond County Power Company, the Seventh National Bank, the Shelby Iron Company, the Staten Island Electric Railroad. She Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, and the Telephone, Telegraph and Cable Company of America.

"He was President of the following: the Columbus Gas Light and Heating Company, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Bailway, the Metropolitin Dredging Company, the New York & Staten Island Electric Company, the Richmond Borough Company, the Standard Milling Company, and the United States Cast-Iron Pipe and Foundry Company."

Thus this one man was a director or an officer of twenty-six supposedly isdependent companies, representing the great industries of coal and iron mining, iron and steel manufacture, haid and Water tramportation and transit communication, lighting and heating power supply, and some minor ones, besides commerce and finance. In bow many other companies be held stock or bonds we are not informed.

Of course it is impossible to suppose that this man had a technical knowledge of all these various industries. Yet be drew at least eight saintles for his "labor of superintendence"—the sort of work by which, as the apologists of capitalism maintain, the capitalists earn their profits. But in addi-tion to these eight or more salaries, be drew dividends and interest from the stocks and bonds of at least twenty-six companies, quite apart from his "wages of superintendence" and irre-spective of any work, useful, useless, or harmful, that he might do.

. The consideration of such facts ought to convince any thinking man of two facts: First, that capitalists, as auch, are parasites upon the working class; second, that the capitalist class already form a solid phalanx, daily becoming better organized, whose whole force can be mobilized for the defense of its common interests, and which is vulnerable only to attack by political methods, striking at the very base of its power, the private ownership of the means of production.

CHASE AT WASHINGTON. Comrade Joseph Wood of Washington, D. C., writes: "John C. Chase of Massachusetts

Massachusetts Socialists Show Their Power.

The Three Socialists in the Legislature Drive the Republican Majority to Take Up the Goal Question-Carey and MacCartney Scathingly Condemn the Policy of Dalay.

ROSTON, Jan. 17.-It is seldom that the leaders of the majority party in the Massachusetts Legislature are driven into the unpleasant position of asking the members of a minority arty to postpone action on a in order to save the majority from be ing stampeded for the measure, but this is precisely what happened on Monday of this week. From opposi-Monday of this week. From opposi-tion the Republican leaders were forced into acquiescence and confer-ences with the Socialists upon the coal

It will be remembered that, as reried last week, the Senate, apparent ly for the purpose of checknisting and obstructing the Socialist-move for nunicipal fuel yards, had appointed a committee, to act with a similar one of the House, to "investigate" the coal situation, and that MacCartney had anticipated this by introducing an order requesting an opinion from the Su-preme Court as to the constitutionality of the establishment of municipal fuel rards.

The order came up on Monday last, leader on the floor of the House, op posed its adoption on the ground that the Supreme Court in 1802 had pass upon the measure, and be contend that the order should be referred to the special committee authorized to consider the coal situation. The Senate members of that commission were appointed and he moved that the order be tabled pending the appointment of the House committeemen.

MacCartney on "Investigation."

MacCartney replied to Newton, say ing that it was not investigation the people wanted but relief from the in-tolerable conditions which everyone knew existed. Legislative investigations, especially those in which great corporate interests were concerned, seldom resulted in anything but whitewashing. The House should know ex actly how to proceed on this question if it was unconstitutional to establish municipal fuel yards then the constitution could be amended. Immediate not investigation, was demanded, for by the time an investigat-ing committee reported, the problem confronting the people would be one of ice and not of coal.

Dana of Newton, another Republican leader, said he hoped the House would go slow. If an opinion was now to be asked the court might decline t express any opinion on the gro that the matter had already b acted upon by the court; the House would then be subjected to the humiliation of having its desire for an opinion ignored. He thought it would be time to ask the court's opinion af ter the Legislature itself had taken

Carey Arraigns Majority,

Carey made a stinging speech in re ply. He arraigned the majority mem-bers for being afraid to act upon a matter of acute interest to the people at this time. The suggestion that the court might now decide the question adversely, but a mouth or so later might possibly agree to the proposition, was a- very peculiar one to manate from the source it did. "Does the gentlemen from Newton imply," he asked, "that the court may change its mind in a month or two? If so, he has less respect for the court than I have, and I have been accused of having no more than the law allows Meantime the slaughter of the ins cents is going on. The delays caused by the slow, stately march of investigating committees are notorious, Postpone this measure a day, and a child of the people dies a child of the ten ments; postpone it another day, and another child dies. There are states nen in Massachusetts of the sort de scribed by Victor Hugo when he said.
It is the province of Matesmen to deflect the course of a public movement until it proceeds in a circle."

The house and gallery applauded igorously when Carey concluded, until the Speaker rapped sharply for order. Newton of Everett admitted the people want legislation and many members undoubtedly favored it, but they were not trying to make political capital out of it.

MacCartney resented the charge that he Socialists were trying to make political capital out of the situation urse followed by them in this was similar to that they had The course observed in former sessions; the present situation was but a substantiation of that course and of the correctness of the Socialist principle. He thought it would be more respectful to the court to ask its opinion before passing a bill than to rosh through a bill in the face of the adverse decision of 1802. In view of the fact, however, that the court in that decision had stated that the court was not called upon to con-sider what extraordinary powers the commonwealth in the cities or towns might exercise in times of exigencies. be offered to amend his order so that the court abould be asked whether to establish municipal fuel yards would be constitutional in the face of an

MacCartney's effecing this am ment disposal completely of the objec-tions raised by the Republican leaders and the latter were "up against it." Newton recognised this and withdrew his motion to table and moved instead that the whole matter be postponed until next day so that he might study the amendment and order. Maconey made no objection and postp

Majority Brought to Torms.

As a result of this the Repui leaders were compelled to confer with the Socialists upon the framing of an order propounding questions to the Su-preme Court upon the legal points inrolved in the establishment of muni cipal fuel yards. Throughout the disfrom and one would have thought that there were really only two parties, the Republicans and the Socialists, repre-sented in the House. The Democratic leaders were invited into the confereure only out of courtesy. The inci-dent has again demonstrated the senility of the Democratic party and the inevitability of the Socialist Party as the coming party of logical opposition to capitalist class interests.

On Wednesday the order as agreed to by all parties passed the House. Pour questions are included, covering the constitutionality of municipal fue yards, permanently or during exigen cies, and the right of the different cities or towns to constitute them solves judges of such emergencies.

The Haverhill Case.

The full beach of the Supreme Court decided in favor of Parkman B. Flanders, the Socialist Party candilate, in the contest for the Haverbil mayoralty.

The court held that the eighteen ballots, each containing a cross in square opposite the blank space. ediately under the name of the Ite publican nominee, should not have been counted for the Republican can-didate, but should have been recorded as blanks.

By the returns of that board, Henri R. Watson, Republican candidate, was declared elected by a plurality of twelve votes, but according to the decision of the court, that the eighteen ballots were improperly counted for him, he stands defeated by Flanders, whose plurality is six votes. Board of Aldermen are ordered by the court to correct the records of election and insert the name of Flanders in tend of Watson.

The decision was not unexpected, as the contention of the Haverhill Board of Registrars that it was the final arbiter of elections was too dangerous a one to uphold. It is a matter for congratulation that the Socialists forced a Republican court to defeat the attempt of Republican particans to defraud us of the election.

As for Comrade Flanders, let it be nid that there does not exist in the Rocialist movement to-day a truer, hraver soul and none more worthy and deserving of the victory he shares with the Socialist Party. WILLIAM MAILLY.

Challenge to S. B. Dutcher is Declined.

Impartial" National Economic Longue Does Not Care to Take Any Risks with Socialists.

We published two weeks ago the challenge to debate sent by Comrade Fraser on behalf of the Socialist Pro paganda Club of Brooklyn to Silas B Dutcher, Chairman of the National Economic League. This challenge was sused on the fact that the National Economic League in a circular (not in-tended for publication, by the way, but addressed only to business men) declared its purpose "to carry on an IMPARTIAL educational movement TO OPPOSE Socialism and class hatred." On the ground of this official declaration, the Socialist Propaganda Club invited the Chairman to meet a clatist in fair delate on the question of Socialism.

Mr. Dutcher, however, has no tomach for such a delaste. This is not surprising. It is pretty hard to find a capitalist advocate, however brave he may be in denouncing Socialism when there is no chance for criticism, who will venture to line up with Socialist in manly discussion oth will have an equal chance befor an audience.

Through the "Editorial Manager" of the League, Mr. Dutcher replies with a very courteously worded letter, declin-ing to debate and explaining that neither Mr. Dutcher nor anyone con-nected with the League desires to en-ter into a debate on Socialism or on any other questions which relate to the onditions between Capital and La-

It is explained that "the object and purpose of the Lengue is to promote an intelligent study and investigation of the social sciences" (but not by debates, mind you) and that "the special aim of the League will be to show the capitalist and the laborer that there is no natural antagonism between them, and that each must work in harmony to bring about industrial peace and the greatest results for the best commercial conditions of our country." This, of course, is exactly the point which Socialists contest, maintaining that there is such a "natural antagou Isin" and that the desired "harmony is impossible, and the League, as an organization for "impartial study of the social sciences" ought not to be afraid or unwilling to subject its nions to the test of public discus

WORK IN YORKVILLE.

The general meeting of the districts affiliated with the Yorkville Agitation Committee (26th, 28th, 30th, and 32d) in the Eighty-sixth Street Clubbouse last Saturday was very well attended The unions and societies which had contributed to the Yorkville campaign fund were invited to send delegates to receive the report, and the following were represented: Bricklayers No. 35, Bakers and Confectioners No. 50, Cigarunkers Nos. 90 and 141, Carpentern Nos. 300 and 513, Arbeiter Maennerchor, Moebelarbeiter Macunerchor, Cremation Society, Br. 2; Working men's Sick and Death Benefit Society Branches 24 and 158; in all, thirtee unions and societies with twenty-four delegates. This good representation of the labor organizations gave great satisfaction to the comrades as showing the increased interest of the working people of Yorkville in the inde pendent political movement of their Bock as recording secretary. J. Obrist gave a detailed report of the work of the Yorkville Agitation Committee during the year 1902 and especially during the late campaign. In the beginning of the year a regular course of Sunday afternoon lectures at the Clubbouse was arranged, but this had ommended that in future mass meetings be arranged for the discussion of portant current events from the So-ilist point of view. The Committee had got the consent of a number of unions to have speakers address ther on Socialism at their meetings, Several such lectures had been held and more would have been done but for the difficulty of getting speakers. The campaign was a very vigorous one. Mor than 120,000 leaflets were distributed and eighty open-air meetings were held, not including a number of hall meetings arranged by the 30th A. D. The funds for this campaign were mainly supplied by donations from trade unions and other labor organiza-tions of Yorkville. The total receipts were $216.50 and the expenditures mere $210.45 The report was taken up in detail, the majority of the party members and delegates present taking part in the discussion. The Committee's rec-ommendation in regard to mass meetings was concurred in and the Committee was given full power to act. It was decided to send a communication to the various organizations, urging the importance of foreign-born workingmen becoming citizens as soon as possible; also that a standing naturallration bureau be established at the Clubhouse, to give necessary informs tion to those desiring to become citi-nens. A motion was carried that a speaker be supplied to each union at least once in every three months. The such a general meeting of the Yorkville comrades, inviting delegates from sympathetic organizations, every three months, to hear reports, discuss the situation, and devise plans for extending and improving the work of the Yokville Agitation Committee. One More Circular from President Parry.

PRICE 2 CENTS.

Volces the Serrows of the Smaller Capital sts. Pressed Cown By the Trust and Hazassed By the Workers.

President Parry of the National Manufacturers' Association has insued another circular which is interesting chiefly as showing how seriously he and the class he represents are fright-cued by the growing aggressiveness of the working class. He says:

"Dear Sir:-- If you have contracts of sub-contracts with the Government, or furnish supplies to it, you cannot help but be interested in the fight which the National Association of Manufacturers is making against the Gompers eighthour blil in Congress. If you are not a Government contractor or sub con raci or and are not seiling supplies to any of the Departments, our opposition to this bill will interest you just the same. "If you are selling supplies to the Government I desire to inform you that the best judicial opinion is to the effect that this propo ed legislation will e that put you entirely out of Government business, or so disturb your relations with the flovernment as to greatly damage your profits. One of the greatest tariff experts in the United States, a Senator from New England, has stated that this proposed law will be more fatal to the commerce of this country than a radical and sudden re-vision of the tariff. This is undoubtedly true. "It is useless for employers to try to fight this proposition single-handed. Compers boasts that he can beat us all, if he can take us one by one. That is also true. Nor can the large steel and shipbuilding interests alone best the bill, however strong they are and how ever ably represented by attorneys. The Senate committee on education and labor, before which the bill now is, wants to hear from the "average man-ufacturer," from the hundreds and thousands of manufacturers employing anywhere from fifty to one thousand men. They want to know how this proposition will affect THEM. Our Association, composed of more than fif-teen hundred united factories, is giving the Benators this very in ormation representatives in Congress will then know the truth. It would seem as if the right should once in a while have a show against threats and coercion. We propose to win this battle. But we need

therefore earnestly request of you to secome a member of our Association, "You may think that this proposed eight-hour bill would be declared unconstitutional, but in the Utah case exactly similar legislation was held valid by the United States Supreme Court! There is no question but that if you are doing business with the Govern ment this proposed law will affect you at once and disastrously. It may put you entirely out of Government business. Those who are not doing bus ness with the Government will get their share of the injustice of this law in due time. Gompers frankly admits that this proposed law is intended as an opening wedge to enforce the shorter work day upon the entire country. En-ropean nations have adopted the best designs of American machinery and are working their people twelve or four-teen hours per day. We cannot compete with them on an eight-hour basis for the world's trade. "I trust, then, that you may realise the extreme importance of united acfort, so that we may bury this bill for all time. You should regard membership in our Association as an incurance against vicious legislation which may destroy you. Dur fee is fifty dollars per year. This is less than fourteen cents a day. L your shop is union there is not a man in it who contributes less than twelve dollars per year for union purposes. Can you afford to idly fold your hands and let this warfare be waged against you without making protest? Employers of the stick together, clse they are lost. Let me bear from you. We mean business.

"Faithfully yours,
"D. M. PARRY, President The National Association

Of course Mr. Parry's siarm about the Eight-Hour Bill is unnecessary, even if it is real. That bill is not go-ing to be passed in this Congress and so the whole process of lobbying for it will have to be begun again at the next session. But their general alarm is well founded.

Judging by the long list of officers on the letter-heads, the National Manufacturers' Association seems to represent rather the smaller expitalists than the great magnates of the trusts. In their name Mr. Parry may well say "We must get together or we are lost." Most of them are lost, anyhow, in the face of the big combinations, but this makes them all the more bitter in their hatred of the labor movement. If only they could "work their people twelve and fourteen hours a day," they might have some hope. But, nias! the in-solent workingmen are dissatisfied even now and clamor for shorter hours. So the poor small capitalist sees only ruln in store for American

For the benefit of several locals that have rather hastily adopted resolutions on the subject, we would call atten-Mon to the fact that the meeting of th a'ational Committee next week is regumrly called under the provisions of the second article of the national constitution of the party.

The success of last week's Cooper Union meeting for the Daily Globe shows how eager the people of this city are to listen to Socialist speakers. This makes it the more to be regretted that our city organization has allowed the time to slip by without holding a protest meeting in regard to the coal famine. Had such a meeting been called, we would have had the hall filled to overflowing with working people, glad to hear what the Social Democratic Party had to say on the subject; and the demonstration need not have cost the organization one cent. The Central Federated Union has now decided to hold such a meeting, and Social Democrats should give It their most cordial support.

Meanwhile, both the ladies who wanted to see the mouse-killing and those who were horrified at the idea continue to dress themselves with laces and jewels out of dividends coined from the blood of workingmen killed in preventable "accidenta," from the year-long agony and degradation of shop girls, and the ruin of children's lives in the factories. Such is the conscience of the capitalist.

THE COAL-TARIFF FIASCO.

Exactly as we predicted. The removal of the tariff on coal has done nothing and evidently will do nothing to solve the present coal question. A London dispatch of Jan. 16 says:

"The remission of the coal duties by the United States' Congress still appears to have little or no effect on the British market. At present there are only two American orders on the ('nrdiff market, as compared with at least a dozen a fortnight ago, and even inquiry for cargoes has slackened."

When coal is being sold at a extra profit (not only a profit, but an extra profit, over the usual one) of five dollars, ten dullars, or even more per ton, the removal of a duty of 67 cents can have no appreciable effect.

There was, indeed, a partist break in coal prices, due to the accident of the temperature rising almost at the moment the repeal blit was passed But already we see that the relief was only temporary and we are told that February will probably bring greater auffering than has yet been experi enced.

We pointed out, long ago, that while the tariff system has undoubtedly helped in past years to foster the growing trusts, the trusts have now reached a stage of development in which they no longer need its assistance. Granted even, as the freetraders say and it is only part of the truth), that "The tariff is the mother of the trusts," killing the mother will ne longer injure her full-grown monstrous progeny. The trusts are not only so well established at home that the tariff is a matter of comparative indifference to them, but they are rapidly becoming, and some of them have already become, international in their scope. The only good reason for the trust magnates still insisting on the maintenance of the "protective" system is that it has done such excellent service as a fake issue on which to divide the workingmen's votes that they are loth to put it aside.

The fatuity and imbeellity of the Democratic party has once more been proven in this instance. Instead of firmly demanding measures that would give real relief to the sufferers from the coal famine, they clamored for so paitry a thing as the removal of the tariff. The Republicans took the wind out of their salis by granting it. Baer and his friends have not lost a cent by the step and Roosevelt and his friends think they have gained MORHE Votes.

But the workingmen are thinking and therefore the Socialist movement is gaining new recruits every day.

THE WORK OF MATIONAL PARTY OFFICERS.

With these words The Worker closed a recent relitorial on the state autonomy discussion. We believe that to the disregard of this fundamental principle of organized effort is due the present all but universal disentisfucof the party, the imperfections of organization resulting therefrom, and the continuance, sometimes in regretably bitter terms, of the autonomy dis-

It was the duty of the National Recretary and the Local Quorum of the National Committee, taking office under a constitution framed upon the state autonomy plan, scrupulously to respect the limitations put upon them and, if the system was unworkable, let it show its own weakness, leaving no one an opportunity to impute its failure to their misconduct. They were elected as executive agents to carry out the will of the party under provi sions drawn by a national convention and affirmed by the general vote. They were not commissioned to change change. But this they seem to have considered their special mission. We realize that the blame should not fall wholly upon Comrade Greenhann and the members of the Loca Quorum. They were placed, in many respects, in a difficult position, and it suight be hard to say whether some of their supporters or some of their factions critics have been the more responsible for their failure. If we recognize the failure and the cause of it, however, the apportionment of blame is a minor matter,

The Worker has never been astisfied with the present constitution. We still believe that it will be found pecessary to make some changes in the way of extending, as well as more cirarly defining, the functions of the Xational Committee. But the plan adopted at

Indianapolis should have a fair test, which it has not had, so far, We may probably take it for granted that next week's meeting of the National Committee will result in a complete change in the personnel at ne tional headquarters. Whoever may be chosen as National Secretary and Local Quorum for the following years, it is absolutely necessary that the National Committee should make clear to them the character of the offices they are to assume and the limitations which they must observe. They must undetstand that they are expected to work in good faith in accordance with the party constitution, and that they should be the last to agitate against it -as was done, for instance, in the very inopportune "semi-annual report." They must understand that they are not called upon to issue official pronunciamentos in the name of the Socialist Party-as was done has summer in the case of the A. L. U. and that of the Pennsylvania campaign. They must understand that there is a great difference between their position as an executive and administrative commission and that of the National Committee itself, which, as a body of delegates elected directly by the party in the various states, comes much nearer to having the authority of a national convention. It would be well if they should understand that, even as individuals, - it would be more becoming for them not to be too eager to issue circulars, statements, and manifestos on matters of party policy, insanuch as such utteraures are very likely to be regarded as having a semi-official character and constituting an attempt to exercise undue influence on the party member ship. In general, whatever the shortcomings of the party constitution, the accoming party officers will be more likely to succeed if they entertain a phrase, "maw wood and say nothing." Such a secretary and quorum, we be leve, will find a great deal of useful work to do and will meet but little opposition-less and less as time goes on. The comrades generally like to see work done for Socialism and they are not inclined to be captious or unreasonable or to look for technicalities to put in the way of those who wish to work.

THE CRESONS OF DE LEONISM.

We had occasion two weeks ago to deprecate the light and insecurate use of the word "De Leonism" in recent party discussions. It may not be amies to repeat a part of our remarks -bracketing a few words that we now insert:

"The word 'De Leonism' is justly odious to Socialist ears [-to the ears at least, of all who have been in the evement as long as four years. | To impute De Leouism to a comrade is to unke a very grave charge indeed against him—to accuse him, if the ord be taken in its true sense, of deliberate and systematic and malici-ous dishonesty prompted by personal and base motives. Yet in * * * party sions this word has been so handled about that it has loss much of its offensiveness and most of its definite meaning. • • • No one has been convinced by this indiscriminate use of the word; but many have been exasperated and thus made harder to nyines and Incidentally, the loose use of a word so full of meaning goes far to obscure the very important less tons [to be] learned from the experi-

It is not our intention to go over what is now fortunately becoming ancient history nor to recite again the facts that justify the definition of De Leonban we have given. A considerable proportion of those who are now party members went through the bit ter but wholesome experience in the old S. I. P. that led to the split and corganization of 1809; they, from personal knowledge, will testify that our expressions are not too strong. Hundreds more of those who, for one reason or another, stood by De Leon at that time, have since been forced to repudiate his methods; among them are included many who were, and were recognized by him to be, veritable "nillars of strength" to him in the conflict; and their denunciation of him is as much more bitter as it is fresher than ours.

De Leonism was-and still is, within its greatly narrowed scope-just what we have described. The personal nacendancy of a man given to the use of such methods was the chief proxinate cause for the split. Had be holding the same opinions, been an honester man, or had his influence been less, there can be little question that the division of the movement would have been avoided and that the differences of opinion would have been ettled and the party tactics gradually modified, by a process of internal change, to suit altered conditions and new responsibilities. But "if" is, of course, an idle word. It is easy to so that the very "narrowness" of the old S. L. P., its semi-sectorian character. which made possible or inevitable the rise and temporary domination of a De Leon, was a necessary safeguard, in the earlier days, to the integrity o even the existence of the party. The blackest secondrels in history have ment of the world. It is good to remember that. But It is good to remem her also their scoundrelism and to know fast what was its character, that we may not less the lessen of their story. A just abhorrence of Robes pierre should not confuse our jude ment of the Reign of Terror.

What concerns us now, in this matter, is not to denounce De Leon anew, but to define for our present and future guidance the lessons of De

Just what was it in the mental attitude, the habits of thought, of the rank and file of the S. L. P. before 1800 that made it possible for a malicious and self-seeking trickster to become the spokesman and the apparent leader of the party? We have described it as a "semi-sectarian narrowness." It may be more closely defined:

We believed, not only that a person who differed with us on minor que tions of economic theory or political practice could not possibly be right, but that he could not possibly be sin cere; when we found a person so disnenting (especially if he was in our party or showed sympathy with its general mirroses), instead of meeting him in fair argument, instead even of simply attributing his disagreement to prejudice or ignorance or stupidity, we thought it necessary to ransack his record and the records of his associated till we found some discreditable fact, which we then confidently accepted as the explanation of his dissent and the proof of his dishonesty.

Of course this is a strong statement; it is the statement of the extreme or typical case; but, with that qualification, it is a true statement of the characteristic mental attitude of the majority of the active Socialists of that

This habit of thought once served a good and necessary part. Fanaticism has its function. But before 1809 it had outlived its usefulness. Just as certain physical characteristics, nornal in the child, become symptoms of disease If they persist in the maturing youth, so the fanktikal fendency (and the tendency, which it implies, to hero-worship or extreme deference to the opinion of leaders), once serviceable to the cause, is now a thing seniously to be guarded against.

It is especially for the benefit of and in response to occasional requests from the newer party members, who know De Leonism only as a word of evil but of vague import, that we have given space thus to define it in its two related phases—on the side of the leader and on the side of the followers. This was the essence of De Leonism! It was not the habit of paying dues, nor the advocacy of close party organization nor insistence on uncompromising political action: it was that attitude of fanaticism which stiffed frank disussion and so gave free opportunity to rancor, falsebood, and cabal, to per sonal misleadership, and to the follow ing of disastrous policies. In guarding against it, in these later days, we may well bear in mind that the same endency may show itself in the adrocacy of tactics quite different from those of the old S. L. P. We have known people who were fanatical in their professions of tolerance.

If this is the lesson of warning, there is also a lesson of encouragement in the experience of 1860 and the following years. To those who were in the thick of that fight, it is still often a matter of wonder and of for that the ovement could pass through such a erisis, throwing off a leadership so strongly founded, not only without breaking into many factions, not only vithout losing and even positively galoing strength, but without suffering any serious or general reaction from the strictly revolutionary character with which that leadership seemed so closely connected-that, in throwing off so much that was of eril, we loss so little that was of good. No more convincing evidence of the soundness of the Socialist philosophy could be asked then vitasity of the movthe alert and self-reliant intelligence of the rank and file, shown in that unpleasant but salutary episode of party history.

The solidarity of the capitalist class as a world concert and conspiracy against all interests but its own has yet to be fully realized by its subject peoples. Confiscation, which has been so long liscussed with diagnst by our oppo-ents in public meetings, is gradually eing stripped of its terrors as a hor rible theory and has entered into the life of many American cities as a condition reasonable, necessary and righ when citizens are perishing for lack o coal and railroad companies are en-sconcing it under their very noses for a rising market. A few more coal strikes like this and the fetish of the rights of private proportarians under all circumstances to hold anything they have a mind to, will be so badly damaged as to look like an old Chines jom. To be sure, the right of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness may be appealed to in favor of the ities that are confincating company oal; but if the Supreme Court is even possion to it will decide that it is natitutional rather to die of coal in the other fellow's car than to take-it me and live.

That the death of the strong is a true cause of the decline of nations is a fact beyond cavil or question. The 'man who is left' holds always the future in his grass. One of the great books of our new century will be some day written on the selection of men, the acreening of human life through the actions of man, and the operation of the institutions men have built up. It will be a survey of the stream of social history, its whirls and eddies rapids and still waters, and the effect of each and all of its conditions on the heredity of men. The survival of the fit, and the unfit, in all degrees and conditions will be its subject-matter. This book will be written, not roughly and hastily, like the present frag-mentary casay, still less will it be a brilliant effort of some analytical imagination. It will set down sobarly and atstistically the array of facts which as yet no one possesses; and the new Darwin whose work it shall be must, like his predecessor, spend tweninust, the ms preservance, spend tradi-ty-five pears in the gathering of 'all facis' that can possibly bear on the situation. IN THE SUNNY SOUTH.

Report Showing that the Socializ Party Has Taken Good Root in the State of Florida.

The Socialist movement has been slow in taking root in the South, as was natural, that part of the country having been, until recently, almost en tirely an agricultural region, so that while class divisions were very clearly drawn, they were not on modern in-dustrial lines and there was no such thing as a class-conscious proletariat. Conditions are now rapidly changing. bowerer, and there can be but little doubt that before the next national election the Socialist Party will be well organised in most of the Southern states. In our lasne of Dec. 28 ere printed some news showing the awakening of the working class in Louisiana. Similar indications came from Arkansas and Georgia. week we are alle to present the first annual report of the State Committee of the Socialist Party of Florida, which shows that the movement is that state is now growing vigorously The State Secretary is W. R. Healey of Longwood. He reports as follows on the work so far accomplished:

"In presenting the first report of the work of this office we desire to thank the comrades for the many expressions of confidence and words of encourage-ment we have received. We trust the results will justify them.

The first local was organized at Or lando on Nov. 18, 1901, and was followed by Longwood, Tamps, West Palm Beach, and Lakeland. These five met in convention at Orlando on July 14, 1902, and formed a state or-gaultation. Locals Jacksonville and Plant City were in existence at this me, but did not take part.

"The work of the convention was abmitted to referendum vote and "The following locals have since 22 members. Several others are ex-pected shortly. This work of organis-ing the negroes should be taken up by the locals.

"We have every reason to expect a number of additional locale in the near future as a result of Comrade Chase's lecture tour and a hundred circular appeals for this work have been sent out.

"We desire to call the attention of the comrades to the importance of bestirring themselves in this work of organization. It is vital to the success of our movement. We are a political party and unless we have a perfect organization and plenty of self-sacrifielng comrades we stand a poor chance of successfully overthrowing organized capitalism, which will not accuple to use any means to defeat our

This we cannot do unless there is a large increase of members and promp payment of dues, or liberal donation from friends of the cause.

"There have been received at this office 213 letters and other mail packages. We have sent out 352, including a quantity of literature, largely donated by a few comrades at Ortando nated by a few comrades at Orlando and Longwood.

"The following counties have elected atate committeemen: Ornage, J. J. Morris, of Sanford; Hillseborough, F. W. Edmunds of Tamps; Dude, F. Carlson of West Palm Beach; Polk, J. L. Miller of Labeland; Dural, A. T. Cuyner, H. D., of Gilmore; Volunts, C. G. Smith of Goodsiff.

"The coming tour of John C. Chase of Massachusetts will, we expect, result in much good to our movement locture is a success, as far as they are concerned, which means the attend-ance and perfect arrangements. Be sure that all the country around sure that all the country around knows about it. Remember in this, as in everything else, 'Everybody's busi-ess is nobody's business.'

"We are indebted to Comrade Rev. W. H. Greetham of Orlando for the loan of a mimeograph which is very helpful in the work of this office. "The State Committee donated lit-erature to the amount of several dollars to the Duval County campaign. We desire to thank the comrades of Local Jacksonville for their service to the cause in putting out a legislative ticket, which, in the face of many difficulties, polled a very satisfactory vots, being an increase of over 800 per cent. "Your Secretary visited Jacksonville in the interest of the proposed state paper. If this paper can be estab-lished on the lines suggested we believe it will be a power in building up the organization. While there, we visited the comrades at St. Augustine. We have also had the pleasure of neeting with the Orlando comrades or several occasions. We are impressed from these visits (which were at our own expense) with the need of a good organizer to occasionally visit the old locals and organize new ones. The ficid is white unto the barvest, but where are the respers?

"in conclusion, let us impress upon you this fact. Your Committee will reflect the enthusiasm of the comrades at large. If they are apathetic, the Committee will be the same. We therefore urge you to attend your locals and see that every obligation is cheerfully met; that your officers are given the encouragement and support that will cause them to but forth every effort to build up an organization that will batter down the citadel of rent interest, and profit in this state, which must be destroyed before we can have a Brotherhood of Man. With Comrade bels we solemily protest against a system in which the laplogs of the rich are the social superiors of the children of the poor. "W. R. HEALEY.

Millionaire Munsey Lays Down the Lines of a Social System Radically Different from That Which Socialists Strive For-Which Will-Workingmen Choose?

Mr. Frank A. Munsey, millionaire, to decide which system he favors. The nud owner of half a dosen magasines and three daily papers—the New York "Daily News," the Boston "Journal," will of necessity help toward the and the Washington "Times"—recent-ly spoke on journalism before the stu-dents of Yale University. In the course of his remarks he made several state-ments that tend to show what may be expected to happen with the publish-ing business of the United States in the very near future. The New York "Daily News" reports Mr. Munsey's speech in part as follows: "There is an portant development that is going to play a chief part in bringing our newspapers down to a rational size and in establishing journalism on better and broader lines than ever before. It will be the combination of many newspapers under a single own-

"If I read the signs of the times aright, three or four years will show great strides in this respect. In fact, it is my belief that the newspapers. the magazines, the books, and all the periodicals of one kind and another will be published by about three or four concerns."

These "three or four concerns" will of course be under the complete con-trol of the capitalist class and they will then be able to mold and shape public opinion in true imperialistic fashion. The Socialist press and some other few exceptions will then alone remain to voice the protests of the orking class in their struggles and to cause the Socialists and progressive trade uniquists to do all in their power to further the establishment of their own daily newspaper. With the ad-vent of the predicted Publishing Trust It would be rather a gloomy prospect if the class-conscious workers would not have their own press to fight their

Here is another admission made in the same speech which speaks vo-umes: "That you will be a salarie worker instead of a proprietor there in little doubt. This thought may a good deal of sunshine out of the ught may take ture, but in reality it will not work to your disadvantage. You will escape the wear and tear of proprietorship" —how very solicitous for others!—"and your earnings will doubtless be as great or greater.

"You will lose only sentiment. Indeed, I seen nothing but a splendid future for the newspaper man, with an average income well exceeding that of the lawyer, the doctor, or the clergy-

'Men endowed with the ability to n successful enterprises of their own ill still be factors in affairs, and will be better off in our new aconomic sys-tem than they have been as independ-ent units in the Industries and commerce of America.

"The modern tendency towards combluation has created much uneasiness, but I am confident that this popular anxiety is not well founded.
"Each period in the march of time

"It is simply a matter of readjust ment to new ways of doing things, and the process will not be half so trouble-some as it now looks to be. Pifficulties are usually at their worst when in the prospective." (This latter sentence is very true and we Socialists can say the same to those who pooh-pooh the idea of the Co-operative Common-will be free from the worries and anxieties of financing their enter-prises." (But what—oh, what, we ask —will become of the incentive?) "The organizations themselves will bear this burden, and it is a burden, by the way, that has bruken the heart and crushed out the life of thousands of individual proprietors." (But how about "competition, the life of trade?" Won't the abolition of that time honored idol shake the very founda tions of our glorious institutions?)

under the benevolent regime pictured by him the borrower would not be sub-jected to any humiliation. He would simply be unable to borrow snything. as he might want to use the borrowed money to establish some independent newspaper or other independent ven-ture and then he would "not be free from the worries and anxieties of financing his own enterprise "

Under Mr. Munsey's fancied "new evonomic system" he and the other and worrying—thus saving others the froulde. And the other people? Why, fhey may work for Mr. Munsey's newspaper trust or any other old trust olf the owners thereof see fit to em-ploy them and can make profits out of eir labor. That would be a spiendid prior of things, would it not? Just khink of it, fellow workingmen. We whatsoever. We would then only have to work, that is all. What a splendid system it would be? What is a work-ing class here for, anyway, if it is not just to work?

This is doubtless what would happen, if Mr. Munsey had his way. But not if the working class wills other ganize the working class with a view establishing an industrial demo racy, not an industrial imperialism such as our friend Munsey would like to see.

It is true that the concentration of industry and the ever-growing tend-ency towards combination will soon force the question of Socialism to the front. The issue will be between the system proposed by Mr. Munsey and the system of society proposed by the Bocislists. The former will of course Socialists. The former will of course be in the interest of the capitalist class, while the latter will be in the interest of the working class. It should not be hard for a workingman street, New York.

SOCIALISM AND TRADE UNIONISM

"The Socialist Party, in convention assembled, declares that the trade union movement and independent rolitical action are the emancipating factors of the wage-working The trade union movement is the natural result of capitalist production and represents the economic side of the working class movement. We conjoin the unions of their respective trades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor organizations. We recognize that trade unions are by historical necessity or-unionists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trade union forces to-day, while it may result in lessening the exploitation of labor, can never abolish that exploita-tion. The exploitation of labor will practically no possibility of organiz come to an end only when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the people. It is the duty of every trade unionist to realize the necessity of in-dependent political action on class-con-actous lines, to join the Socialist Party and to assist in building up a strong political movement of the wage-work-ing class, whose ultimate aim and object must be the abolition of wage and enlarged by the Socialist move slavery and the establishment of a coslavery and the establishment of a co-operative state of society based on the in the manner in which some comrades collective ownership of the means of production and distribution."

The Socialist Party is known in the state of New York under the name of Rocial Democratic Party, and its emblem is the Arm and Torch.

SOCIALIST PARTY

I We present under this heading some further communications on the ques tion of the attitude of the Socialis Party toward labor parties, as brought to the attention of the party by the acion of the San Francisco and Los Angeles comrades.?

III.

[Extracts from editorial on "Trade Unions and the Socialist Party" in the 'International Socialist Review" for January.]

The situation which confronts us at the present time in several portions of the country is about as follows: Under the combined influence of econoent and Socialist teachings the trade unions have simultan become of great strength and pe meated with Socialist thought, the lat onfused character. The cry that labor must go into politics is taken up. labor" ticket is placed in the confronted with the alternative as to whether it shall antagonize this "unjot labor" party, or whether it shall with-draw from the field.

Various comrades have by a process of what one might call circuited" reasoning to borrow to phrase from the vocabulary of the electrician) jumped to the conclusion that the Socialist Party is at once compelled to make terms with the Union Labor party, even at the cost of the complete sacrifice of the Socialist Party itself. Their reasoning gen runs something as follows: philosophy of Socialism de mands that the powers of governmen be captured by a working class party Here is a working class party. It can capture the powers of government That would be Socialism: let us sup port it. Unfortunately there are several breaks in this chain of reasoning. The weakest point, of course, lies in the claim that any party bearing the name of labor, and largely made up of organned workers, is necessarily a working class party. In the sense in which So cirlists use the word, a working class party means, not so much a party made up of workingmen as one based upon certain definite principles in accord with the interests of the working class, If the working class member ship is the only condition, there has scarcely been a party in existence that could not fill the bill. Hence an argument based upon the fact that these parties are made up of laboring men, whether organized or unorganized, is utterly beside the point and has nothing whatever to do with the matter in mention. The fact that it is ever offered by a Socialist shows a badly confused state of mind.

The only thing which determines whether a party is a working class party in the sense in which the So rialists use the word is whether if stands upon a platform expressing the mission of the working class as the attitude and spirit of the new party indicates that it is inspired by iousness of the functions of the orking class as the collective owner of the instruments of production and distribution and the rulers of the so cial organism

Judging by these standards not on of the so-called "union labor" parties has any right whatever to be called a are much more in accord with small capitalist interests than with those of the working class, * * *

Furthermore, even when the Union Labor party stands upon a professedly Socialist platform, there is no reason why the Socialist Party should leave he field, or should renounce its name and organization.

The Socialist Party is a national and international organization like the capitalism which it combats. The Union Labor party is almost invariably a municipal party, never more than a municipal party, never more than a state party. The capture either of a municipality or a state would not be any very serious blow to capitalian while the more general powers of gov-ernment remained untouched. Further-more, such a capture at the expense of the disorganization of a wider party of the disorganization of a wider party novement would be a dearly gained sloup victory even if it were gain

In all this we see an exaggeration of the importance of the organized labor movement. There is not the unions are by maturing grounds as far as political affiliation is concerned.

"We call the attention of trade but it is equally on the side of such but it is equally on the side of suc workers as the toilers in the swen shops and the child slaves in the fatory, the agricultural laborers and a mass of others far outnumbering those within the unions, for whom there is

ing but a side-show to the trade union movement, as some of the members seem to think, the Socialist Party, the Socialist movement and the Socialist philosophy are all infinitely greater than any trade union movement. There is not a point of the trade union movement which is not swallowed up advocate would be a most ridiculous conclusion. • • •

In conclusion it must be borne in nind that the Socialist Party is a party of the working class and not of any fraction thereof. That to-day, if we are going to give up that class character which rests upon principle, it would be much less of a surrender to indorse the Allied party, which is made up equally of the laboring class and which has much more of a Social-ist platform than has the Trade Union parties of some cities. But to do eithe position. The Socialist Party can have nothing in common with any organization which supports and criages before a man like Eugene Schmitz, immedi-ately after he has come from the de-fense of Tammany Hall, and who has given no reason whatever to balleve that he has accepted any of the prin-ciples of the working class mevement.

[Statement and resolutions adopted by Local St. Louis at the meeting of Ian. 4. The first resolution was car ried, on division, by a vote of 30 to $

1. RESOLVED, That Local St. Lon reiterates its allegiance to the prin-ciples and tactics of the Socialist Party as adopted and agreed upon by the In-dianapolis Unity Convention. We are fully convinced of the correctness and soundness of the Socialist Party tactics, and therefore must emphatically disapprove of and condemn any at-tempt to lead our movement into fusion and confusion with so-called Union Labor and Reform parties, thereby disrupting the Socialist Party at the very moment when the propects are brighter and more encourage ing than ever before, and when, by polling over 200,000 votes, our organi-zation has become the third political party in the nation, and in many of the states and industrial centers has also become the recognized third

RESOLVED. That we call upon the Socialists and their sympathizers throughout the country to be on their guard, because the capitalist politicism are beginning to realize the seriousness of the political situation, and the of-ward march of the class-conscious movement of the Socialist Party. It is sespecially the Democratic party that will do all in its power to sidetrack the Socialist movement by the organization of a Democratic "Union Labor" party for the purpose of misleading organized labor and catching the labor

Recent developments have shows Recent developments have shown that the Democratic millionaire and newspaper publisher. Hearst, of New York, with his New York "Journal." RESOLVED, That, failing to resign, re call upon the National Committe of the Socialist Party to remove them.

In the consideration of the so-called "California situation," we find our-selves, confronted... with conditions which necessitate an entire recasting of our previous concept of the class

The labor movement in America has been peculiar in that the trade union movement came into existence previous to the Socialist Party and attained powerful proportions before the agita-tion of the Socialists was at all a factor movement for the emancipation of the workers. Those who laid the foundations of the Socialist Party, seeing in the then existing program of the trade unions a limitation which to them seemed fatal—a limitation which held the activities of the trade unionists entirely within the conflict between the capitalists and wage workers of particular crafts, and which limited their action on matters of legislation and general governmental policy to resolutions and petitions—resolved that in the united use of the ballot alone, for the complete control of the powers of gov-ernment, and through that means the abolition of the capitalist system of production, lay the freedom of the working class. The formation of the working class. The formation of the Socialist Labor Party was the result.

In this organization, which was made separate and distinct from the trade unions and which sought not only to organise the wage-working class, but "those in sympathy with it," was made the fatal mistake of dividing the efforts of the workers in the class strug-gie and seeking to build up two forces, each claiming to be the emancipating force, each contesting the jurisdiction of the other, and each denouncing the program and policy of the other. True, this was disclaimed and decied by both sides at the outset and there really was a certain show of harmony, but the So-cialist Labor Party had not yet reached sufficient proportions to be much more than the mere naming of a theory. With its growth came a contesting of the field, a struggle for power, and har-mony took wings and flew, and the real relations become a name.

less conflict within the party itself, between those who stood grandly upon what they termed "principle," and those who, having a faint glimr of the real principles of the class strug-gle, sought for a closer alignment with the trade unions, but at the same time made their efforts abortive by failing to adopt their political and economic program to the immediate interests of the trade unions, for whose methods they had really little, if anything, but pity and contempt.

This internal and irrepressible con flict finally reached a climax in the split of the Socialist Labor Party, dividing the party into two wings, one under the domination of De Leon and the other really unorganized so far as a single purpose was concerned, but holding mainly to the idea of a plo ent with the trade unions.

The De Leon wing had become fa-natic in its opposition to the trade unions and continued its advocacy and support of the Socialist Trade Alliance, an organization begun by the Socialist Labor Party for the ex press purpose of supplanting the al ready existing trade union movement They predicated their arguments in support of this postion upon the premise that the wage workers must be thoroughly conscious of the class coflicts of modern society and understa completely the historic mission of the working class in the abolition of these conflicts, before their organization as class could be successful economic or political field.

In opposition to this, the secoding wing set up the argument that the foundation principle of the philo of the class struggle taught us that th material interests of the wage worker would finally bring the trade union to the position of Socialism, just as those same interests had brought them to the beginnings of their craft organization To be sure, there were few who com prehended the real line of demarcation between themselves and their forme comrades, and by most it was considered as purely a matter of tactics, but it was nevertheless a question of prin ciple which separated them.
It was this tactics theory which dom inated the secoding wing and which finally instilled in the minds of most of its members, notwithstanding their published declarations and resolutions. an anti-trade union spirit which toler-ated instead of opposing the unions, but which nevertheless looked upon them with contempt There grew up in this conflict of principles a phraseology which marked the real spirit of the contending elements and which gives a clearer idea than anything else of the forces which have been at work in the American Socialis it throughout its existence, from its original formation, through the split and down to the present; when at last we see the forces lining up for a final struggle, upon the corect movement in this country.

The Socialist of the De Leon school uses as his principal arguments such words and phrases as "fakir," "labor skate," "labor "lieutenant," "traitor," "organized scabbery," "institution of capitalism," etc. All those in the trade union movement who do not happen to be of their particular opinion regarding the salvation of the working class are dubbed in the above manner, and the whole trade union movement itself in given the name of "organized scatbery," against which the "stalwarts' are battling as much as they battle against any other "institution of cap italiam.

The De Leonite has at least been open in the advocacy of his opinion bowever wrong be may have been in principle. The secoders, however, have occupied a hypocritical position from the outset, an hypocrisy shown in the use of such terms as "tactics," "boring from within," "finding common ground," etc. By remulation and dec laration they have loudly declared their oneness with the trade unions, while they have secretly wished unor the occasion of every strike or other conflict between organized labor and organized, capital that the strikers would lose, in order that they might "get their eyes open;" they have hoped for and prophesied the break up of the unions and the general flocking of the defeated into the ranks of the Socialist Party. And in this I speak from experience, for I have taken part in many such party "councils" (a bitter admis-sion), and while I have never gone the length of hoping for defeat. I have figured out to my own satisfaction (and how few there are who have not) the ultimate collapse of the trade union movement and the riding on its ruins of the Socialist Party trimphant.

But to return to the phraseology of the seceders. In the term "tactics" we at once brand ourselves as opposed to the trade unions. If the difference between the De Leon forces and the se-ceders was one of tactics purely, why this deadly conflict? Men do not fly at each other's throats in a discuss a question of tactics; it was a question of principle. The De Leonite was op posed to the trade union upon principle. He looked upon them as hostile to the welfare of the workers, as mere cap-italist institutions. The seceders, on the other hand, did not agree with this reasoning, and they set themselves up garded it, for in the school wherein they had learned their philosophy they had been taught that the Socialist Party was the only emancipating force and upon that theory they naturally looked upon the trade unions as bodies outside the pale and to be regarded much the same as other organizations in the body politic. But regardless of their theories, it was nevertheless a question of principle over which they were contending.

Now, if the Socialist Party is truly a wage workers' party, it should have a wage workers party, it shouts have no "tactics" towards the trade unions. The trade unions are either an integral part of the class strugle, and therefore part of the Socialist movement, or they are, according to the theory of the De Leonite, capitalist institutions. If we attempt to hold a certain set of "tac-tics" toward the trade unions, we place tics" toward the trade unions, we place mony took wings and new, and the real relations became aparent.

Through the years that have succeeded the first formation of the Socialist Labor Party has come as end:

yein toward the trace unions, we place ourselves upon the same plane with the Democratic and Republican parties, which live only by tactics and to which principles are naknown. And why, if the trade unions are engaged in the same mission as ourselves (which we declare in our trade union se ve "seek common ground" with them? If we are one in principle with the trade unions, why should we seek in converting their members to our philosophy to destroy their faith in their own organization? If we are already a wage workers' party, why must we needs take some action before we are on "common ground" with the wage workers, the trade unions? Logically reasoning we should be there without our part. If we are not we are only in the road and will be brushed aside. . The prevailing opinion that the So-cialist movement as such is alone the emancipating force of the wage workers (which we have really believed re which were in fact in the last analysis adopted as a purely "tactical" measure and tolerated on that ground mainly) must now be considered in a light that

shatters that theory to pieces.

We are confronted now by the real principles upon which we split a few rears ago and which at that time were not comprehended. The De Leon wing occupies one pole of this position......We must occupy the other or be crushed out if we attempt to occupy a middle ground. We must fight out the issue before us on those lines and the details of the situation in California are but of small consequence. We must not again cloud a question of principles under

The great fact involved in the Calination is there before us, a fact which has been in formation for a number of years in other parts of the country, but, which has only now. reached proportions sufficient to com mand our attention. This fact is the political field in such numbers as to actually secure power, and the situa-tion is not affected by the so-called failure of Union Labor parties in the past, because aparent failure is a concomi-tant of all new and untried efforts of the working class.

We are compelled to behold then in this movement of organized labor the power which we failed to note in the earlier history of the Socialist Party. the power which will make of organ-ized labor itself (a deduction from our own philosophy) the political as well as the economic emancipating force of labor, and which in a few years will make impossible an outside organisation. In fact, if our organization is to fulfil its function, it must shape things toward that end.

And from this we are ugain forced to the deduction that the trade union novement is (in the last analysis) the only emancipating force, and with the development of society that force will take up the means which to it seems necessary to make emancipation pos-i If the intelligence of the mas goes not beyond the resolution and the petition, then those of us who recognize their futility have naught to do but leach and wait for our teaching to take root, for true progress is only with th mass, and if we go ahead of the mass we will soon find ourselves alone.

And when that mass has absorbed those teachings, then still is our place with the mass, for there are yet many pitfalls before the practical applicat'o of our philosophy, and if we are true teachers we will be with our pupils in the working out of the problems we have set for them to do.

It is with this concept of the labo novement, a markedly changed one. I admit, but still born of the inexorable logic of events, that I write on the "Culifornia situation," and it is also with this concept that I have stated that its proper consideration will require an entire recasting of our prerious philosophy of the class struggle.

[Note.—In the presentation of the thore view of the questions before us I have purposely left out several phases of the development which has brought us to the necessity of deciding the question once and for all, not because they were unimportant in that devel-opment, but because I desired to state the argument as briefly as possible. The principle phase thus left out was the organization once known as the So-cial Democratic Party, and which really had its birth in the hostile attitude of the Socialist Labor Party tow-ard the trade unions, and which more than any other one thing precipitated the split in the ranks of the S. L. P. Since, however, the S. D. P. has ceased to exist, being really assimilated in the union with the seceders (and of which only the trade union attitude remains), I deem it necessary to refer to it only in the way in which I have, as a ten-

On the other hand might be cited the present position of the De Leon wing of the S. L. P. Utterly discredited, their position in this question has placed them entirely outside of the class struggle, so far as any meful function is concerned, and they represent the fanaticism of a movement for the liberation of the wage workers which has become impatient at what considers the slow progress of the sas.]

Formerly the tools of production ere simple and owned by the individ ual worker. To-day the machine, which is but as improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capi-tailsts to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responible for the ever increasing uncertain ty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it di-vides society into two hostile-classes the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rap idly disappearing in the mill of com-petition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press. the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and secial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly ascrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indisnate slaughter is eucouraged and the destruction of whole races is sauctioned in order that the conitalists may extend their commercial domin-ion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to So-cialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force bringing about this new and higher or-der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or netnal conflicts, are alike interested in the uphoiding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public owncrable parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political repreentatives of the capitalist class.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, there-fore, consider it of the utmost import-ance for the 3ocialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class o better its condition and to elect So cialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end-

As such means we advocate: 1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by mon-opolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of abor of the employees, to the improve ment of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor. 3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class. 4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purp e in order that the old age; the funds for this purpose

workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing,

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women. 7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents, But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an atgovernmental control of public utili ties for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working Socialist Mayor of Haverhill Taxes His Seat.

Republican Aldermon Yield with a Be-Grace-Socialists Leading to Vigorous Agitation of Fuel Question All Over the State.

HOSTON, Jan. 21.-Legislative mat ters have been very quiet this week. The only occurence of interest has been the appointment of the House act with a similar one of the senate to "investigate" the coal citration. Of course, none of the Socialists are appointed on the committee, which commenced its hearings yesterday. The attendance was small, probably because there is little faith such investigating commit

Parkman H. Flanders was sworn in an Mayor of Haverhill last night. His installation into office was again de-layed through the dilatory tactics of the Board of Aldermen, the members of which seemed unwilling to obey the decision of the Supreme Court deciar-ing Flanders the properly elected

The members of the Board professed ignorance as to how to act, inasmuch as the order of the court requiring the change of election records was dicted to the old Board, which went out of existence officially the first week of January. Pending action, the City Solicitor acted as Mayor, Poor, the former Mayor, having retired to the oblivion whose shades he will gracefully adorn.

On Thursday, to bring matters to a George Fred. Williams, counsel for Flanders, appeared before the Su-preme Court and applied for a supplementary order to enable Flauders to take his seat. Supreme Justice Knowl-ton expressed himself strongly upon the attitude assumed by the Haverhill sidermanic board, declaring that the Board was a continuous body and that non-compliance with the court's order would lay the members subject to ent for contempt of court.

The receipt of a letter yesterday by the Haverhill City Attorney from counsel Williams embodying this pinion of Justice Knowlton, and advising that the Begistrars and the Board of Aklermen immediately change the records, facilitated matters. with the result that a special meeting of the Aldermen was held last night, the records changed, and Flanders eworn in. Only a few Bocialists were present, among them Representative Carey, to see a Socialist Mayor again Installed in Haverbill, the annual fair being in progress in Lafayette Hall.

Flanders did not present a message.
His first official act was the appointment of Albert L. Gillen as his cierk. Gillen is one of the oldest and most faithful Socialist workers in Haver-hill. He was Mayor Chase's clerk dur-ing all the latter's second term and was also one of the first Socialist aclimen elected in Haverhill (1808) that district in 1900. The Republican movement to have the Mayor's Clerk elected by the City Council was sup-pressed, in view of the general feeling

The Fuel Agitation.

The Socialists are agitating constantly in the different localities where feeling is strong over the fuel hold-up. In Somerville, through the activity of local Socialists, a special general meet-ing was held, called by order of the Board of Aldermen when petitioned by fifty or more citizens. Squire E. Put-nsy was elected moderator and T. F. Volan secretary. W. P. THE GLOBE FAIR.

A Great Success Aiready Assured.

Many Comrides Working Wolf and More Are Reeded - Collection of Presents-Forty Thousand Tickets

The nine days' fair and labor expo sition to be held in Grand Central Pal-ace, March 28 to April 5, for the pure of raising funds for the establish nent of the "Daily Globe" will us doubtedly be a rousing success. This such is evident from the reports so far received. Eight weeks yet remain be-fore the opening of the fair, and the time is all too short for the work to be done; but if interest continues to grow as it has for some weeks past and the omrades and sympathizers do their best in the time now left them, there is no question that the fair will not such a large sum as to make the establish ment of the long desired daily an event of the early future. Tinkata Going Well,

The work of distributing and selling tickets to organisations continues cessfully. Up to date about tickets have been delivered to the dif erent organizations, and from reports received they are selling very well There are still a very large number of organizations to be visited and interest-ed, and if a large committee can be secured it will be an easy matter to dis pose of 100,000 tickets before the op n-ing of the fair. Comrades who can speak should iberefore inform Com-rade Butscher of their willingness to devote some of their evenings each week to visiting trade unions. rock has a double effect. It advertises the fair and calls the attention of the trade unlogists to the fact that the "Daily (liohe" is to be established. Let every speaker in the party in Greater New York report at once for duty.

Goldenting Presents-

Another line of work, perhaps of a il cuents for the fair. Every comrac can belp in this. The ladies especially can do very good service, as many of them are already doing. Those who are not yet at work should ask Secretary Butscher for donation books this week and do their share. Many thousands of presents will be needed. A good start has been made, but what has been done is only a start and the work must be carried on vigorous y.

We have received from Secretary Butscher a list of presents so far obtained and reported to him. We should like to present the list entire, to show our readers what a few of their num ber have already acomplished, unce forbids, for the list would on upy at least baif a page of The Worker and we have too many other matters press

A Good Beginning.

Among the donations we notice two complete sets of parlor furniture, number of aldeboards, dressers, tables fine chairs, tabourettes, book-stands clocks, rugs, pictures, frames, lace cui tains, sofa pillows, towels and table ful and ornamental household articles several bicycles; more bottles of wine, boxes of liquors, jars of tobacco, p'pos, smoking sets, etc., than we have time to count: many books-among them sets of Darwin, Suc, Erchman-Chat rian: several musical instruments. photographs, music-boxes, and music in folios or sheets; orders for tailor made suits, shoes, photographs, gre ceries, candy, and other desirable things; ranors, shaving sets, manicure sets, and toliet articles; and numerous shawls, umbrelies, shopping bags peckethooks, handkerchiefs, canes match boxes, card cases, gold and silver watches, chains, pins, cuff links suspenders, children's toys, fancy srticles of many sorts, and so on to the end of a long chapter.

This is enough to show what can be done by even a few "hustlers"—for it is comparatively a very few comrades who have so far reported and the re-guits of whose work are included in the list. For the others—"A word to the wise is sufficient" and "Go ther

"Prominent Employers" Favor New League.

New York "Sun" Also Londs Its Aid-Funny Statement Given Out by Prometer of Disguised Seab Agency.

In our issue of Jan. 11 we gave som account of the so-called National League of Independent Workingmen which we characterized as a "nationa scab bureau"—in the promotion of which a reverend gentleman named E. M. Fairchild is the supposed leader The New York "Sun" last week aned that this organization "is meeting with much success" and gave space to the following statement from Mr. Fairchild:

"Unions Rood Reforming."

"Letters from workmen favorable to its organization have been received from all parts of the United States, and personal consultations with some of our PROMINENT EMPLOYERS OF LABOR, who are not at all hostile to labor organizations, but WHO BE-LIEVE THE UNIONS NEED RE-FORMING, prove them to be favorably inclined toward such a labor or anization as is proposed.

"The League expects to win a large body of the more intelligent members of the unions into its own rauks, to incorporate, and to accumulate large funds for its work in the interests of labor, especially for its education in the trades, and to become the most in-fluential labor organization in the United States, composed, as it will be, of representatives of all branches of industry.

"It will contribute to business stability and success, thus promoting continued prosperity. It believes the 'hold up' game, 'Your money or your business,' so often practised by unwise labor leaders, and the boycott to be detrimental to the laboring people, be-cause they tend to unsettle business and precipitate hard times and intimidate many small capitalists who would otherwise take stock in new enter-

"It asserts that gworkman's compenbased on the rate of wages paid to a rorkman of inferior ability. It be lieves that its policy to assist in mak-ing business successful and then insist, through committees of concilia tion and arbitration, on the highest wages that the business will bear, will win more in the long run for the laboring people themselves than any other policy. It believes especially that by preserving the right of the individual workman to make the most of him self, and by education it can belp many of the laboring class to RISE INTO THE RANKS OF EMPLOY-ERS AND THEREBY MAKE WORK and develop American manufacturing, much to the interest of labor.

To Break Strikes on Principle.

The League is not and never will secome a band of strik ebreakers. No ne who intends to be fair will call it hat. It will not break a strike unless the strike is for the purpose of mone polizing the chance to work, which is unfair and against the general inter-cets of the country and the laboring people as a whole, LEAGUE MEN WILL RECEIVE NO EXTRA PAY FOR BREAKING AN UNFAIR STRIKE BUT WILL DO IT ON PRINCIPLE AND FOR THE CAUSE OF LABOR.

"So far as the League oppos unions, it will be for the sake of preventing them from going too far, and injuring the inboring people as well as others. It will discipline any of its own members who, during labor disputes, are guilty of reprehensible con-GAIN THE CONFIDENCE OF ALL CLASSES.

"The League is a higher-form of labor organization than the unions, and cordially invites the support of all classes of labor, for the good of labor and the nation in which all laboring men have the honor to be citizens."

The fact that the "Sun"—the most virulent enemy of the labor movement in America-thinks it worth while to m this new organization is suffitainty when we read Mr. Fairchild's

The "prominent employers of labor who are not at all hostile to labor organizations, but who believe the unions need reforming"—that is, who approve of unions, if these are so constituted and conducted as to serve the employers' interest—are exactly the employers who are most dangerous to the labor movement. A labor organination that the employer loves, one that strives to "gain the confidence of all classes" instead of standing squarely for the working class, is actually no labor organization at all, but a mere cat's paw for the exploiters

The statement that members of the League will break strikes only on principle and will righteously refuse any extra pay for such labors of love and faith is certainly rich. Mr. Fairchild Equally good, though not so new, is the idea that raising a few working-men into the employing class will "make work" for the rest and so be a blessing to those who are not "elect" to be "raised up." Doubtless it will take a good deal of toll on the part of the workers to maintain each additional capitlaist in proper dignity. Doubtless the League, if it has any success, will "make work" for the

ago, that the Anthracite Strike Comnission was created in good faith as a judicial body, to make an impartial investigation of facts and give judg ment in accordance with them upon the questions at , issue between the miners and the "operators"-if anyone approped this, they must by this time be grievously disappointed and distilusioned. The appointment of Judge Gray, an experienced jurist, as Chairman was put forward at that time as being, in itself, a sufficient assurance of the impertiality of the Commission The conduct of the arbitrators, and especially of Chairman Gray himself, has by this time given us abundan proof that the deliberate purpose and intent of the Commission is and from the beginning has been to confuse the issues, to discredit the miners' cause. to pervert public opinion against them. and so to pave the way for a decision satisfactory to the mine owners. Throughout the hearings Chairman Gray has borne himself more like a regularly retained counsel for the 'operators" than like the presiding justice of a court of inquiry and arbitration. He has lost no opportunity to comment on the evidence whenever a plausible comment to the prejudic of the miners could be made.

When the borrors of child labor were brought out by the miners' witnesses he took advantage of two or three individual cases, in which it was shows that the fathers were earning wager high enough to have enabled them to keep their children in school, to give an uncalled-for lecture on the wickedness of such parents, carrying the implication that these cases were typical and that the guilt of ch. '-exploitation lay at the doors of the workingmen For the employers, who, according to the overwhelming weight of the testimony, pay such low wages as to cess nel most of their men to send their children to work and even discriminate against workingmen who refuse to do so-for these who pile up fortunes at the expense of children's lives he had no word of censure.

When evidence was presented, o the one hand, to prove that the strikers had been guilty of assault, arson, and murder and, on the other, to prove that such crimes, so far as they did occur, were the acts of a few individunis, discountenanced and condemned by the miners' organization, its officers, and the vast majority of its members, and further that the private army of the coal companies had far outdone the lawless ones among the workers in their riotous and criminal behavior, Chairman Gray again saw his opportunity and, anticipating the verdict of the Commission, assumed to decide the question at once and to put the whole blame on the union and its

If anyone supposed, four months officers, and delivered himself of a violent diatribe against them.

These are but two of the most notable cases in which he has betrayed his bias and used his position to influence the other members of the Commission and, what is more important, to imfluence public opinion against the miners. For the capitalist papers have ever been ready, as Chairman Gray knew they would, to color their reports of the evidence presented, to give the utmost prominence to the Chairman's partial utterances, and to laud him and support his ex parte judgments in their editorial columns.

It is no accident that Chairman Gray conducts himself in this manner. He knows from his experience on the beuch that if, in an ordinary court of justice and in a case not involving the conflicting interests of employer and employees, he were to inject into the proceedings such prejudicial comments on the evidence presented, the injured party would be recognized as baying ample ground for demanding a new trial under a less partial judge. He knows that the extra-judicial comments in which he has indulged are entirely discordant with his ostensible duty. They are at variance with his habit as a judge. We cannot suppose that they are spontaneous or thoughtless: We must conclude that they are deliberately intended to effect a purpose and that this purpose was known to him and to those who recommended and who appointed him at the time when he assumed his place, and to the party in whose favor they are uttered. In other words, the work of the Anthracite Strike Commission is, so far, and will probably continue to be a travesty of justice. This is neither more nor less than was to be expected. The "operators" knew the truth too preli to have been willing to entrust their case to really importial arbitration. The President and his advisers are men of capitalist training and know that they owe their official positions to capitalist influence. With one possible exception, the members of the Commission are men bound by training and by interest to the capitalist system, men educated to regard the making of profits as a sacred right and a part of the natural and eternal order of things, and wholly unable to understand the thoughts or feelings or needs of the working class. For workingmen to expect any measure of justice from such a commi is to expect the jackal to judge fairly between the lion and the lamb. But the working people are lamblike norance or their apathy. They have the power, whenever they learn to use it, to meet and overthrow the capi-talist beast of prey. They will learn, They are learning. And this arbitration farce is helping them to learn.

honest tollers in the sense of making | CALIFORNIA'S trouble for them at the bosses' dicta-tion. But it is rather late in the day to expect intelligent men to bel that the workers could not labor and produce wealth without a class of owners to "give them work" and take profits from them.

The plan of stimulating the hope in the breast of each individual work-man that he may succeed in getting out of his class and riding on the backs of his less shrewd or more acrupulous felibws is, of course, a part of the settled policy of the capitalists. But by their own recurrent displays of arrogant class spirit they are rapidly teaching the workers that the only ate and the only honorable hope of advancement for the individual workingman is by and through the rise and the final emancipation of the whole Mr. Fairchild's League, under the intelage of "prominent employers abor" and with the approval of the New York "Sun," may succeed in mak-ing some trouble for the labor movement. It is well, therefore, that work ingmen should be on their guard against this or any similar insidious attack.

THE DISCUSSION OF PARTY APPAIRS

We fully realize that many of ou Tenders may by this time be tired of be discussion on the attitude of the Socialist Party toward Union Labor parties, that not a few may think we devote too much space to it at the expense of news and propaganda matter, and that some even think such discusaions out of place in such a paper as The Worker, thinking that they give the large number of readers outside the party a false or exaggerated idea of the differences existing within our ranks. We realize all this and, for ourselves, we are rather tired of the ussion. Nevertheless, we conside much discussion necessary-and not a necessary evil, but positively beneficia to Socialists within and without the party. Certainly we do not think that all of the communications we have published were intrinsically valuable; nome that were not so were worth pub lishing because of the position of the riter; one, at least-that of Comrade Dunn in last week's issue--commended itself to us both for this reason and also because its very glaring faults sed to us so well to illustrate the wefkness of the theory it maintained We have at hand a few more com munications on the same question and on others closely connected with it, which we intend to publish, and we have, of course, some further comments of our own to make. But become this issue of The Worker will be rather more widely distributed among those outside the Socialis ranks than is usually the case, we interrept for a week the discussion of such internal affairs.

One or two locals of the party have demanded the expulsion of comrades who actively advocate the policy of fusion or co-operation with labor parties. Against this extreme we would protest as vigorously as against the other. In order to have real and effective discipline in our party it is necessary that we have free discus-So long as comrades are willing to shide by the decision of the pasty. It would be the height of folly to farhid them an opportunity to express their views on party questions. Such a policy, which truly merits the adjective "De Leonite," if adopted, would assuredly strengthen the hands of those who favor compromise of a relexation of party tactics.

The comrades in the city and state of New York cannot be too often reminded of the nacessity of advertising our official party name and emblem. If this is neglected and only a general agitation for Socialist principles carmany of those who are con vinced by our arguments but know little or nothing of the party organization are likely to cast their votes for the S. L. Where literature not bearing this name and embien is distributed, a rubber stamp should be used to supply the needed information At every public meeting the chairman should state that the Social Damocratic Party of New York is identical with the Socialist Party of other states, the difference of names being due to requirements of the law, and that the Arm and Torch is the emblem nader which Socialist votes should be cast. - The neglect of these simple ensures in some quarters cost us sevoral thousand votes last November. and it ought not to be allowed to go on.

MILITARISM AT HOME.

Just what is the purpose of the governments of the United States, of Germany, of England, and the other powers in the Venezuela affair, it is impossible for anyone outside the inner circles of "statesmanship" to say with any degree of certainty. That it is a big steal, a scheme of international burglary, goes without saying. We have only to look back at the cases of Egypt, Cyprus, the Transvaal, Hawali, Cuba and the Philippines, the late Chinese affair, and many others of the sort, to be sure of that. The question remains, just what sort of a stedi it is to be and how the loot is to be propor

One thing may be said pretty confidentiy, however. While the great capitalists of the United States, in the present very unstable condition of "our prosperity," probably do not at all want war-wer, that is, with any first-class military or naval power-yet they well see the purpose which a war seare can serve for them in internal affairs.

"Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel, said bluff old Samuel Johnson. We would not give full and unqualified assent to the definition, even though it is embodied in a dictionary. There was a time when patriotism, even in its crudest form, was one of the most necessary and important of virtues. Even yet there are forms of patriotism for which we have deep respect-though it must be added that such patriotism is rare. The patriotism preached by the capitalist class through its mouthpieces of press, pulpit, college chair, and political platform, however, is well covered by Doctor Johnson's phrase. Whenover the workingmen of any country begin to think together for themselves and to show a disposition to resis class rule, then it is the game of the capitalist class to get up a war-or, if a real war is not to be wished, then at least a rumor of war-and to stir up the workers to a frenzy of patriotism of haired for foreigners and blind worship of the flag, in order that they may be led to forget the wrongs and the hopes of their class and that their very scontent may be turned to serve the sordid greed of their masters.

This purpose ,at least, the capitalist class of the United States seeks to accomplish as an incident to the Vene zuela affair. If American workingman can be stirred with mad hatred of his German brothers, the capitalist reasons, he will forget to bate the rule of Wall Street and the Trust Kings.

Under this cover of patriotism the national government has succeeded in carrying out another foully cherished in such a way as to bring it more completely under centralised capitalist control.

It is not for defense against foreign enemies that the militia reorganization is intended. The representative capitalist papers, during the last week, have guardedly but unmistakably indicated its real purpose when they have referred to the Chicago strike of 1894 and the coal strike of last summer as cases in which the old plan of militia organization has been found unsatts factory and have promised their patrons that, under Secretary Root's new plan as now enacted by Congress and signed by the President, the settle ment of such conflicts will be far casier for the forces of "law and order" and "vested rights."

Militariam differs in form, but in substance and intent and effect it is the same whether in Germany or in the United States. Everywhere it is a part of the enginery of tyrants. Everywhere it is a menace to the walfare of the workers. Everywhere the power of the workers should be used against it.

Our valiant and veteran comrade, August Bebei, has well said in the German Reichsing: "We know but two nations in the world to-day-the nation of producers and the nation of exploiters, the nation of workers and the nation of capitalists." As surely as that the general elections will come within five months, so surely can we medict that at those elections the German division of the interestions. to militarism and strike one more telling blow against capitalist rule, by an enormous increase in the Socialist vote. It is far you, readers of Th Worker, you who hate robbery, legal or illegal, you who have war, whether on the bettle-field or masked under the forms of peace, it is for you to second the efforts of your comrades in Ger many and resist the open or covert attacks of capitalist misrulers at home by carrying the light of Socialism to all your follow workers and enlisting them in the great work of making pos sible "Peace on earth and good will teward men."

The discovery that wealthy New York millionaires have been employing proxies to "swear off" their taxes for them is nothing to cause surprise That a capitalist should dodge taxes is natural. It is a demonstration of "business ability." That he should want to escape the chance of going to jail is natural, and of course be would have no eccupies about hiring anyone rash enough and needy enough to take the risk for him. What are hired men for, if not to risk liberty or life in the service of those who "give them employment"? District Attorney Jerome will probably win great renown out of this affair. In the tunnel case he let the Vanderbiltz, Depew, and the resi of the principals go, and got Engineer Winker indicted. He will doubtless follow the precedent here-keep his hands off the millionaires and mete out condign punishment to their hired

District Attorney Jerome was ex pacted at the Central Federated Union of New York last Sunday, but failed to appear. It's "dollars to doughnuts" he'll continue to be conspicuous by his absence from that or any other place where workingmen would have a chance to put plain questions to him and demand a plain answer.

The editors of the San Francisco "Advance" and the Les Angeles "So cialist" protest against our statement in welcoming the "California Sectation" to the field, that "the older party papers in California have committed the grave error of refusing a hearing b those who opposed the fusion policy." They deny that the facts justified our use of these words and, on sober con sideration, we are bound to admit that we made the statement somewhat rashly, but at this distance we had n adequate means of judging the facts and ought not to have made such a charge against these papers. Continuing heartily to oppose the policy which they have advocated, we frankly apologize for what may have been a grave injustice on our part. "To err is human." Will our California co workers practice the divine virtue of forgiveness?

"The poet," says Shelley, "Is the on acknowledged legislator of the future" Remembering that a post does not necessarily write in rhyme and that rhymesters are not necessarily poets it is indeed impressive to consider how often the poets, the men of imagina tion, have anticipated the essence, the soul, of movements whose details had to be worked out through long and painful years by the men of science men of action. For instance, read this from Thomas Cartyle: "Ah, me! into what waste latitudes in this time voyage have we wandered, like adventurous Sinbada, where the men go about as if by galvanism, with ingless, glaring eves, and have no soul, but only of the beaver faculty, and stomach! The baggard despair of cutton factory and coal mine opera-tives, ('handos farm laborers, in these days, is painful to behold; but not so painful, hideons to the inner sense, as that brutish, God-forgetting, profitand-loss philosophy and life-theory which we hear jangled on all hands of us, in senate, houses, sporting clubs, leading articles, pulpits and platforms, everywhere, as the ultimate gospel and candid, plain English of man's life from the throats and ness and ate of all-but all man"

"The great cry that rises from all our manufacturing cities, louder than their furnace blast, is all in very deed for this -- that we manufacture everything and strengthen steel, and refine sugar and shape pottery; but to brighten, to strengthen, to refine or to form a single living spirit, never enters into our estimate of advantages. And all the exil to which that cry is urging our myrinds can be met only in one way; not by teaching nor preaching, for to teach them is but to show them their misery; and to preach to them, if we do nothing more than preach, is to mock at it. It can be met only by a right understanding, on the part of all classes, of what kinds of labor are good for men, reising them and mak-ing them happy; by a determined onc-

Venezuela will not do much for you. But you can do much for Venezuela. You may die for Venezuela. And after you have died for Venezuela your family may starve for America. How you will feel houored after you are dead to know that your name is on the pension list. It would be a pity to ask the President or your Congresuman to go out and die for Venezuela, If they were to die what would become of Oyster Bay and what would become of Oyster Bay and who would be left to set up the primaries? THE SOCIALISM OUTSIDE.

By Peter E. Burrowes.

While it is inevitable to Socialist thought that we realise our success and opinions to be directed by the secondancy of economic conditions as well as by heredity (the biological result of that ascendancy) it is not inevitable that we should be led to look upon that economic direction in a helpess sort of way, and so fall into evolutionary Calvinism. The most me-fully convinced Socialist in the world is that one whose flocialism is not a thing of moods and humors but a thing outside to be directed as it directs. There is an important difference be tween the man who has made Socialmade its own of by Socialism. The first makes the social problem to be a thing undertaken deliberately in the leisure and liberty of his own mind; and the other believes in society as a having its own experience, its own problems and its own movements, with which the true Socialist, half con-sciously and half unconsciously, is slowly developing into conformity. The human race is thus to him The Socialist to which he mentally bears the relation of a gradually developing mininture photograph. The development of the individual into the Socialist thinker is the most interesting, the most spiritual, and the most humanely practical process is men's experience. On the mental side. It is a struggle of the self out of itself into its containing class of other selves, commencing, however, in this paradox—to learn to live without you that I may thereby best learn how to with you. In competitive econ omics it has been this very same para-dux; all the time trading mysulf, away, from you into a corporation, a trust or syndicate of you and me. And the political history of all nations has told for ever the same story, of small striv ing pations fighting themselves into great political wedlocks or federations and empires. Thus the slave class of modern times has been kept on the broken billows as competing person fighting with each other for bread order that they may learn how to fight with each other for all of life in the struggies of the Eo

There is some anxiety in the minds of many truly devoted Socialist com-rades so to the possibility of ever making the entire protetariat class-co scious and having a social, political and economic intelligence such as you and I have new. And so their anxiety is thus expressed: Will the dead weighted alayery of the workers, as we know them, ever be able to struggle into an intelligent revolution against the numerically growing physical hords of ignorance now issuing from the cradics, the schools and the churches cradics, the schools and the churches into his class? Must we look to edu-cation or provocation as the ante-sti-mate, the insmediate cause of the revo-lution? With this difficulty in mind one set of comrades calls for reform the workers and thus by turkey diet to prepare them for the revolution, while ariother maintains that the slaves' ex tremity is Socialism's opportunity.
I hold to the latter spinion though might dearly love a revolution by culment like the waters of a draining lake consists of some few that more draft and the many who move after. Just as in the trade unions the majority of the sure members have little other in telligent relation to their unions than onfidence and the will always to support a strike which has been delib-erately and democratically ordered, so the west majority of workers trained into an abiding infidelity in capitalism by a century's outrages, will have grown into them a corresponding faith in Socialism which shall be altogether in excess of their academic knowledge of its science, its philosophy, or its prophecy; and having no other out-look, as the intellectuals may have, they are not only as sure, but sure Socialists than many of their leaders These multitudes furnish us, by their faith, their necessities, their extremity and their habits of trade unionism. with all the class-consciousness that is ceded. Thus it is a revolution imdirected from within, a revolution that is nearly inevitable.

The Socialism autides, the glacial provenent which I am thinking of in this paper, consists of that multitude and their wrongs. The maximum trade and their wrongs. The movement is not an event but a long, long series of events. Fust moving. And no agitator can tell and no philosopher can es it ail. But what we know of it that we can report, and what we may therefrom anticipate, that we may

It is the duty of every Socialist voter to learn more of Socialism and of the agitator to help him on. The work of the Socialist agitator is to make people Socialist movement as it is developing outside of organized Socialism as well within; and to persuade them to in that organization of canacious Sojoin that organization of cuts claims to meet the unconscio In the doing of this work the first of sil, and the best of all the sil, and the best of all, the agitators' efforts must be directed to the work of making the proletariat class conscious of the most imperant part they are to piney in hastening the flocialist civiliza-tion. The second thing to be done is to facilitate such reforms as will keep the proletariat in fighting order, so to speak, for the accompliabment of their flow necessary role of revolutionary impetus out to the new evillation. But ever hearing this in mind that re-form is other palitative or progressive legislation; the former merely aiming at Brancher the mark men allers and the at Resping the workmen alive, and the latter being such only in the degree to the social action and reaction for prog-ross on-destruction are the man who in-willing to let up take the place of ownership as the alement of civilina-tion and the man who demands pos-sexion as the element of civilination— that in the horislist and the purvate owner. All social movements are currents from one or other of these tw fundamental forces of present society. Now, from the moment mankind en tered into any form of even eru society the Socialist movement began the movement towards collectivism and from that same movement the an-tagonistic movement towards anarchy in the name of private property coumenced. Socialism though it was alentrance into society by men, was nevertheless only the unconsciously trodden path of history up to the be-ginning of the 19th century. From thence on it has become and shall in creasingly become the conscious intro tion of all intelligent public life. That intention has now to be cultivated in that suffering class for whose saiva-tion it is the all-absorbing need. It is tion that shall save the world. It may be noted that the two minds of th the social mind to look for and to keep its essential things on the outside of it and in the community, while the individualistic mind aims always at some way of summarizing the world for the purposes of appropriating it within himself. Thus the whole tendency of individualistic manage ment of public affairs is to turn the big things of society and even of natur into the portable and appropriateable no other use for God than to get him inside of himself; that is, to approprinte him. The Socialist finds him self in the external life; the individual ist finds the external life in himself or takes steps to get it there. As both of these are identists, and not one of them only, their idealism is affected accord-

Hecause Socialism is verity and indirhiualism is faisity the latter is compelled for a great part of its activities, to dig and build outside of himself. But even in that act he is constrained by his anti-social faisity to affirm that his work is the picture or redection of himself. A multitude of great buildings in a city is to this idealist only so many monuments of the genius of munificence of some private persons. What he cannot put into his pockets he puts into a picture gallery of pri vate persons called citizens, owner he tries to include the world; as an artist he looks upon the ontside world as that which includes him, his frame merely. This is the range of the ego idealism of private property ultimating in anarchy.

On the other hand, the idealism of Socialist corresponds with movements of economic production. It contemplates the soul of man beautify ing itself by organizations, combine tions, and solidarity. The initial poin of moral beauty is that farthest away from ego and its ultimate is that point where ego meeting the approaching ex-ternal Socialism passes into it. Human wisdom may thus be said to consist of a man's ability to separate biography from history; while human virtue is the will, based upon such ability, to choose the larger social in-terest; and Socialism is the sum, in practice, of such ability and such willof the larger-life in national and world

The life of man since it nassed fro liography to history has been such an external movement around two poles; and, internally, one against each other an antithesis of the classes of property and labor.

To keep labor in its own class and to keep it there by means of its own labor and vigor, yet so that it willingly should serve the nurnoses of destructive property is the program of the property state; while the program of the ideal Socialist labor state is to and that class struggle and unite the autithesis into a new state without slaves called Socialism.

Underneath this antithesis between the property and the labor man is the growing of the single personal mind into group mind and from thence to the last time when all mankind shall have but one general interest and but one opinion in economics, This evolution of the mind is not a conscious or voluntary effort. It is a outside. The outside is the real and causal life; the inside is the ideal consequent. The race will be complete when all the real of the one is all the vision of the other.

Misunderstanding between the realist and idealist in Socialism takes place when the idealist attempts to take the initiative. The idealist Socialist trusting to his own impressions and thinking they are his own home-born products instead of what they truly are, only his broken images of the real Socialism then actually side, attempts to adjust it to hi perfect picture. The horizon of the single mind never being identical with available fields and powers of practice be is a light but not a leader of men out to the real Socialism which is tak ing place around us and inviting our minds and wills towards it. When the idealist learns that the Socialism of man is all outside of him hidden in the big affair of the multitude be will prese outward to leadership and this he do only when he ceases to feel parentage and ownership of his idealisms and realises them by attributing them to the Socialism outside. The realist differs very little in the nature of his error and its consequent limitations, from the idealist. The latter mistakes the impression for the immattons, from the internal. He said that emistakes the impression for the seal that stamped it, and thinks somehow that it is his impression that stamps the seal; while the realist mistakes his knowledge of the real world without for that mak world limit. without for that real world i While he scourges the idealist with his knowledge calling it law, the idealist scourges him with his impression call-ing it truth. Yet the law and the truth are one, and is at an equal dis-tance outside of them both; it is s-social movement imperatively calling upon both of us to move with the realist clears his mind of the can which confuunds counte and evolu-tionary leves with the statement of them, and the kiestlist clears his min-of the cast which confounds impre-

Harpers' Weekly. . Some Republican newspapers seem to have entered into a consultancy of silence for the purpose of hiding from thoughtful persons the ominous sig-nificance of the returns exhibiting the growth of Socialism during the last two years. It is no sincere or far-sighted upholder of individualism who acts upon the theory that anything is to be gained by a suppression of un release facts. If on the face of offi cial statistics, there is spread proof of the fact that Socialism is likely two years hence to become as formidable s political power in this country as Populism was ten years ago, the agoner the fact is recognized the bet-ter. Eternal vigilance is the price of economical salvation. Individuals can-not conjure the spectre of Socialism by shutting their eyes and pretending that they seen no signs of it. The startling truth is that, while Eugene V. Debs the Socialist candidate for President is 1900, received but 88,000 votes, over 400,000 votes were polled for Socialisi candidates for Congress at the recen eneral election. If the voting strength of Socialists should increase at the same rate during the next two yearsthat is to say, at the rate of 500 pe would be able to cost al 1904. In ohter words, they would be twice as strong as the Populists wer in 1902, might carry a few states, and would hold the balance of power in others. What is much more serious they might tempt one of the great polltical parties in 1908 to a species of fusion such as Mr. Bryan brough about between the Democratic and Populist parties in 1896. It is not by blinking and pretending to ignore it that the best means of coping with so grave a danger can be devised.

What bears all the ear-marks of a paid puff has been printed in one or two obscure sheets in which the bold statement is made that one-half the statement is made that one-hair the labor papers in the country are boom-ing W. R. Hearst, the millionaire newspaper proprietor, for President. The fact is, less than half a dozen The fact is, less than han a unseason of the most hysterical, the "Labor Compendium" of St. Louis, which has howled loudly for many moons "to keep politics out of the union," has evidently minjudged the temper of its readers, for new that organ is aiming to noften criticism by making John Mitchell the tail for its Hearst hite. This is an insult to Mitchell and all ed labor. In the first pince, the organi miners' president has announced eral times that he will stand for cilitical office, and for that reason the "Compendium's" scheme to use his name for bargaining purposes is shameful. Secondly, the dium" betrays its contempt for organ ized labor when one of its most promi nent members is placed in a position of piaying second fiddle to a millionaire. If this diagnoting sheet in St. Louis wants to break into politics, why doesn't it show at least decency enough to been Mitchell for President, or admit that it wants to get close to a millionaire's barrel? Lahor is forrer regarded inferior to capital by the inter, which is bad enough, but when a contemptible sheet that poses as a contemptible sheet that poses as cofficial organ of the National Building Trades Council of America," and whose editor is supposed to be secre-tary of that Council, deliberately an and dorses by its own acts that victous principle, it's time that those union men who are in a position to go after that paper and its editor with a club get busy. Labor is prior to and above capital, and any union man who would confer honors upon a millionaire in preference to a trade unionist who has shown his logalty to his class ought to resign from his organization and go over to the class that he admires, aid and defends.

New Jerses."
These are the "existing conditions" which must not be tinkered with: Liellbernie violation of the law of the state by the mill-owning companies; systematic refusal by state officials to compet obcdience to the law; cold-blooded sacrifice of human bodies and souls to the Moloch of corporate greed.

To enforce the law, to compel officials to do their duty, to abolish childslavery in Pennsylvania, to deprive capital's camibal god of his banquet of infants' fiesh, is to "tinker" with vested inequities and imports the pros-

If the prosperity of this commonwealth has been built upon the graves of murdered babes and cemented with their blood, it is a monument to greed, an altar erected for the worship of the devil, that cannot be overthrown too soon. Des Moines Register and Leader.

One of the important features of the last election attracting attention now that the results are being reviewed, was the growth of the Socialist Party. As a political organization it has not hereto-fore been a factor, for it has never commanded votes enough to hold the balance of power in any one of the close States, but its gains this year have sig nificance. Two years ago the vote for Eugene Debs was only 86,000 in the Inited States, but at the recent election the party cast about 400,000 votes. In Ohio is vote will make it third on the official bailot next year.

The growth of the party was uniform over the country, showing that it was not accounted for by the candidates or peculiar political conditions of any one locality, but must be attributed to a uccess was as large proportionally in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa as it was in the manufacturing districts of the East where the Sociallatic doctrines have been more system atically propagated.

The same drift of opinion developed in the recent convention of the Federation of Labor at New Orleans, where an attempt to commit the organization to the principles of Sociatism failed by the very close vote of 4,844 to 4,744. with the induence of such leaders as Compers belying against it.

Undoubledly the massing of capital that has been going on, the impressive growth of corporations, and the apparent dwarfing of the individual, as an world, have caused this awakening of ocialistic sentiment. The public has been prepared by these developments to receive the doctrines of state owner ship of utilities and state management of industries more readily than ever be-fore, and the socialistic teachers have improved their opportunity.

The tendency and direction of indus-trial evolution is just now towards Serinliam. Two generations ago, when the political evolution was towards constitutionalism and democracy, unwise churchmen permitted the altar to be too much associated with the throne and the ancient regime. In that way the church lost influence with the growing tendency. We see no reason why this mistake should be repeated in the case of industrial evoluti

JOIN A. L. U. From a Butte paper we take the ollowing piece of news, interesting both to Socialists and to trade unjou-

The American Labor Union is rapidly becoming the great power in the West and each day its strength is being greatly added to. Yesterday Fresident Dan McDonald received an application for affiliation from the United Brotherbood of Railway Employees, a very large organization with more than 40,000 members, with headquarters at San Francisco. President George Es-tes is the head of the organization, and in a letter acompanying the application he stated that according to a ballot taken a short time ago, the mentions were almost a unit in favor of affiliation with the American Labor Union. "The Brotherhood is a great power in the West, and its co-operation with strengthen anaterially both organiza-tions. It extends all along the Pacific coast from Vancouver all the way down past the Mexican boundar; Nearly all the men on all the roads on the coast are members of the Brotherhood, and on the Southern Pacific practically all the employees be long to the order. There are now twenty-six organizers in the field, and the Brotherhood is spreading and increasing rapidly.

"A few months ago, at the assembly of the delegates of the different lodges, the matter of applying for affliation with the American Labor Union was brought up and favorably reported. In order to give all the members a voice, a ballot was taken, with the result that nearly all voted in favor of the proposition."

The Brotherhood of Rallway En ployees is a comparatively young or ganization, formed on lines somewhat similar to those of the American Reliway Union, which is well remembered for the great Chicago strike of 1891. It takes in railway workers of all sorts engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, etc., on a basis of in dustrial organization, instead of the old plan of trade autonomy. It dis-claims any hostility toward the older brotherhoods of the several milway trades, but has been bitterly opposed by their officers. The B. E. of E. in as radical as the older brotherhoods are conservative, and has shown considerable vitality and fighting power. Its membership is chiefly in the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain states, at though it has branches as far east as

At the last meeting the club discussed he subject "How to Acquire the Property of the Capitalist," and at the next meeting each comrade will be expected to make a short speech on any phase of Socialism.

The meeting of the Young Men's on Thursday, Jan. 22, was the first held at the new Labor Lyceum and it was well attended. The plan the club is preparing to increase the membership will soon go into effect. The discussion on the party platform was a good one, and it was decided to continue on the same subject the next

THE COMING TIME

Then a man shall work and bethink him, and rejoice in the deeds of his hand.

Nor yet come home in the even too faint and weary to stand. Men in that time a-coming shall work, and have no fear and have no fear

For to-morrow's lack of earning and the hunger-wolf anear.

O strange, new, wonderful justice! But for whom shall we gather the gain?

r ourselves and for each of our fel-lows, and so hand shall labor in valn. Then all mine and all thine shall be ours, and no more shall any man erave For riches that serve for nothing but to fetter a friend for a slave.

And what wealth there shall be left us when none shall gather gold To buy his friend in the market and pinch and pine the sold? Nay, what save the lovely city, and the little house on the hill, And the wastes and the woodland beauty, and the happy fields we And the bomes of ancient stories, the tombs of the mighty dead;

And the wise men seeking out marvels and the poet's teeming head.
And the painter's hand of wonder, and the marvelous fiddle-how

And the banded choirs of music all

For all these shall be sure and all men's, nor shall any lack a share Of the toil and the galu of living in the days when the world graws fair.

THE MOST IMMEDIATE OF IMMEDIATE DEMANDS.

The Socialist Party, as such, was originally intended to be a means to an end—that is, the propagator of So-cialism, which implies the abolition of private capital and the introduction of the Co-operative Commonwealth. At a means to this end it adopted a platits fundamental principles and the truths and laws upon which those and absolutely misleading as to the final demand embodied in its body nands" are an attempt at recouciling irreconcliables. They are a subterfuge for the reform element that has flocked to the flocksits Party in the last few months. Hence the rapid and almost unexpected growth of the party which is highly suggestive of a de-teriorative force in its platform and constitution, especially so because the laboring forces of the United States are favoring more than ever any reform measures or improvements that may be suggested, and are coming to realize that their hopes for a better-ment of their conditions must not be rentered upon those who are directly Interested in maintaining a conserva-tive policy. It is for this superflux of reform elements toward the party that all the revolutionary Socialists in the party should make all efforts worths of their cause, to preserve, strengthes, and re-invigorate the membership with the class-character of the Socialist movement, and not rely solely upon their periodicals and Socialist Party.

Our liberal union tactics and the state autonomy granted by our constitution have given the political floater a chance to drift far away from the a chance to drift far away from the usual attachments, and the getting away from the old moorings when we separated from the S. L. P. threatens to end in a hippwreck. After a declaration for the abolition of classes, the restoration of land and of all means of production and trans portation and distribution to the people as a collective body, and the sub stitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth for the present planless production, it seems like tautology to propose with a view to "immediate improvement" in the condition of la-bor, "Reduction of hours of labor," in the face of evertaining exploitation of labor, "The United States to obtain personing of the mines, railroads etc." and of all the means of production and distribution, and the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth, "Inns to be free to all, the inventors to be remunerated by the nat the benefit of a few capitalists. Suci and like propositions have been ex-bodied in the "immediate demand suffix" of Bocialist parties in this coun try and have been at all times a laugh ing stock for thinking men inside and, outside of the movement.

Some of the measures propo so revolutionary that the capitalist class could as well resign itself to be governed as to pose as the ruler without any powers attached to the office. as to the isborer, for whose benefit such extravagant demands and made, and whose vote is supposed to be caught and nothing clea, be he class-councious or class-nucouscious, he knows that it requires the political powers to introduce any political peasure with a view to its enforce ment. The laborer has seen and learned by experience that no legislation is effective or can be effective un less with the legislative action is com bined the power of cufored Therefore he is not willing to vote in favor of the best of immediate de mands because he knows that, with the election of the party that proposes, such extravagant measures, he puta into power a party that is ready to abolish capitalism in its entirety. Thus the subterfuge does not even do its work effectively and serves no other purpose than to hinder the movement from its natural and rational develop

The Socialist Party has no justifica tion for existence, other than to age tate, organize, and clear the way to ward the institution of Socialism. To this end and as a means to this end it may take a friendty but reserved stand toward all trade unloss and give them moral and, if possible, material help without compromising its class character and without losing its dig-nity as the army proper to which the be nothing else but suxiliary bodies for re-enforcement. To command the respect and admiration of the work-ingman and to make him an ardent worker for the ideals of the party, the party must keep clear of middle-class tactics, reform, humbug, and all ash barrel politics. This it can do only by squarely standing upon the most im mediate of "immediate demands," demand that every workingman will be compelled to stand by, sooner or later—that is, the abolition of exploitation of the working class by the cap talist class, and the restoration of all powers, assumed by the class now owning all the means of production and distribution, to the producers of all wealth. This demand becomes more and more immediate as the capi-talist system is nearing the summit of its power and is bound to drive to the working class will gradually condense itself into one party and assimilate and absorb all reform elements, it, should be the special mission of the Bocialist Party to create a platform. upon which such amimintion and at-sorption is possible. The Common Ground.

The Socialist Party has its sole reason for existence in the division of so-ciety into classes, the exploitation and ion of the working class, and oppression of the working the necessity for its emancipation. Neither of the old parties openly stand for the interests of any one class; they pretend not to recognize the existence of clauses; each of them claims to represent the interests of all the pro-But facts are stubborn and do disappear because men deny their The class struggle is a fact; and the very parties which, in their and the very parties which, in their ante-election professions, refuse to see it, in their post-election practices, give the most striking illustrations of its force; they pretend to represent all the people in order that they may win litical power with which to serve a part of the people at the expense of the rest. The Socialist Party takes no such false position. It claims to repre-sent only a part of the people—the more numerous and the only useful class-as against the amail and useless ines of exploiters whom the old par

The Bocialist Party, then, is an or ganization founded on working-class interest and having as its object the advancement of the interests of the corkers as against those of the capi-

The trade unions in general have, is the past, refused to admit in words the existence of the class struggle between capitalists and workers; some of them still do not clearly recognize it; we often hear labor lenders (even honest ones) talking in the same strain with old-party politicians about the "bro-therhood of Capital and Labor" and declaring that the object of the unions is not to fight the capitalists but."to establish harmony between employers and employed." But the acts of the Just as the old-party politicians, denying the existence of classes, faithfully serve the capitalist class, so the unions, denying the conflict of class interests, yet put forth every effort and for the interests of the working class against their employers. It is not words that count, but acts; and the action of the unions, in demanding reduction of working bours or increase of pay or improvement of the condi-tions of labor, against the will and the interest of the employers, and in fighting for these objects with such weapons as the strike, the boycott, and the label-such action proves that the only reason for their existence is in ing class and the employing class.

The trade unions, then, like the So ing an their object the advancement of those of the capitalists.

to carry on the battles of the working class in detail under the conditions of the capitalist system. So long as capitaliam lasts the workers will be ove worked and robbed and oppr Trade unions cannot put a stop to this. But they often can and do somewhat lighten the burden of toll and some-

What relations should subsist between the Socialist Party and the trade unions? What is the duty of the Socialist Party and of individual Socialist Party and socialist Party would take place were there no union And, perhaps more important than all, they train the workers in the babit of feeling and thinking and acting togather, the invaluable habit of organi

The means and methods for carry ing on this daily struggle are industrial or economic, not political—the strike, the hoycott, the label, the workingcard, the benefit funds. In order to use these methods with the maximum of success it is desirable that every workman in a trade should belong to the trude organization, and on distinction can be made on account of poli ties any more than of race or religion A union which should admit only Republicans or only Democrats or only Socialists or should exclude either of these or discriminate between them

To sum up: The unions fight for immediate and partial improvement of the workers' condition by purely industrial methods which require for their successful operation that all working-mer shall be taken in without distinction of political belief. The specific function of the Socialist Party is to fight for the complete enancipation of the working class from exploitation and class tyranny. This can be accomplished only by the overthrow of the capitalist system and the building up of a Co-operative Com-monwealth. This is a far larger aim than that of the unions. It is a different but not a conflicting aim.

act always with this final aim is view is not to say that it can do nothing for the immediate betterment of the work-ers' condition; on the contrary, as it gains partial control of the powers of government or even before it has gained any victories at the polls (through the fear which its growth inspires), it can and does do very much to advance the immediate interests of the working class; and it does this the more effectively in proportion as it guides itself by the light of its one

The methods which the Socialist Party uses for this great battle are distinctly political methods-education in economic and political science, ganization of those, who accept its principles, and political compaigns for the purpose of putting the powers of government in the hands of men government in the hands of men pledged to carry those principles into In order that these methods should be used with success it is necessary that all who believe in the principles of Socialism should be politically united; no distinction can be made on any other ground. If the party should exclude members or divide its forcer on other questions—even on questions which may legitimately be considered by trade unions-it would assuredly not succeed as a political party.

To sum up: The Socialist Party To sum up: The Socialist Party seeks the ultimate complete emancipa tion of the working class, through the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, and fights for this end by educational and political methods which require that no qualification but sincere support of Socialist principles be recognized.

The Limit of Our Duty,

In view of this difference in purpos and method between the two move ments, what are the limits of our duty to the unions? What have the union not a right to demand of us?

They have no more right to demand that the Socialist Party shall sub-ordinate its political efforts to their in dustrial battles than the party has to demand the reverse of them. It is the cialism and get votes for the Socialist ticket, and every other consideration must be subordinate to these.

The unions have no right to demand on one side or the other in their internal questions. If they ask it, we have no right to yield. It is neither the right nor the duty of the Socialist Party to involve itself in conflicte of jurisdiction and the like among or within the unions. Such interference as shown by experience in the past, is harmful to both movements. Such questions can be solved only by the nions themselves. The Socialist Party should give its support to unio to any workingmen, organized or un-organized—as against the capitalists, but not to one union as against as

We speak here of the party, as such. With the individual Socialist it is a different matter. It is the duty of each Socialist to join the union of his trade: and he is there in duty bound to take a position on union questions. He abould act there, fearlessly and energetically, for the highest good of his class, which will include the highest good of his craft.

Nor are Socialists bound to refrain from public discussion of the policy of the unions. Provided such discussion is based on principle and is carried on in an intelligent manner, provided it is fraternal criticism and advice, not flattery nor abuse nor attempted dictation, it is beinful to both movements.

In a word, the Socialist Party doe not seek to dictate to the unions in their affairs nor is it willing to be dictated to by them in its own affairs; i shuns entangling affiances; it desires that the two movements should be carried on independently in order tha they may be carried on harme

What We Demand

What, on the other hand, done the Socialist Party sek of the unions? Two things, we think, we have a right in demand.

First, The unions on their side musi remember the different purposes and methods of the two movements. They would rightly object did the party seek to form rival unions: With equal reaon, the Socialist Party objects if the unions seek to form a new party. In the nature of things, as pointed out bethe nature of things, as pointed out be-fore, the union must include men of all tical beliefs. -A party-can include only men who agree in political belief.

The union which attempts to be also a political party, therefore, must either cease to be a real union or fail to be a real party. The Socialist Party mus maintain its right to the political field as strictly as it withholds its hand from the industrial field.

Second, The unious are the great primary school of the working class.

Experience shows that it is impossible. as reason shows that it would be unwise, to prevent the discussion positive? questions there. There is p tics in every union in the land. It is well that it should take the form of open discussion, not of secret intrigu We have a right to ask, therefore, that the unions give an opportunity in their meetings for free discussion of political questions and that Socialists be given exactly the same chance as the advocates of other parties.

The Only Way to Win.

This brings us to the final pointrord of counsel to Socialists in the

SOCIALISM AND

TRADE UNIONISM The following resolution was adopted by the Socialist Party in National Convention at Indianapolis nd., on July 31, 1901:

"The Socialist Party, in convention assembled, declares that the trade nuion movement and independent political action are the emancipating factors of the wage-working class. The trade union movement is the natural result of capitalist production and represents the economic the working class movement. We consider if the duty of the Socialists to join the unions of their respectiv rades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor the trades and labor organi We recognize that trade nulons are by historical necessity or gautsed on neutral grounds as far as political amiliation is concerned.

"We call the attention of trade unionists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trade union forces to-day, while it may reult in leasening the exploitation of tion. The exploitation of labor will come to an end only when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the prople. It is the duty of every trade unionist to realize the necessity of in-dependent political action on class-conprious lines, to join the Socialist Party and to assist in building up a stron political movement of the wage-work-ing class, whose ultimate aim and obfect must be the abolition of wage slavery and the establishment of a co collective ownership of the means of production and distribution."

The Socialist Party is known in the state of New York under the name of Social Democratic Party, and its em-blem is the Arm and Torch,

WHAT WORKINGMEN'S VOTES GAN DO.

Benefits and Limitations of Trade Unions-How Labor Is Robbed-How to Stop the Robbery,

By Senjamin Henford.

There are about two hundred thousand persons employed in the boot and shoe industry in the United States. Let these persons be organized to the inst man, woman and child, and, though they will thereby be able to accomplis some things, or even great things, there is a point at which their control over their own lives and destinles must cease. "Through effective organisation will not work longer than a certain number of hours per day, and that for number of nours per day, and that for these sours they shall receive a cer-tain price...The hours may be short and the price high, but purely as a trade union that is the limit of their howers at their maximum of bossipie success... Having fixed the hours of labor and the price to be paid for their labor, there is left an all-important thing which tilly cannot control. THEY CANNOT PROVIDE THEM-SELVES. WITH EMPLOYMENT. THEY CANNOT MAKE THE BOSS EMPLOY ALL OF THEM. Let the wage be ever so high, there will be shoemakers who will get no wage, for there will be shoemakers who have no

"But," say some, "given that complete organization of our craft, we can secure work for the unemployed by making hours constantly sherter and constantly raising, the scale of wages, so that even at the abortest hours the wages received will support the worker in comfort." When the hours of labor are so low and the warms of labor are so high that PROFIT CEASES, at that instant PRODUCTION CEASES; and when production ceases, when our ahos factory is closed, the shoemaker has no work at any hours or for any price. The shoemaker must learn that of men own the shoe factories, the shoemaking machinery, and the ma-terials of which shoes are made, such owners' of the means of producing shoes allow those forces to be set in will produce profits. The object of the owner of the shoe factory is not primarily to produce shoes, but to pro-duce shoes to be sold at a profit. His main purpose, his great purpose, his only purpose, is to get profits. Therefore, when the trade union is strong enough to reduce hours and raise wages to a point where the capitalise ist class, through their powers as OWNERS of the means of production (of employment), shut up the factory until such time as the working class will consent to resume their toll in the shop or mill or factory or printing office at a working day of such length and for a wage of such magnitude as will leave the capitalist employer a profit. The purely economic trade union may, and generally does, affect the rate of the employer's profit; but where the means of production are owned by others than those who use them, the owners must have a profit for the use of such means of production, otherwise they remain unused; and when the or awaiting starvation-they are either out on strike, locked out, or laid off. When the distresses and necessities of the unemployed have reached a point so acute as to be unbearable vitably they again go to work for the employer at such bours and wages as will leave him a profit—such of the take back. For some have died of their wants unsupplied, and of the others the employer will not take them all, leaving some to become tramps, and forcing others eventually to become

While, as stated above, the most per feet trade union does not do all that is necessary for the welfare of its members, those things which it can and does do are not to be belittled. It can and generally does reduce the rate of does do are not to be belittled. It can are thousand a year without working and generally does reduce the rate of for it, and can, if he likes, spend his profit received by the employer by so five thousand a year and still at the than they would otherwise get. It can and generally does reduce the hours of most fortunate for the workers when labor and raise the standard of living. Further, and of high importance, it tenches the workers to organise. But while recognizing the good accom-plished by the trade union, every time you see an unemployed shoemaker you must see the shortcomings of the Boot and Bhoeworkers' Union; every time on; every time you meet an unemployed printer you must recognise the limitation to the powers of the Typographical Union; every time you meet an unemployed cigarmaker You 'must 'recognize that the Cigarmakers' Union has a boundary to its efficiency; everytime you meet an unemployed man of a skilled trade or an unskilled laborer, do not forget that there is one thing of prime importance that the purely economic trade union at the very height of its make the employer employ ALL the

a Year and Keep It. Consider for a moment on what production in our present society depends.
Here is a man who has a hundred thousand dollars. We will not ask where he got it. Probably that would be a kit, the hand press, and the ex-cart long tale of robbery, rent and profit.

We will allow that our man with the duction and transportation of wealth hundred thousand is in possession of any one man could own and operate his own. Now, if our man lives at the instruments of production in alrate of five thousand dollars a year, most any trade. At that time to make and does no work by which he receives one man yield to another the product an income from eny-source, but each year jakes his five thousand out of his original hundred thousand deliars, at the end of twenty years he will be broke. Of ceures, that is not to his seam plow; the stelle to the self-binder, resper and thresher; the broke. Of ceures, that is most to his liking. He wants to mend five thousand on the self-binder, resper and thresher; the cololler's kit to the coeff; the show and does no work by which he receives the eld of twenty years so will be broke. Of course, that is not to his liking. He wants to apend five thousand a year on his fiving, all right, but at the ead of twenty years he wants to have his hundred thousand, or should be die, he wants his children to have it.

In about and in least HE WANTE TO shown and in least HE WANTE TO

KREP IT. And our present society is so arranged and organised that HE CAN DO THAT ... VERY .. THING. turning it into the means of prodution. For instance, by buxing with it oe factory, leather, machinery, etc. Having placed his hundred thou sand dollars in the shoe industry, on ting machines will not run themselves neither will the lasting, sewing, coling and frimming" machines, "nor "will feather-make itself.into shoes. If his mency, now turned into shoemsking materials and machinery, is let alone, it will be worse for him than if he had spent his five thousand a year out of his original hundred thousand, for idle machinery will eat itself up quicker than idle money. To accompish this purpose of spending five thousand a year and still keeping his original hundred thousand, one more thing is necessary. Labor power must be ap-plied to his sheemaking machines and naterials. There are idle shoemaken in pleuty. Our man has selected a su may have bought it through a broke and never even baye seen the factory or its superintendent, and told him to go ahead and "hake money." Our Man himself has probably Man himself has probably gone to Europe. The superintendent tells the shoemakers to go to work at a wage which leaves Our Man a profit on their labor. These shoemakers have no means of surploying themselves. They are not the possessors of shoemaking materials and machinery. They MUST work or starve, ----Therefore the lasters and cutters and stitchers and trimmers go to work and use and operate Our Man's hun-dred thousand Gollar shoemaking plant, receiving for their labor a wage which leaves Our Man his five th sand dollars a year in profits. Our Man will tell you that HE PAYS these Man will tell you that HE PAYS these workmen for their services. The workmen themselves will tell you that Our Man PAYS their wages. In residue nothing of the services place. THE WORKERS PAY OUR MAN FOR THE PRIVILEGE OF WORK-ING. That's where he gets his five thousand a year. Their wages are simply a PART of the value OF THEIR OWN PRODUCT. Thou shoemakers go into the factory of Our Man and for the privilege of using his means of production they first make a pair of shoes for him, then they make it pair of shoes for the landlord, and ing they make a pair of shoes for which they are paid. Every time they make three pairs of shoes they are paid only for the labor power which makes one pair. As with our shor sets a line of type for employer, then he sets a line for the landlord, and for the labor of setting the third or fourth line he receives pay. Likewise with the cigarmaker; first be makes a cigar for the capitalist, then one for the landlord, and for the making of the next cigar be is paid. Then he starts all over again—one for the boss, one for the landlord, one for himself, one for the boss, one for the landlord, on for himself. Bo on. And all you work-men are in the same boat. Xon work an bour for your boss, an hour for your landlord, and for the next bonr's wor you are paid—this if you are lucky mough to have a hoss and a job. Oftentimes the employer and the andlord are the same person. Both are exploiters and cohbers of the work. ing class, and they only differ from one another in color, not in essence. Our Man with the hundred thousand m shi have put it into land and charged worknamen for the privilege of living on the earth, instead of putting his money into a shoe factory and charging them for the privilege of working. In the one case he would leave his property in the hands of a real estate agent, and in the other he leaves it in the hands of a superintendent. Our Man gets his end of each your have as much as he most fortunate for the workers when he does spend his "income." For if he does not spend it, they hust next year produce a profit on that profit.

Now, can't you union men see the CAUSE of this exploitation of your fellows? Don't you see that man of work? Don't you see that he is out of work because he lacks the means with which to work? If he had the means to employ himself and keep all that his labor produced, he would not agree to give five thousand dollars a year (5 per cent, on $100,000) to the employer. He would keep that five thousand. "But," say you, "he would do the same with it that this fellow door." To be sure he would—if you allow him. But you need not allow it, and you can stop this fellow from do

perata. In brief, THE MEANS OF PRODUCTION BECOME SOCIAL. and as the means of production have become social in character, in their p.o-duction and operation, so THEY SHOULD BECOME SOCIAL IN OWNERSHIP. We should own them socially, collectively. To stop Our Man from getting his five thousand a year for doing nothing but OWNING THINGS, WH SHOULD NOT AL-LOW HIM TO OWN THOSE THINGS. To make sure that those others who now turn over to him his five thousand annually shall not do as he does when they themselves get the five thousand they produce, we must not allow ANY INDIVIDUAL to own those things. We must have acwe produce wealth; that is, we must have Socialism. A man should no more be allowed to have private ownership in a shoe factory or a coal mine than in the post office; he should no more be allowed to have private propstreet itself. When he has no private property in these things he cannot ex-ploit or extort an income from those rho nee these things. All this would be vastly intricate. say you. Not comparably as intricate as the postoffice or the public highway system of the country. We have no trouble with either of these except where they come in contact with great "http://ineas" interests, such as the private owners of the railroads and the contractors—fellows like Our Man, only me of them have a hundred mill to his one hundred thousand. We are all owners of the postoffice; we sli have a share of stock in it; but we canno should be with productive industries.

Intricate? Is it conceivably as intricate as the haphazard, accidental, day, where we leave the raising wheat, rotton and beef, the food, raiment, and shelter on which our very life depends, to individual interest or caprice? Is it possible that a society that trusts itself to maintain a police force and a fire department, to protect individuals and preserve wealth, dare not enter upon the social ownership of the means to produce the necessarie of its existence?

How to Do It. How to bring Socialism about? As ald in the beginning, there are about 200,000 of our boot and shoemakers in the country. There are about 150,000 persons engaged in the printing industries in the United States. The men of these trades can do something for themselves, by themselves, but not much. There are over 100,000 cigar and tobacco workers; like the printers nd shoemakers, their powers are limited. . There are more than a mili men in the employment of the railway and telegraph companies; look at their ow wages and long hours of labor, and it is easy to see that even that great number are far from having the power and influence that they should have over their own means of livelihood. There are more than a million men in the building trades; they have done niuch for themselves through organiza-tion—more than any other large group of workers; but when we note the precarious character of their employs many idle for haif the year, it is clearly een that their relatively high wages and short hours are far from a truly prosperous condition for workingmen. But is there then no hope? Is there to side to the shield save that which says failure? Yes, there is. But we must under stand the causes of past failures to know the means of future success. There is a path which leads to vic If these 200,000 boot and shoe workrs and 150,000 printers will really and truly unite with those 100,000 tob workers; if the 1,000,000 railroad emoloyees will unite with all three; if the 1,200,000 men of the building trad will unite with the others; and if the ron and steel workers, the miners, the wood workers, the shipbuilders. brewers, the cotton mill operatives an i the granite cutters—if the whole working class would unite, what power is there in the world to oppose us, muc conomic fight, which still leaves many economic ague, which suit leaves many a man without a job, no matter what the hours or wages for those who get work: but UNITE IN THE POLITI-CAL FIELD, UNITE AT THE BAL-LOT BOX.

pend on any one of us, nor on any all group of us, though each one of us can do much to bring it to pass. We will not unite politically in obedience will not unite politically in obedience to the persuasive powers of any man or men, though those may have their infinence. We shall unite became

At this time, when the Republican party is furthering territorial expan-sion abroad, while it curtails our liberties at home; when the Democratic party cries out in protest, but lacks the intelligence to progress; when both parties have shown their enmity to the working class with increasing child labor in the mills of the Democratic South and more infamous injunctions in the Republican North; at this time when the Republican party is so drunk with power that it takes pride in its infamy, and the Democratic party is so stupidly incompetent that it acts its face to the past and reaction—under these conditions it is not to be doubted that the working class and especially that part of it organised in trade unions, will awake to its duties and opportunities and begin its march capitalism under the banner of Socialism and the Socialist Party.

Farmeriy the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership analysis the capitalists. ers. This ownership enables the control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them. Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertain ty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two bostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a control of the state of intellectual, physical and se-cial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit wars are fomented between nations, indis-criminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial domin-ion abroad and enhance their suprem-

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to So cialism, which will abolish both the enpitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher of der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete production, are alike political repreentatives of the capitalist class,

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Mocialist Party to support and the working class all active efforts of the working class. all active efforts of the working class all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect So-cialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transpertation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolica, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor. 3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents lack of employment, sickness and want in old aget the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class 4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be med for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of

to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing,

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women. 7. The initiative and referendum proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by heir constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-opera-tive Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an at-tempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utili-ties for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the ameliuration

On the one side are a few dozen poor workingmen. On the other side is the Philadelphia Trolley Syndicate. No work from the men, means no profits for the syndicate.

So the state has stepped in to "settle" the strike. That is, to break the strike. A state government composed of Republicans and Democrats always does that. They know who puts up the Republican and Democratic campaign funds. The state has sent sixteen companies of militia, under the command of a colonel who is also an officer of the company, to "keep the peace."

In Greater New York the street-car men have not dared to strike for sevcral years. They remember the clubs and bayonets and bullets they got the last time. They will get desperate after a while-they have reason enough-and strike again.

Meanwhile, it is the passengers who complain-the passengers, who must pay their nickels every morning and evening for treatment a little worse than that accorded cattle on a Western cattle-train.

They complain. Greatsinger and Winter and Vreeland and Widener and Brady and Whitney laugh. Running cattle-cars for human cattle is profitable. The Republican-Democratic Railzond Commission orders reforms-with a quiet wink. The Magnates laugh again. The passengers still complain.

In New Jersey, the other day, there swas a railway collision. Over a score of lives lost. Engineer to blame. Of course. He siways in. He is dead. It is easy to blame a dead man.

In the long run, such "accidents" pay-pay the capitalists.

We had a holocaust in the New York Central tunnel a few months ago. The Vanderblits and their man Depew did not go to prison for it. Reformer Jerome got Engineer Wisker indicted for it.

The men whose greed for profit enused the horrors at Westfield and Tucson will not be punished. Not while parties piedged to the maintenance of the profit system are in power. Mild censure will be the most ther will get.

The Goulds and Vunderbilts and Rockefellers and Harriman and Whitney and Brady and Widener-these and a few good friends of theirs are on one side in all these affairs. When an occasional passenger gets crushed to death at the Brookiva Bridge or on an "L" train, it is either the Goulds and the Philadelphia Syndicate or the Rockefellers and Vanderbilts and the Syndicate that crush him. When a trolley worker in Connecticut is bayoneted, it is the Philadelphia Syndicate and the Rockefellers that stab him. When men and women are roasted in a wreck in New Jersey or Arisona, it is the Rockefellers and Vanderbilts or else Harriman and the Goulds that

To put it more broadly, it is the system of private ownership and operation for profit that makes it necessary for people to be thus stabled and crushed and roasted.

Massachusetts Cannot Get Municipal Fuel Yards.

o Says the Supreme Court—Socialist Will Appeal from Legal Precedents to Present Reeds and Sense of the Poonle-Anti-Socialist Campaign Is

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—The Supreme Court of Massachusetts on Thursday last sent its opinion to the Legislature as to the establishment of municipal oal and wood yards, as asked for in the resolutions presented by Represent ative MacCartney. The Court is unanimous as to the unconstitutionality of municipal ownership, but six of the seven judges say that in some emergencies cities and towns could act as an agent to supply people with fuel. The Court takes the ground the under the constitution private property cannot be taken from its owner except for a public use, that the establishment of a business like the buying or selling of fuel requires the expenditure of money, that the only way to obtain such money is by taxation, and that money cannot be raised by taxation except for a public use.

In the course of the opinion the Court really attempts to present an ergument against Socialism by stating that a system of conducting business by the people collectively is not possi-ble under the constitution.

MacCariney, in an interview upon the subject, said that "the decision cleared the atmosphere and the fight would go on for a constitutional

The decision is hailed by the Boston "Hernid" as a knock-out blow for Sc cialism, which, it says, is now lawed as a practical policy in Massa-chusetts, until the constitution is changed," and that this result can hardly be brought about within a generation. The "Herald" continues eration. The "Herald" continue "Probably Socialism itself will under go a radical metamorphosis first.

It is more probable that the next generation will not wait for the consti-tution to be changed to make Socialism a practical policy in the Bay State.

The past week has been the last for introducing bills, and the three Socialist members have presented their full quots, all of these being similar to those of former years. MacCartney got ahead of the Republican leaders on Thursday, when he filed a set of rea lutions endorsing the Employers' Liability Act introduced by Senator Lodge in the United States Senate. The Republicans will now have the pleasur of adopting a Socialist resolution or of declaring against their boss's bill.

Anti-Socialist Compaign.

That the campaign against Socialism in Massachusetts has aiready begun was shown by a four column article published in the Boston "Herald" on Monday last. The article was a bodgepodge of distorted statements of fact and culpable misrepresentations, and the evident intent was to save the trade unions from being "captured" by the horrid Socialists.

The article could well have been written by one of several prominent trude union leaders whose past records are a disgrace to the labor movement and who can see their fluish in the growing tendency of trade unionists to embrace Socialism. In view of the American Federation of Labor convention meeting in Boston next November, it is just likely that the "Herald's" opposition to Socialism is being used as medium to strengthen the anti-Socialist element in the unions.

As a last resort this will prove failure. Those who are identified with the Socialist Party in Massachusetts are better trade unionists than their opponents could ever be, and the time is past when the actions of a De Leon and similar characters can be cited to keep the workers of Massachusetts long to, even though men whose repu-tations smell to heaven suffer descenedly by it

THE WASTE OF CHILD-LABOR.

A Physician's Statement of the Facts.

What Child Labor Means in Donth and Disease to the Tellers' Babes-Kings-Mes Terribly True Phrase,

Dr. Louise Fiske Bryson, a physician who has given especial study to the condition of the children of the working class, spoke on that subject last Saturday at a meeting of the Consum-ers' League. Her treatment of the subject was strictly scientific and is worthy of attention as a sober state-ment of one of the evils which the capitalist system inflicts upon society. She said in part:

"Damned into the World."

"To thousands of children at werk in the sweatshops, mills, tenemests factories and other crowded and pris on-like localities our country is free in one sense only: Free to die in. Yet me one means to be unkind. The parents who allow their children to work not mean any harm; they think they need the money. The employer has no evil intent. The consumer is merely thoughtiess, the voter indifferent. Yet between us all we manage to inflict a monstrous wrong on a host of pathetic and bewildered little creatures, who cem; "as Charles Kingsley puts it, 'rather, damned . than born into the sunshine, water and suitable food for its maintenance and growth, so does the little child need in generous measure these same agencies for his orderly development. And play, rest, exercise oledience, countless spontaneous more ments are as necessary to the anima part of the young child so they are to the thoroughbred coit. These life stuffs must be supplied generously for the normal unfolding of physical power, Something more is needed to bring the child into a state of complete human-ness. Does child labor afford it? On the contrary, it thwarts the plant part of him; injures him on the animal side side; and, in the majority of instances, leaves him forever hopeless and for lorn, in the ranks of unskilled laber and in the sub-human class.

"Children, then, are so constructed that shutting them up, remote from outdoor air and sunshine, is sure to invite disease and disaster. "God will forgive you, is the way Richter speaks of this special cruelty. For stinting your children in bread when it is so dear; But what will He say to you for depriving them of His free air!
But the air, ains! is not free in America; not free to the children. These defrauded little ones fare badly. Crowding and poor ventilation reduce the power to resist disease; and the rebreathing of air that has passed through the mouths and lungs of others is in itself dangerous on account of the poisonous particies this air centalnia.

Child-Labor and Tuberculosis, ; "And so the little prisoners of toll like all prisoners everywhere, are pe cultarly prope to contract a bideou disease, one that every year brings to an untimely grave more victims than war, famine, plague, choiers and typhold fever combined, and that be to bereulosis. This dreadful acourge, at the very lowest estimate, costs the United States in loss of life over $330, 000,000 annually. And tuberculosis is known to cause at least two-thirds of all the sorrow and pain in the world. Would you help stamp it out, efface it utterly? Then abolish child labor in the stores, shops, factories, in milis and laundries, and in the street at pight.

"Hoys delivering milk during the dark hours of early morning, from four till nine o'clock; little children wask-ing dishes in cheap restaurants and hotels after dark or before the sun is up; lads of six and eight trudging up long flights of tenement house stairs to deliver papers, or selling them in the streets after dark; small girls assisting jankors to clear out nais and cellars where the sun peyr, shines; messenger boys, telegraph boys, little parcel deliverers, rushing to and fro from on sti-night piace-to-mother, are each in turn doing all they can to invite tuberculosis, which is a disease that literally walks in Carkness. The germs that cause it die in a few hours when excause it die in a few hours when ex-posed to the direct rays of the sun. They will live for years in a dark closet. Tuberculosis is distinctly pre-ventable and punceessary; and in the majority of instances perfectly curable according to modern methods of treat ment. In view of these facts, condi-tions of darkness, damp and over-crowding that favor its spread and de-

"Another maining and diefenring disease which overtakes little wax and gristle children when defrauded of sun shine, light, air, liberty and the par known as rickets. It is due to mal nutrition, and is a most prolific source of nervous disease later in life. The bones are too soft, a defect that resuits in grotesque deformities of the chest, head, limbs and spine. Rickets produces curiously misshapen bodies, bandy legs, knock-knees, thick wrists and clumsy fingers, and appears any time from infancy to early adult life. Poor food, the habit of long standing. living in half-dark rooms, favor its de

"The Sangarous Trades."

"Since child labor is everywhere, it must naturally prevail to a greater er less extent in all the dangerous trades." There are seven classes of the so-called 'dangerous trades,' seven classes of occupations in which some form of poison or disease is incidental to the trade linelf as at present carried on. The character of the substances used renders these employments technically dangerous, as lead in glass polishing, arsenic in wall paper, mercury in rub berwork, the use of certain poisonous dyes for textile fabrics, and the mer handling of animal products, such as wool, hides and furs, in which lurk the germs of deadly disease. In Mr. W. E. Walling's able report about sixty forms of industry are given that come under the head of 'dangerous' in this tech pical sense, all of them regulated by acts of Parliament in England and by definite special legislation in almost all of the other countries of Europe Here in America there is no law con cerning any dangerous employment ex cept that in reference to emery wheels a law adopted by seven states only. This special branch of factory legislation, deemed of the utmost importance claewhere, is practically ignored in the United States. The factory inspectors find little children hidden away in all manner of places where they have no real right to work at all, crouching down out of sight behind bales of paper where graenic is used; find then exposed to the poison of lead, mer cury, phosphorus, copper and other toxic influences; and to the ills of the artificial humidity essential to the spin ning of cotton, flax, wool and silk. The difficulty is to 'catch them at it,' to discover them really at work, and then prove that they are under the age required by law, for, as these little peo-ple say themselves, 'It is easy to fix the Board of Health certificate if you know how "Lead polenning or plumb ism causes loosening and dropping out of the teeth, frightful colic, blindness, paralysis, and sometimes death in conrulsions, Phosphores dicerates the gums, causes decay of bone, terrible disfigurements, and often death, blindpess, and paralysis of the wrist. Mercury gives rise to annemia or blood-lessness, to spongy guns, loosened teeth and paresis of the limbs. Nitrie acid, used for cleaning, may cause instant death. The germs of lockjaw reside in hides, wool and fur. "Among copper workers, as in all chemical industries, there is an un-usual rate of mortality and great suffering from neuritis or inflammation of the nerves. Those of us familiar through experience with tri-facial neuarigia or sciatica know something of what copper workers endure. Is there is known positively that little children are never employed in the cutting, pol-ishing and mounting of precious stones and gems. This fact may add to our delight in their bright beauty, to the glowing loveliness of jewels, since none of their charm is manufactured from the blood of bables.

"Public opinion that permits child labor, condemns the child to a short, dreary life, and to some form of hideous death that is too often distinctly preventable. Worn out at seventeen, without hope, without strength, if he lives longer the child who has worked for money is pretty sure to drift lute the ranks of the lapsed and the lost, to become some sort of a public charge at thirty-four or forty, either as a pau per, a drunkard, a criminal or an in make man.

"The remedies for this state of things? They are bound to radiate in the clarifled atmosphere of self-interest like a sudden rainbow of light. Agitation discussion, education among the people at large upon this special subject, to culighten the voter, the consu employer, the parent, as to the true place of the child in nature and in the state, is naturally the first step in the right direction. In this way alone can the knowledge become general that the child who, is deprived of education, health, standards of right conduct, of the compan-ionality of equals, of air, sunshine and normal human intercourse, of the veloped and made efficient for highest usefulness, is bound to become a menace to public peace and safety, a burden and a denger. This cannot be re-

"Next in order comes a revision of the compulsory education law, which should enforce school attendance every day and every hour of the entire school year until the age of fourteen; with a clause making it a misdemeanor for any child to work for money during vacations. To best protect public hearth, an entirely new law prohibit-ing child labor in the tenements would prove most efficacious."

EMASCULATING TENEMENT LAW.

The Very inadequate Reforms Made In the Building Gode Are New Being Quietly Hullified at Albany-Democrats Load in the Evil Work.

In the years 1900 and 1901 we heard great deal from the old-party politicians about the need of laws more strictly regulating the building of tenements, so as to guard the lives and beaith of those who were to live in them. The Citizens' Union people talked a great deal about the tenementhouse problem. They needed it in their business, as the phrase goes. Not to be left behind, a good many of the Democrats took up the strain and bubbled over with sympathy for the poor

The Social Democrats heartily enderned all that was said about the infamles of the tenements as they are. "It is true," we said, "that the tenements in which the majority of the workers of the city live are firetraps and hotbeds of disease. But do not forget that they are profitable to their owners—that the number of working people's lives lost in fires and the num mber of working her of working people and their babies dying for the want of fresh air and sunlight are a pretty accurate index to the unearned revenues of the landlords who live on Fifth avenue and disport themselves at Newport. Do not forget that it is these men and mea of their class who control the Republican party, the Citizens' Union, and the Democratic party alike. Do not expect that they will give you any real and lasting reitef. If you would do away with such a menace to civilization and diagrace to humanity as the New York tenements, you must sup-port a party of your own class and put in office men freely chosen by you and bi-partisan judges of the Supreme pledged to overthrow the whole system of which the tenement horror is only a part."

Time has proven us right.

A new Tenement House Act was passed, indeed. It was a slight improvement on the old law, although so slight as to be hardly worm speaking of. Its chief provisions were that every new tenement should have an air-shaft of at least eight by fourteen feet and that every room, in new or old tenements, must have at least one window, It was a pitifully small mount to be born of such a dignified moun tain as the "reform" movement to which we owe a Low and a Jerome.

will say. Yes, and now that it has served its purpose as political capital, that something is to be taken away— and with it may go even some of the safeguards of the old law. Quietly, insidiously and indirectly, the old-party politicians at Albany are now preparing to "amend" the law in such a way as to undo all the good that was done and give the landlord full "individual liberty."

Democrats Lead in Evil Work.

Several bills have been introduced for this purpose, backed by the infu-ence of the various Property Owners Associations. It is worthy of note that the two which are most likely to be passed are fathered by Democrats representatives of the party of which Mr. Hearst alleges Labor to be the "natural ally"—Joseph Wagner, of the Ninth Senatorial District, Brooklyn, and H. H. Dale, of the Fifteenth As-builder, the other a lawyer. Senator Wagner's bill proj amend chapter 334, laws of 1901, by adding a section saying: "Exempted from the provisions of this act are all three-story flat houses arranged for the occupancy of three families erected prior to the pas-age of this act or herafter to be erected."

That is, houses which are only three stories high, which are not designed for the accommodation of more than three families, precautions for light, air, sanitation, for health, generally and precautions against fire and victous habit, shall not apply!

An Ingenious Bill,

In case this is too sweeping, there is an ingenious bill, introduced by As-semblyman Dale. It has some sugges tions in the interest of builders which seem harmless-for instance, increas ing the height of stair steps one-half an inch, putting iron laths in place of wooden laths in entrance balls, etc. These are merely to give an air of reasonableness and of a fair endeavor to "perfect" the law. The bill as a whole. owever, is one that would establish in Broolyn just those conditions which have caused all the tenement-house agitation in Manhattan.

Mr. Pale's bill would make numerou changes in the law in order to lower the standard of tenements. These changes would relieve three-story houses from all provisions of the new law; and apply it only to houses "occupied by five, instead of three, families, not counting the family in the ment." The changes would allow building on 75 per cent. instead of 70 per cent. of the land; they would cut down the size of air and light shafts; taking space occupied by water closets out of the allowed building space; elim inate the requirements for ventilating skylights; reduce the height of rooms: abrogate provisions for sanitary appliances: relieve the landlord of the duty of seeing that old wallpaper is removed before new is put on, and would permit the janitor to live elec-where than in the bouse he is in charge

etts Legislature have already done one great service in the present musion. They have put the two old purties in all three departments of the smie government clearly on re word on | reported this week. They will find it the fuel question, which has happened, this winter, to be the pressing plane have already carried the fight into the of the one great question of our day- lown meetings, awakening memories the conflict between private profit and the public welfare.

They alone, of all the law-makers of the land, have dared to go to the root of the matter-to propose in good faith and energetically to support, not mere temporary palliatives, but radical measures to remove the cause of the evil and to guard against its recur-

Applying in this special instance the general principles of Socialism, they have proposed that Legislature do two things: First, That it call on the ustional government to make the coal mines public property, to be operated for the public good, not as now for private profit; second, that it authorize the cities and towns of Massachusetts to establish public fuel yards, substituting the rule of public good for that of private profit in the retail distribution of this necessity of life.

To these propositions the Republican majority has replied with the one familiar word-"Unconstitutional." And the Democrats have acquiesced in timid silence. The Republican Attorney-General has supported the oldparty legislators by echoing the word, "Unconstitutional?" The Socialist members have forced the issue before the judiciary, and the non-partisan or Court have joined in the chorus, "Unconstitutional!"

Massachusetts has produced many public men whose names will live in history. Massachusetts pretends to be proud of those men. The party now dominant in Massachusetts and in the nation lays claim to most of those men-and has long dishonored their memory by its conduct. Hancock and the three Adamses, Garrison and Phillips and Sumper-these were not men who took refuge in great crises behind the word "Unconstitutional," When the Supreme Court of the United States made that word a veto on any measures for the restriction of the slaveholders' arrogant power, it was a Massachusetts man who said:-

"ANYTHING FOR HUMAN RIGHTS IN CONSTITUTIONAL."

What the venerable historian Momm en has said of the Socialists of Germany can be said with equal truth of Carey, MacCartney and Rannden, and the thirty-five thousand voters who stand back of them-that they alone uphold the spiendid Massachusetts tra

There the voters who make legislators and judges will rule that it is not constitutional for working people to perish of coal that Coal Kings may grow richer; that the use of constitutions is to safeguard the people's lib erty, not to fetter their will and rivet the chains of their economic bondage; that "new occasions teach new duties, time makes ancient good uncouth"; that ANYTHING FOR SOCIAL WEL-

Nor need the enunciation of this principle wait on the slow processes of constitutional amendment. We have abundant proof these days that constitutions mean just what judges make them mean, and that judges make them mean whatever best suits the interest of the dominant social and political forces of the day. Mr. Dooley has told us in humorous phrase: "Wan thing I've learned from this Porto Riky decision; whether th' Constitution follows th' flag or not, th' Supreme Coort follows the illction rayturus." And so conservative a canitalist authority as the New York "Evening Post" has told its patrons that judges and juries "CAN MAKE OLD LAW MEET NEW EMERGEN-CIES."

FARE 18 CONSTITUTIONAL.

Both sides can play at that game. Let the workingmen of Massachusetts voice their demands in the town meetings as they are already being voiced in the legislative hall, next November let them again treble their Socialist vote, and even though the Socialist legislators are still a minority, the Supreme Court will find excuses for gracefully changing its views on the constitutionality of measures which that growing and indomitable minority

As in Massachusetts, so elsewhere. In another year or two Socialist legislators in a dozen other states will be forcing the old-party politicians and judges to go on record and carrying the appeal back to the voters. Courts and precedents and constitutions will not long stand in the way, once the working class learns to use its political power. "There are three words to speak, "We will it," and what is the foeman but the dream-strong wakened

THE NATIONAL HEADQUAR-

TERS The rank and file of the Socialist Party will no doubt be considerably surprised when they learn that the National Committee has decided to reove the beadquarters to Omaha and as refused to submit that decision to eneral vote. The choice of Omaha rather surprising. But that, when that city was chosen by a bare majority and its opponents demanded a eferendum, the majority saw fit to retuse to submit the question in any form to the rank and file-this gives od ground for indignation. We are used to such politics in the Secialnot used to such posture in the man-lat Party, and we do not like the man-

Tuder this plan the Local Quorum will consist of the elected representatives of five states which cast, in November, about $1,000 votes, or over one-fifth of our total strength. With such a Current, with so experienced and licious a man as Comrade Mailly for ional Secretary, and with the clear instructions expressly or tacitly given by last week's meeting of the National Committee on questions of party policy, we have great confidence that the incoming national administration will be a wise and successful one.

Further comment on the proceedings of the National Committee may well be delayed for a week.

National Secretary Greenhau in his annual report that "New York Ellinois, and Wisconsin have withheld from publication in their official or one that part of the National Secre tary's reports showing that said states are in arream.". It is only just to say that so far as this is true of Th Worker, the whole responsibility reals with the Editor, he having received n on on this me or from the State Committee. The statement is not, heirever, quite corruct. We did n one or two occasions, at the beginning, publish the National Secretary's statement in regard to New York's arrearages, noting siso that such state ments were entirely misleading and explaining the false basis on which ther were founded. We then thought and still think that it would be idle to go on publishing and correcting such menningless figures. 'We have at no time suppressed any statement of the amounts paid, but have only refused to give official statements of the amounts that the National Secretary thought ought to have been paid.

Things are not always as they seem One might suppose that the "five and ten-cent stores" were tyifical smallcapitalist concerns forming a notable exception to the rule of capitalist concentration. Public attention has just been casually called to the fact that one corporation-the F. W. Woolworth Company—owns a whole chain of such stores in the feading cities of New England and New York and is now invading Pennsylvania. Such facts coming to light from time to time show that trustification is already for more complete than it appears.

In looking through the financial columus of the papers for the last month, one must be struck with two facts: First, that the annual statements of almost every large railroad, mining. manufacturing, or financial corporation show unprecedentedly high "net earnings"-profit and interest; second. that in the reports of corporation elections something like a score of familiar names appear again and again, each of the "big men", being an officer or director of many companies in many lines of industry. The former fact shows the existence of prosperity; the latter shows to whom the prosperity belongs.

Are the Brooklyn people satisfied with the result of their complaints about the street-enr service? "As a concession to public opinion, Mr. Greatsinger has given up or been compelled to give up the presidency of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Now it is learned that his successor, Mr. Winter, is the man who has actually, though unofficially, dictated the cold-andcrowded-car policy of the B. R. T. for many months past. We opine that the Brooklyn people-and also those of Manhattan and other piaces-will continue to be frozen in winter and smothered in summer and jammed in like cattle the year round, until they vote for public ownership as demanded by the Social Democratic Party.

A syndicate of American capitalists has acquired over nine suffice acres of land in Northern Mexico-a tract as large as Massachusetts, and Rhode Island taken together-including valuable asphalt and petroloum fields. The syndicate is supposed to represent the Standard Oil Company. Now look out for another Venezuela affair and more "maufest destiney."

It is hard to see why anyone should be surprised or shocked at the conduct of that eminent Republican statesman. General Grosvenor. To get something for nothing, if you can, is recognized everywhere in respectable society as the chief and of man. General Grosvenor has lived up to Mr. Carnegie's ideal of "getting around men cleverer than blusself." His methods were nomewhat unusual, but they served the sacred purpose of money-making, so why find fault? Perhaps the sin was in getting caught and exposed.

The National Secretary orted as necretary for the Committee and a canir-man was elected daily. Bichardson presided the first day.

In the first session, before the adop tion of rules. Work moved that the Local Quorum be removed, thus depriving them of votes in the Committee: the motion was ruled out of order. In the afternoon Turner moved to ask for the resignations of the Quorum; this was referred to the Committee on Organization.

The National Secretary, immediately after the adoption of rules, presented the "St. Louis resolutions," calling for the resignations of Greenbaum, Dunn, Putnam, and Roche, because of their stand on the labor party question. These, with the resignation of Brandt. were referred to the Committee on Oranimition. Hilliguit and Goeliel rec ording a protest against any action or the "St. Louis resolutions."

The National Secretary then read his report, which was peceived.

Second Day.

Carey presided on Friday. Mills made the report for the Com-mittee on Organization. The first paragraph read as follows: "That the intionali Committee on the adoption of this paragraph proceed to elect the Recretary for the ensuing year." Removal of Logal Quorum.

In the evening session Mills moved, "That this Committee does now re-move the Local Quorum from office." Putnam and Roche sought to have the reason for removal stated by moving the amendment: "That Comrades Putuani, Dunu, Roche, and Brandt be now removed as members of the Quo-rum because of their support of the fusion policy adopted towards Union Labor party by the Ran Francisco and Los Angeles locals." On a point raised by Healey, the chair ruled the amendment out of order.

Berger then sought to get a fair ing. "That the Quorum be now given a chance to explain their policy during the last year," but his motion was Miliquit and Berger still opposed the arbitrary procedure advocated by Mills of putting upon the Quorum the stigma of removal wathout making charges or giving the members a chance to defend themselves. husiness was taken up. It should have seemed that a meet-ing in which such complete maximity reigned on the most important ques tions would be touchingly harmonious in all other respects, but it must be con-fessed that this was not always the At times the discussion became nite heated, on several occasions the delegates evinced countderable excitement and, if the truth he told, the state of New York contributed its hon-et share towards the latter variety. There were no differences of principle or views, there was no taugible saue, still there was a vague, unde fined division among the delegates which assumed more definite shape towards the close of the session. The ie was drawn on geographical lines. Incring the last year or two our

An appeal to our sectional preindices and local patriotism is always the endest and cheapest way to gain popularity. The first note in that disetion was sounded at the last Indianapolis convention. It was quite weak and insignificant at that time, but it has grown louder and more defithe since. In the St. Louis meeting it was the rather unconscious, but nevertheless real, source of all disagreements. The prejudice was not enled in the discussions on one tions of principle, for on those the committee was a muit, but it cropped out in a variety of small matters, and whom it came to the selection of the party headquarters, it took definite shape and form in the demand for Omaha, Neb.

There is no good reason why Omaha should have been selected for that purpose at the present stage of our move-ment. The city is to: far removed from the heart and centre of the proleterian class struggles, our movement in Nebraska and in the adjacent terri tory is as yet in its infancy, and is as yet by no means definitely shaped. All of this is certainly no reason for dis eriminating against the very well meaning and sincere comrades of that locality, but it is certainly also no resson for giving them the administration of our national party affairs to experi-ment with. And no other sufficient reasons have over been advanced by the advocates of Omaha. They simply demanded Omaha; Omaha was made a kind of test of strength between the East and the West, and "the West" prevailed. In using the worth "Sast" and "West," however, the words must be understood not only in their namely accepted sense, but also as denoting a certain spirit. As a seatter of fact that I am tempted to call a "geographical dislocation." New Jersey, Connecticut and New Hampshire voted solidly with the Wost, while Wisconsin and Illinois, which had in olden times prided themselves as representing the far West, took shamefacedly their seats with the East.

All of this may seem trivial and un-worthy of attention, but I cannot help seeing a rising danger in this unreasest ing prejudice so utterly out of place in our movement, and which, however, some men in our party do foster. It was by these means that a standing majority was obtained against the wily schemers of the East, and it must be confessed, the power of this used. It was positively abused in two instances-in the manner of the removal of the local quorum and in the "interpretation" of our national constitution.

The local quorum might have errol on a few occasions in the past, but they had not offended against the party principles or constitution. They did not commit the party to the fusion policy, although most of them ap-proved of it individually, their attitude on the trade union movement was sub-stantially indersed by the committee, and there was no imputation of malfeasance in office against any of them They had served the party in a diffi-cult position to the best of their ability and without renuneration for over a year, and even at the meeting they idered valuable services in a true rit of comradeship. Greenbaum, phrit Roche, Putuam and Duna in turn kept the minutes and rendered other vices to the committee.

There were not satisfactory and it was our good right to elect another quorun, but why accompany the pre-cess by the altogether gratuitous in-suit of "removal from office," and if the delegates had decided upon "To moval" by all means, why not state the reasons, and give them a chance to vindicate themselves?

Surely the Socialist movement car gain nothing by the introduction of such arbitrary and unfair methods.

But still more arbitrary was the interpretation of our constitution. The subject to the "interpretation" was the following articles:
HEADQUARTERS.

The headquarters shall be located at St. Louis, Mo. But said headquarters may be changed by the National Committee, subject to a referendum of the party.

It will be seen that while Articles VIII. and IX. relate to all constitu-tions amondments and acts of the National Committee, and the referendum is made applicable to such only when demanded by five locals in three states, Article VII. relates exclusively to the change of headquarters and provides specifically that such a change shall be made by the Sational Com-mittee subject to the referendum of the party. It will also be unriced that this article precedes the others and does not refer to them in any way. It is complete in itself.

On the second day of the session Carey, who was then in the chair, upon question raised, interpreted the section as a municitory direction to sub-mit any change of headquarters to a general vote, and on the same day a specific motion was also unused that the city receiving the highest vote it submitted to a general vote. party organizations.

4. Arrangements with state and local organisations for national propaganda, including tours of Comrades Vail and Chase, who were then in the field; and later, acording to the plan of the Labor Lecture Bureau as adopted by refer-endum of your Committee.

5. In addition to the above instructions, financial conditions in the party generally made it immediately advisable to begin "a system of financial secretaries' and treasurers' books for lo-cale," as provided by Article 3, Section 3 of the National Constituion. Other instructions given by your Committee, and which have been duly executed, are as follows:

of California toward political organi rations formed by the trade union movement in certain localities.

It becomes proper at this point to call the attention of your Committee to the fact that out of twenty specific propositions quoted in the foregoing, fiften of a character involving immediate ac were precipitated upon us within tion were precipitated upon us within the six months following the January session. By previous arrangement, tweive states represented at that seesion deducted the expenses of their representatives from national dues during the same period. Unfortunately other states became in arrears, some hopelessly so, and thus the burden of executive duties weighed upon us with unrelenting and ever greater pressure, including the heavy expenses involved, while the financial support which we had a right to expect failed to ma-

Among the heaviest expenses during this period were the January meeting. $635.41; National Secretary and assistant salaries, $690; stenographers, ant sainries, $690; stenographers, $532.55; postage for party, Labor Lecture Bureau and strike bulletins, $360.03; printing, party and office supplies and Labor Lecture Bureau, $513.03; propaganda and organisation (mainly in Pennsylvania, Utah and Western states), $307.67; rent, $152; atenographic reports Unity Convention, $125, and unclassified expenses, $147.35. During the period mentioned every effort was made to minimize expenses, and neither the Local Quorum or myself were able to find an avenu of retrenchment. However, criticism having bee raised in certain quarters, the Local Quorum submitted an itemised state-ment of expenditures for April (the heaviest month's expense in the half year) to the members of your Committee, together with a referendum, the result of which was that your Committee indorsed the general conduct of affairs at National Haedquarters.

When I inform your Committee that in every month following the January meeting from ten to sixteen state ces mittees have been in arrears, as can be ahown by official records, some of which are ordinarily the heaviest dues

and August.
During the month of June national dues decreased 50 per cent., while in August they decreased 25 per cent. This occurred at the very time the astional organization was at the height of its activity in the furnishing of uniform supplies to all party organisa-tions, in defraying the expense of the reorganisation of Utah, in arranging Comrade Chase's tour to the Pacific Coast and in organizing national Sc cialist relief for the anthracite miners. Heavy bills for party supplies con-tracted in previous months came due at the same time. A financial statement will be placed before your Comnlitee, showing that had the state committees fairly met their obligations to the national organization we could have met all demands upon us for cur-rent expenditures and had a regular nonthly surplus for the payment of all debts devolving upon us by the act of the Unity Convention.

While the national organization was straining every effort in the midst of these complications, rallying thousands of comrades to the strikers' relief in the name of Socialism and the wage working class, a number of state committees apparently found it necessary at this unpropitions time to divert na tional dues for state purposes. Incon-trovertible evidence will be placed be-fore your Committee, showing that during the above named period $115 in national dues was diverted by the Hifmittee, neither of seid sums having been paid up to the time of this report. Such sums appear comparatively trivial in the ordinary course of events, but at the time in question such were the straits of the national organization, that he deflection in question led to the climax of our troubles, when on August 27 we found fourteen state com-mittees in arrears, the national organisation in debt for deferred current bligations, and furthermore that the national organization was indebted to special funds for current expenses. The atter situation was subsequently readjusted, but the conditions which caused growing from had to worse, your Local Quorum, after considering all the circumstances which were placed before it without reserve, and all the possible consequences involved in that act, de-cided to embody these conditions in its semi-annual report, which was sent out under date of September 12, 1902,

The Semi-Annual Report.

In view of the misapprehension in certain quarters with regard to the issuance of this semi-annual report and the criticisms to which it has given rise, some of which have been quite evere upon the Local Quorum and the National Secretary, it is but just to all concerned that due explanation be made herein with regard to the points raised by some of our comrades. Bear-ing in-mind that Article 3, Section 2 of the National Constitution provides that "the National Committee shall prepare a semi-annual report of all the financial and other business of the party and issue the same to all state and territorial organizatious:" rades who criticise us for issuing anid report in the midst of a campaign must either place the blame on the National Constitution Itself or with hose state committees whose methods (in violation of the spirit and letter of the National Constitution) were responsible for difficulties against which we had long and patiently inbored, and which resulted in inexcustble conditions in the party organiza-tion which we could find no warrant for omitting in an bonest statement to the party membership.

It may be well at this point to state in detail the difficulties created in the relations between certain state organientions and the national organization, all of which can be traced to the "state autonomy" provision of the National Constitution

1. Irregular payments of national dues by the state committees of Colo-rado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ore-gon, Texas and Wisconsin. Our ac-counts show that on January 1, 1903, we had fourteen state committees in arrears for a total of forty-five months. They were as follows: Colorado, 2 menths: Idaho, 2 months: Illinois, 2 months: Iowa, 2 months: Kansas, 10 months; Michigan, 1 month; Nebraska, 8 months: New York, 3 months: North Dakota, 8 months; Oregon, 2 months; Texas, 4 months; and Wisconsin, 2 months. Some of these state commit tres have since paid, but this circumstance does not alter the fact of their chronic irregularity in the payment of national dues.

2. Wisconsin has a provision in its State Constitution providing for quar-terly payments of dues that so oper-ates as to conflict with Article 4, Sections 1 and 6 of the National Countitu-

8. Kansas has totally discontinued payments of national dues and has abolished the dues paying system in the state. The state was organized under the direction of the National Committee, and when state charter was issued there were thirty-six locals on a dues paying basis.

4. The fact has been previously al-luded to in this report that the Illinois State Committee withheld $115 and the New York State Committee $200 in national dues, presumably diverting during the most acute period of the anthracite strike, when the national or anthracite strike, when the national or ganization was in severe financia (Continued on page 4)

SOCIALIST PARTY

I'We present under this beading some further communications on the ques tion of the attitude of the Socialisi Party toward labor parties, as brought to the attention of the party by the action of the San Francisco and Lor Angeles comrades.]

VI.

In The Worker of Dec. 14 I notice under the heading, "The California Affair," two resolutions which were adopted by Local New York and also a three-column article enlarging on the position set forth in the accord resolu-tions which is the generally accepted position of our party, Insuluch as I have taken an active part in the "California Affair" and have only recently left New York. it my duty to state as clearly as I can the reasons for my action and why I supported the California posi-tion and continue to support it. First, let me say that the first resolution which is an unqualified condemna tion of our action will and can have but little effect. The vast majority of the comrades in both San Francisco and Los Angeles believed and still be-lieve that the act was a necessity, and it is certain that if it had not been, in their opinion absolutely sucidal, they would have entered the field as usual, as proposed in the second resolution. Neither have the members of the East been apprised of the facts leading to this local change of policy. The only statement of fact that I have seen in your New York papers is that made by Comrade Appel of San Francisco, where he states that the main trot arose between two factions in the movement, namely, the middle class and the working class, and that the policy in question was that proposed by the midle class; that Comrade Mills was the man who had most to do with the adoption of this policy, and wrecking Local San Francisco. and placing this middle class in the

I have not the least besitation in stating that Comrade Appel's state ment is incorrect. Whether Comrade Mills, agitation is good or bad has absolutely nothing to do with the ques-tion, insamuch as Local San Francisco was rent in twain long before his ar-rival in that city. The quarrel was fully on at the time of the state convention which was held in Los Angeles prior to the Mills agitation. However sincere Comrade Appel may be in mak ing his statement, and however wel such a statement may serve to uphold the position which he takes, yet it requires but a glance to see that it is not individual but a policy that is in question and to which his statement will in nowice fit. Neither is it middle-class policy, since the policy in question favors the organized portion of the working class and not the middle

tion San Francisco organized a Social-ist Trades and Labor Alliance. For a long time the Socialists in San Francisco had been "boring from without," which had developed considerable an-tagonism between them and the unions. The E. T. & L. A. intensified this feeling. During the painters' strike a few years ago the members of the S. L. P. lined Market street, which is the main street of San Francisco the union strikers. They were "smash ing the painters' union." There was a bitter feeling in a large number of the unions against many of the most active men in our party, and, indeed, against

After the split in the S. I., P. the attitude of the Socialist Party toward the nuions was changed, but theirs toward us was not. It required time to change their attitude toward us. We had not recained their confidence.

It will readily be seen that under such a state of facts the Socialists could have but little, if any, influence with the unions in that locality; and our men had practically no influence in the unions, except in the German as, which was due to an adverse policy conducted by the German paper. These facts are almost paralleled by the New York situation.

After the S. L. P. split the Socialist Party carried most of the old S. L. P. vote, which was on an average of yet had time to undergo much change. Shortly after the last Presidential Francisco, thoroughly arousing not only the working class but the entire ulation of the city. It was by rea-of this strike that the Union Labor party developed at that time.

The Socialists sent a delegation to their party convention who, if I am correctly informed, invited them to ioin the Socialist Party, as the recent New York resolution provides. On their refusal, our platform was presented; and as a matter of course, they not understanding it, declined to adopt it. The committee then withdrew and, as the recent New York resolution provides, our party conducted an inde pendent campaign. As the campaign grew warm the enmity of the two orgaugations became manifest. men, on the streets, from the platform Labor party a "seab party," a "reform a "capitalist party," etc., The reason for this conduct was that our men saw in the Union Labor party their chief antagonist, for at least that campaign, and because we had no sufficient influence to hold them strictly to a working-class party. The results First, that two-thirds of the proud left our party and voted for the Union Labor party; and, second, sthat Local San Francisco was rent in twain, for a large number were opposed to the

When I arrived in this state in August, 1902, I found that the Unio Labor party had decided to put up candidates for Congress in San Francisco and that the unique of Los An geles had practically decided to enter the political field in the fall municipal eampaign. There was absolutely no way, even if desirable, by which this action could be prevented. A little

which a motion was presented provid-ing that "any local may refrain from minating a ticket in opposition to a maide working-class party whose miness are working-class men."

It was in support of this proposition that I wrote the article which has been frequently criticised but, in my judgnot answered. It must be re-red that at this time the elecment, not tion law of California provided that the name of a nominee for office should me party on the official ballot, and that nominee should certify to the officer as to which party he chose to represent.

With this in view, the Union Labor party, both of San Francisco and Los Angeles, refused to affiliate with either the Democratic or Republican parties. but with one or two exceptions not nated all union men, and in the case Los Angeles a large number of the nominees were Socialists. In Los Angeles they openly endorsed the union men on the Socialist ticket, but refused to endorse any union man on the Demo cratic or Republican tickets and declared in their platform for the aboiltion of the wage system. This policy was forced on the leaders by the mem bership. The Democratic party nomi nated two of the Union Labor party in Los Angeles, one of whom promptly declined, while the other accepted. His name was stricken from the Union-Labor party ticket and another name in-the petition by unaniu In San Francisco, however, two of the Union Labor party candidates were nominated by the Democratic conven-tion after they had both certified that they wished to represent the Union La-bor party. Both these candidates af.erwards entered the courts, had the election law above mentioned declared unanal and forced their names bemocratic ticket. This the on the Democratic ticket. nembership were not responsible for, and many claim that this was the cause of the heavy falling of of the vote fo those men. There was no way under the law of California by which these men could be removed from the Union

Labor party ticket. The results of this action are that the quarrel is still on in Local Ban-Fraucisco, each policy having its devotres, with a growing majority in favor of the policy in question; also that our average vote was again raised to about what it was previous to the formation of the Union Labor party. But the independent Socialist candidates who opposed the policy and openly fought the Union Labor party received less than half the average Socialist vote. It is said that many Socialists refused

o vote. In Los Angeles we raised our v about 300 per cent. We cast over 2,000 votes, more than half of which were thrown out on account of technical errors in our ticket.

Our relations to the unions in Los Angeles are all that could be desired. Our men are among the most influen tial in the unions and have their confidence and are most frequently sent as delegates to conventions and other itions of trust.

Local Los Angeles has been disturbed only slightly by the action. are in a better condition than before the question arose. The vast majority endorse the act of refraining from nominating a ticket in opposition to the Union Labor party, and I am satisfied would again refrain if confronted with the same facts. We did not adopt this policy because we thought by so doing we would greatly increase our vote, although this, of course, was desirable, but because we held, and still hold, that our place in the working class movement was and is with the organised portion of the working class whenever they are acting as a class, whether in the economic or political field; and because we be-lieve in the theory of economic, rather than political, determinism.

The Union Labor party convention both in San Francisco and Los Angeles positively refused to in any way ally themselves with any capitalist party and entered the field this year as a strictly working-class party. Later complications were due to treacherous candidates entering the courts, as above stated, and not to the desire o the membership.

Our position was taken solely be cause the Union Labor party was a strictly working-class party, representing the economic interests of their class, and because we were and still are convinced that we can further the ts of the labor movement, which includes the Socialist propaganda work, by avoiding an open breach and fight, by developing friendly relations between the two organizations and by maintaining our propaganda organiza-tion and orging all individual Socialists to enter the Union Labor party and beld, first, to maintain the strictly working-class character of that party. and, second, to conduct our propagand work therein

The first resolution, which is an un qualified condemnation of the so-called "California position," must be dismissed without discussion. Section Los Angreles of the S. L. P. passed similar resolutions, sdopted the policy propeed, and conducted their independent campaign, with the net result that their section was split on this very openium. question of economic va. political de-terminism, while they aroused the en-mity of the workers generally and re-ceived such a ridiculously small vote that even we, their opponents, are ashamed to see it in print

The second resolution states clearly and concisely the generally, hitherto, accepted position of our party and urges all the locals of the party to continue in stendfast support of that policy regardless of conditions and con-

This resolution presumes: 1. That the trade unions, as a rule understand the Socialist movement and will support the position taken in the

2. That the Socialist Party, local and I that the socialist Party, local and in general, hab the power to and should resist the unions and hold the political field from them should they decide to organize a working-class party and to enter and fight in the political field as they have entered and fought in the economic field, i. c., that political pow-economic new, h. c., take power.

cr is uperior to economic power.
3. That each of these organizations are dominated by different interests namely, the Socialist Party by "general

by "immediate and separate interests."

4. That there is a difference between political and economic interests, that is, that the "immediate and separate interests" of the organized portion of the working class do not contain the demonta of their contains the elements of their "general and ultimate

5. That the unions will not and can not organise a permanent working-cises party, and if they could and should their interests would not lend them into Socialism, but into ses with the political foes of their

6. That the Socialist Party is the only safe-guardian of the political in-terests of the working class and it alone can successfully fight the politi cal battle because it is guided by "coneral and ultimate interests," and that a trades union party is and always will be unsafe and can only work success-fully in the economic field, because they are guided by "immediate and separate interesta."

7. That the unions can therefore be trusted to take charge of the economic interests, but cannot be trusted to take charge of the political interests of the working class, Hence, the locals of the Socialis Party are called upon to resist and fight the unions to a finish in case they should not enderse the New York realutions and should actually enter the political field. consider this question one purely of expediency, while others hold it to be a question of principle. We will there-fore, accept the discussion from either standpoint 1. Do the unions as a rule, sufficient ly understand Socialism to intelligently heed the call in the second New York upon consideration, no or will hold that they do. For if they al-randy understand Socialism the call useless, luminately as their past and present conduct would mean that they had already rejected it.

But if it is acknowledged that the unloss do not sufficiently understand Socialism to either accept or reject the resolution, then the call is useless and meaningless to them; and this gives rise to the second proposition, namely:

"That the Socialist Party, local and general, has the power to, and should, resist the unions and hold the political field from them should they decide to organize a working-class party and to enter and fight in the political field as they have in the economic field., i. c., that political power is superior to nic power."

Here is raised both the question of power (or principle) and the question

Has the Socialist Party the power to hold,by sheer force, the political field from the trade unions if they desire to enter? The B. L. P. thought so, and they have most ingloriously failed.
The entire philosophy of economic determinism arises he e. The interests of the economic organization always have and always will determine the political policy of the class supporting that organization.

The resolution overlooks the fact that all interests are fundamentally reonomic, and that political institu tions and measures are only means by which those economic interests are preserved and furthered. The economic interests are, therefore, the pro-pelling power, and not the political The economic is the cause, the political the ways and means. Being bound together by economic interests, the unious will adopt such political measures as seem to them best; and it is apparent that there is no power capa-ble of resisting them in the political field which is not able, first, to overthrow them in the economic field, and especially if they enter the political fields as a working class party.

The S. L. P., holding to the theory of colitical determinism, organized the S. T. & L. A., hoping to control it with purely political conceptions. But the political conceptions as ultimate propo-sitions became of minor importance, while the immediate economic interwhile the immediate economic interests became the controlling factor.

The principles of ultimate and gen-eral interests may be applied to the immediate interests of the economic organizations, but they can never become the controlling factor as opposed to such immediate economic interests

This fact puts the economic organination in the political saddle if the economic interests are thereby furzation, no matter what may be their principles, can withstand them, nor win the constituency of the economic-political organization from the interests propelling and inspiring that or-

Not having the power to resist and prevent the unions from entering and taking the political field if they so decide, it surely will not be held that we have the power to decide for them whether or not they shall enter.

our political claim and should take by sheer force the political field, what is the expedient thing for us to do? The question needs no discussion. It is already answered. The resolution under consideration holds that the economic interests of the working class may be safely en-trusted to the trade unions but that

If, then, they should decide to jump trusted to the trade unions but that the political interests may not. This brings us to the third proposition, "that the unions are dominated by immediate and separate interests," while the Socialist Party is dominated by "general and ultimate interests"; and, fourth, that these interests are so different that the "immediate and separate interests" do not involve the elements of the "general and ultimate interests." These propositions can scarcely be maintained. The general and ultimate interests spring from the "limmediate and separate interests," otherwise they and separate interests," otherwise they would be entirely utopian. But no fact is more apparent than that "immediate and separate interests" give rise to "general and ultimate interests." Witness the recent treat coal strike. There the "general latitudies of preserving the union was the direct ourrowth of the "immediate and separate interests" of the members of the union. Will anyone undertake to ally that that "general interest" cannot be furthered by the direct political action of the Miners' Union? Or will anyone say that the Miners' Union? Or will anyone say that the Miners' Union?

matter of fact, would they not be the sost potent and vital power in furthering those interests by political ac-tion? Who would dare fight them should they enter?

The ultimate interests likewise arise from immediate interests. Every workingman is ultimately interested in the abolition of the wage system. The eason is that the wage workers can-lot, as a class, be recipients of profits. They can never receive, as a class, more than they produce. Hence, as a class, they can receive no profits; hence, they are interested in the abolition of the profit or wage system. This is the one ultimate interest which in-volves the entire Socialist philosophy and which, as shown, arises from the immediate interests of the workers.

But these interests are purely economic. Political parties, legislation, and governments are only methods by which thele inferests may be realized. Can it, therefore, be held that the economic organizations, which are naturally formed around these interests for their protection, cannot legitimate-ly enter the political field to further those interests, and could not be trusted if they did so enter?

As a mutter of fact, political action is the logical step which economic development will force the economic or-ganization to take, and the "ultimate general 'political" 'interests" are the logical deductions from the "imme diate and separate interests." If these ultimate interests are not the logical deductions from the im diate interests of the class, then they are utopian and had better be at once forsaken. But if they are the logical deductions, then the union labor movement will develop into a Socialist movement, in which case the present alarm is unwarranted.

The uitimate and general interests of the working class are vital and potent only as they juvolve the immediate and separate interests of the workers. As a matter of fact there is no difference between the vital, ultimate and general interests represented by the Socialist Party and the "immediste and separate interests" represented by the trade unions. If the trade unions can be trusted with the conduct of the fight for the interest of the workers in the economic field, they can be trusted with the fight for the nme interests in the political field. At point for them to concinde that they are in every way capable of making the political fight? Why should they trust it to others?

This leads us to the fifth proposition that is, "That the unions will not and annot organize a permanent workingclass political party"; but if they could and should their interests would not lead them to Socialism, but into "commises with the political foes of

The unions actually have entered the political field in California, and the character of their political party s developing into a more and modelistinctly working-class party. The have entered and taken the field in places by sheer force. Whether they will be permanent or temporary is for the future to tell. But to presume that their interests would lead them to "compromises with the political foes of their class" is to presume that the interest out of which the unions arise lends them, as unions, to compromise with their economic fock. To say that the unions cannot be trusted with the entire interests of the working class is to say that the working class cannot be entrusted with its own interests, which defeats our entire philosophy. The interests are identical in both the political and economic field, and an conclusions are entirely false. T moment the unions enter the political field they will be forced to take up class legislation in precisely the same manuer and on the same lines as they fight economically. Hence they will at once take up practically the same questions as would the Socialists were they in power. In fact, the Socialist Party cannot succeed until the unions become active in it and actually dominate it. Hence the interests for which the unions are now fighting will be-come the immediate political issues of the party they dominate, whether it be the Socialist Party or the Union Labor

The question of ultimate nime is matter of education, in which the majority will not be vitally interested. That is to say, the majority of the constituents of the Socialist Party, or the Union Labor, party, or whatever will not vote the ticket because of their knowledge of ultimate interests and sinus, but because of their imme-diate interests. The fact that they gain power and advantage by political action will develop a more and more distinctly class party and cause them to demand more in proportion as they succeed. The tendency will therefore be for the Union Labor party to de velop away, from compromises as into a political as well as an economic into a political as well as an economic class fight, and also into a permanent party, wherever they see fit to take political action.

Since the economic interests determine the political policy of the class interested, it becomes apparent that the political party of that class may take meet them one form with anter. take more than one form with safety, according as their interest determines. But whatever form . it may take, must be dominated by the economic in must be dominated by the economic in-terests, and controlled by the economic organization, if for no other reason than that the economic organization has the power te control the policy. To power we must all yield. We cannot politi-cally resist superior economic power. We may change the direction of activity by showing an advantage in the change, and by no other way. It is within the power of the trade unions to decide whether or not they will enter politics and not within the power of the So-cialist Party. We can only decide what to do in such cases. Their past political policy is pointed to as a failure. Granted. But it must be acknowledged that the unions determined the policy. The falincy has led the Socialists enter politics on independent lines, and the same facts that forced us to inde-pendent action are likewise forcing the unions. When they enter, it will present to the Socialists the guiden op-portunity for propaganda work for which we have so long waited. We can make no greater mistake than to me such an opportunity for developing a fight. You cannot win in such a Eght without "smashing the union I commend your attention to the conduct and failure of the S. L. P. of this line. They fought well and died hard, but they are dead.

omphy, but economic determinism has crushed them. Whoever causes the working class to march en masse toward Socialism will first teach them how to defend and further their immediate interests and so continue until the co-operative commonwealth is developed. The workers will never march to that goal solely because of its ultimate allurements Imemdiate advantages will lead then there, but ultimate allurements will never draw them there. Hence the great political strength of the U. L. P. If we avail ourselves of the oppor we can easily add our ultimate tunity aims to their immediate demands.

To say that if the U. L., P. should develop into a permanent party, it would not necessarily develop into a Socialist party, is to say that the working class cannot, under the most favorable cir cumstances, be convinced, either by ar gument or by economic development, that Socialism is to their advantage or that it is inevitable. Whether the U. L. P. will become general and permanent, or remain local and sporadic, is for the future to tell. Our opinion will not alter the facts.

Whether general and permanent, or local and temporary, so long as it is a class movement, it is safe and not dangerous to Sociation, for their every de mand is revolutionary in character. It should be welcomed, and not hindered It should be left to its own development and not urged into the field before it is mature. We should rejoice to see the workers more politically as a chas, for we can never more or con-vince them as individuals. They must he moved by interests and not ideals or ultimate hopes. It is a mass more stend of a movement of teachers. If in touch with the immediate interests not useless. JOB HARRIMAN.

straits, the knowledge of which was unde duly known to said state committees. Your Committee may form its own conclusions from the circ dance that our reference to the stand ing of Illinois in the Semi-Annual Report was referred to in the "international Socialist Review" by a member of the Illinois State Committee as "official tenderness" about dues at National Headquarters. While the New York State Committee was withholding national dues Local New York was passing resolutions insufficient activity in strike propa-

5, in Pebruary, 1902, the Tillnois State Committee passed resolutions protesting against our course in soilly ing the locals in said state that the State Committee was in arrans. They called our attention to the state autonomy clause, and warned us not to repent'the offense.

ii. The Monthly Report Books, for locals, 100 of which were furnished by os on credit to the Illinois State Cu mittee (which have not yet been paid for) and which contained a duplicate report to be sent monthly to the Na-tional Secretary, were sent out by said State Committee to its locals, with said duplicate reports removed from

7. New York, Illinois and Wisconsin have withheld from publication in their official organs, that part of the National Secretary's Reports, showing that said states are in arrears. Thus under the operation of "state autonemy." a state committee can on the one hand forbid the national commi tee from communicating knowledge of its arreages to its locats, while on the other hand, suppressing said knowledge in its official organs.

8. Wisconsin refuses a list of its locals to the national organization.
When the National Committee organized strike relief, strike subscriptle blanks were sent to the Wisconsin State Committee for distribution among its locals. Said subscription blinks were never returned to the Na-tional Secretary. The Wisconsin State Committee notified us that they were Being thus unable to reach Wiscontin locals, it followed that it was the only state in which the national orwhatever from the party locals in the collection of strike relief funds.

These circumstances are unfolded herein so that your committee may better understand why the Local Que rum in its semi-annual report aug-gested to the consideration of the comrades such constitutional steps as may he necessary for holding a nationa convention of the Socialist Party. Un der the literal construction of article 6. section 4, of the National Constitution commonly known as "state auton-omy," the above mentioned state com-mittees acted strictly within their rights, for said provision gives them "sole jurisdiction of the membership residing within their respective terri tories, and the sole control of all matters pertaining to the organization and financial affairs within such state or territory, and the national committee and subcommittee or officers thereof shall have no right to interfere in such matters without the consent of the re-spective state or territorial organizations." Realizing that no remedy for these conditions in the form of amend-ments to the constitution could be effered that would not conflict with the sole jurisdiction and sole control could be made in the constitution with.

In accounting assets of the party of less friction and a better understand-ing among the renk and file, through a national convention rather than by amendments drafted by one of the paramendments drafted by one of the par-ties to the controversy and thus sub-mitted to a national referendum. The reference in the semi-annual report to the weakness of state committee, un-der the present form of organization, was made with a knowledge of facts already presented herein, in addition to which it may be stated that since the Unity Convention, the next mean-sin had signed credentials for 588 to 49f. New York had signed cre-flentials for 1,880 members; its mem-bership has declined to 1,100. Kentucky has declined from 119 to 86; Tekas from 177 to 88. In the past twelve months, disintegration in both ocals and membership has occurred in Idaho, Michigan, Missouri, Minnesota Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah Washington. in Pennsylvania, 87 locals out of 18

dues collected, and other defects de talled herein, ample avidence of whice exists in official files at National Head quarters, are offered to your commit tee as proof of the weakness of state committee as at present constituted That portion of the semi-annual report referring to unsatisfactory meth-ods of propagands and organization was based on the ground that the party organization must be the highest con-All criticisms of this position thus far offered seem to be based on the activity of party propagands and the gratifying growth of our party vote. We submit that from the latter standpoint the party assumes the dentally organizing sufficiently to pur to be voted for. The grea tickets up number of propagandists in the field compared to the very small number of organizers, accounts for the remarka-bly rapid growth of our vote and the extremely slow growth of our organ sation.

From our point of view, the organi zation is the only true measure of novement.

This being conceded it follows that embership in the party organization is just as necessary and important as votes for it. A party membership is mutually sustaining, but mere votes do not know each other, and the latter are not secure without the former.

We submit that it is just as important for a Socialist voter to be a me her of the party as it for a striker t be a member of his trade union.

That propaganda and organization conducted under forty-five different state managements independent of each other, instead of co-operating as far as practicable under one nationa head, is not alone planless, confusing nd wasteful, but also an injury to all of the state organizations, as proven by their condition herein disclosed, is a proposition in the semi-annual statement that requires no further elucida-tion here. In the competition between state organizations and locals for propagandists, the strongest organization have secured the most and the able peakers, thus bringing the law of th survival of the fittest into operation ngainst the weaker organizations which by reason of their very weak ness, should have received special as stance at the expense of the move ent at large. An understanding of this condition will explain why in nearly all of the states a greater or less number of the locals have a precarious existence. It riso reveals in a great measure hor propaganda and organization becomes more or less sectional, segregated and at cross purposes. The result of this in that the weaker state and local or ganisations suffer, owing to the lack of systematic methods and efficient coeration along national lines. In issuing the Semi-Annual Report, we were not presumptious enough to assume that we were expected to prescribe or apply remedies.

We understand that it was our duty to issue the report; to state without fear or favor the conditions in the party to the best of our knowledge and helief; and to place the facts upon which our report was based before the party membership, having supreme faith in the wisdom and ability of the movement to devise and apply remedies should it deem them necessary.

Statements are berewith submi your committee as follows: Exhibit A. Showing assets and and receipts and payments on account of same from August 1, 1901. Exhibit B. Purposes for which cash as received and expended, and the total amounts thus received and ex-pended during the year 1902.

Exhibit C. Showing the quantity of upplies purchased during the year Exhibit D. Showing quantity of due stamps received from printer and fur-nished to party organizations. In order to aid your committee in a thorough understanding of these stateents we have prepared a synopsis as

Exhibit A shows that the total liabiltties of the party, at the conclusion of the Unity Convention, including cost of stenographic reports, were $1,976.80. The total assets at that time, including convention piedges were $387.65, leaving net limbilities of $1.380.15. The total liabilities of the party on January 1, 1903, were $1,835.62; total assets, $1,307.08, leaving net liabilities of $528.54. The reduction in net liabili-ties from August 1, 1901, to January 1, 1908, amounts to $860.61. In accounting the assets of the party on August 1, 1901, we have been ob-liged to omit $310.00 included in the assets of the Sprinfield N. H. C., which have proven non-collectible, the same being disputed by some of the state committees or otherwise impossible of January 1, 1903, we have omitted $384.75 in delinquent dues, contracted during the reconstruction period fol-lowing the Unity Convention, by various state committees, who have since disavowed liability for same. We have state committees wherein said state committees do not owe us for dre-stamps, we having no other basis whereupon to compute our claims. The assets of the party on January

1, 1903, which we have incorporated in our statement are as follows: Due the National Committee for due stamps, $614.05; for supplies, $117.22; office,

The liabilities of the party, and pay-ments on account of same since the Unity Convention, are as follows: Springfield N. E. C., $606.27, of which $72.70 has been paid, leaving a blance of $535.48; Chicago N. E. B. $982.45, of which $25.00 has been paid, leaving a balance of $957.45; steno graphic reports Unity Convention graphic $386.08, paid in full; National Committee meeting, $635.41, paid in full; Charles H. Vall, contract from August, 1991, to April, 1902, $804.14, of which $502.85 has been paid, leaving a bal-ance of $301.20; George E. Boomer, $80.00, paid in full; H. C. Darrah $293.90, paid in full; bills payable Jan uary 1, $41.40; total liabilities August 1, 1901, to January 1, $3.831.65; gross payment, $1,996.68; net liability January 1, 1903, $1,835.62.

We call the attention of your col mittee to the fact that of the $1,835.62 in liabilities on January 1, 1903, the aum of $1,402.03 was taherited by us from previous National committees, together with a contract with Charles H. Vall, on which we still owe $301.20, which leaves only $41.40 in liabilities on January 1, 1963, which can be charged to the initiative of this comuittee. The Habilities of the party on January 1, 1903, would average $100.00 per month for the eighteen months follow-ing the Unity Convention two-thirds of which are counterbalanced by our nesets amounting to $1,307.08.

If your committee will take these as tets into consideration, together with the heavy losses in dues, which we have sustained for reasons hereinbefore stated, it constitutes proof that had the state committees lived up to their obligations, we would have liqui-dated every dollar of the party's liabillties.

In conducting the party's finances, we have been obliged in the very nature of things to give preference to current obligations; otherwise final disposition would have been made of the debts of former National Commit-

Receipts and Expenditures

Exhibit B shows that our cash halance on January 1, 1902, was $60.88; on January 1, 1903, $370.00; an in-

Trease of $310.02. We received in national does for twelve months $5,930.44, which averages payment on 10,000 members per mouth. At the Unity Convention signed credentials were exhibited for 7,000 members, and the chairman of the Credentials Committee (Comrade Hillquit of New York) stated that the showing indicated that the convention represented about 12,000 dues-naving nembers. We mention this fact at this point, as tending to confirm statements here inbefore made, regarding the decline in the membership of the party.

Receipts for party supplies (consisting of printed matter and party emblems) during the year amount to $628.81. This amount added to the $117.22 mentioned in our assets as due us for supplies, makes the total sales of supplies for the year amount to $746.03.

In furnishing supplies to the party organisations we have been guided in so far as practicable by your instructions to furnish same at a price which would average not more than ten per cent, above cost. Statistics can be placed before your committee if desired, showing that the average profit on these supplies has been sightly in excess of ten per cent., but we submit that even if our operations in this channel were conducted at a loss it would represent a very great economy to the movement at large.

Receipts for Propaganda Fund and lonations during 1902, amounted to $730.46. These moneys were contributed at times when the National Committee by reason of critical conditions hereinbefore related was compelled to make special appeals for aid, and for this reason said donations operated as a mainstay of the national organiza-tion, coming as often was the case "in the very nick of time." Receipts for strike relief amounted to $3,962.81, of which sum $0,027.81 was contributed to the United Mine Workers of America, the balance be ing contributed in small sums to other organizations which were engaged in strikes of lesser consequence. Other receipts during 1902 were: On account of total expenditures for the year of $16,520.51, less $370.91 balance on hand January 1, 1903. Of the total expenditures $9,062.81 was for strike relief and $746.03 for supplies for which we were reimbursed by party organizations. This leaves a net total expenditure for the year of $6,340.70, an average of $528.31 per month.

According to the reports made to the Unity Convention, by their respective National Secretaries, the expenses of the Chicago N. E. B. for the preceding eight months averaged $440.03 per month, while those of the Springfield N. E. C. for the proceding twelve mouths averaged $341.44 per month. While the statement of the Chicago N. E. B. includes $2.301.07 for an official organ, it does not include any ex-penses for propaganda or organization. The statement of the Springfield N. E. C. includes $1,543.05 for propagands an official organ. While the present

> The part which the "Volkszeitung" has played in the remarkable German labor movement of New York and the vicinity and, indeed, of the whole country, and, what is of more interest to English-speaking ' readers, the great part which it has played in laying the deep and solid foundations of the Socialist Party as it now exists, render this anniversary a very notable one. To those of the younger genera tion who are not at all acquainted with the facts, there is something most impressive in considering how great is the service this paper has done and how little, comparatively, that service is recognized; in the unwritten history of its early struggles, the many times when it seemed doomed to failure, the indomitable spirit which brought it through all difficulties, the battles it fought, the victories it won-victories whose fruit we now enjoy, though we may know nothing of them. Most impreside of all is the thought of the quietly berole sacrifices acrifices of leisure, of comfort, of hard-earned money, of social standing and personal ambition, of health or life itself-that have been laid on the altar of proletarian liberty in this work of twenty-

Hearing on Carey's Bill to Protect Rallway Warker's Lives-MacCartsoy Opposses Property Qualification for Woman Sufferego-Mayor Flanders' Inaugural.

The bill introduced by James F. Carey, Socialist member from Haver-hill, in the Massachusetts Legislature to compel railway companies to equip all trains with automatic couplers and safety appliances came up for a hearing before the Committee on Resoluus last week. Carey supported the bill as one for he protection of the lives of working the protection of the lives of working men as against the profits of capital ists. The railway companies often found it cheaper to continue the use of old-fashloned and dangerous coupling and braking appliances, instead of im mediately installing the newer auto-matic devices by which this work can be done with very much less danger of death or injury to the trainmen. Since motives of economy were viously more powerful with the way companies than motives of humanity, it was necessary that the law should step in and compel the use of the automatic appliances.

Profits versus Life.

Among the witnesses who appeared in support of Carey's bill were A. A. Wiley of the Order of Railway Conductors and C. I. Drew of the Brother hood of Railway Trainmen. Both testi-tied to the fact that great numbers of trainmen were killed every year and still more injured in hand coupling. The continuance of hand coupling, along with the increase in the speed and the number of cars run, was respousible, they said, for the fact that the annual mortality from accidents (to say nothing of injuries) among the trainmen of the United States had risen from the startling ratio of one man killed in every 155 employed in 1818 to the still more frightful figure of one in 136 in 1901. About one in every eleven were injured yearly.

Some railroads were introducing the new appliances, but not on all trains. Only about 60 per cent. of the freight cars on the, New Haven road, Mr. Frew testified, were so equipped.

The counsel for the New Haver road, who was present to oppose the bill, admitted the statement of facts and the argument based on them by resting his opposition on the fact that trains ran through several states and that the same train would be subject to the laws of Massachusetts only through part of its trip, and for the rest under the laws of some other rent under the laws of some other totals. How would it be possible to enforce such a state law as Representative Carey proposed, he asked. Mr. Drew answered promptly that every train which did not comply with the law should be stopped at the state line. If this were gone, the companies would If this were done, the companies would soon find it less expensive to obey the law, and many lives would be saved. Carey has introduced and advocated this bill at two or three successive ses sions, and it remains to be seen whether the Republican and Democratic majority will kill it again as they have in the past.

Woman Suffrage Question.

sensationally given out last Sunday, that John D. Rockefeller-or-according to the later version, his son-sent telegrams to United States Senstors telling them to vote against the anti-trust

In the first place, such methods are too "coarse," too certain of exposure. to be adonted by the astute corruptionists and tricksters of the Standard Oil Company. They have many ways of instantly and emphatically carrying their commands to their political tools, without putting into their hands dangerously incriminating evidence.

In the second place, it is hard to be lieve that the Standard Oil people or any other trust magnates are seriously afraid of the Littlefield bill, the Nelson Amendment, or any portion of the ridiculously inadequate "anti-trust legislation" over which so much fuss is being made, even if there were a chance of its being enacted.

In the third place, it is now become ing pretty clearly evident that no considerable part of this program will run the gauntlet of House and Senate, House committees and State committees and conference committees, and all the rest of the legislative mill. If any bill at all reaches the President, it will be one that Mr. Rockefeller himself would cheerfully sign and one whose significance the combined ingenuity of all the lawyers in the land could hardly prove to be more than a plain zero.

As to the insincerity of all the ant trust deliates and votes which have been going on at the Capitol for some weeks, the New York "Evening Post"which, if it something of an "oldfogy" paper, is yet the best informed and the most plain-spoken of all capitalist dailies-han this to say:

"It will be time enough to discuss eriously the terms of the Littledeld Bill when it is taken seriously by the Senate. At present, the general under-standing is that it will not even be re-ported to that body. This confident exetation accounted, in part, for the pectation accounted, in part, the passing of the bill, on Saturday, by a unanimous House. Any measure which gots by the Bepresentatives in that may be, presumptively, either a bill for Buncombe or one that is marked for early death in the Senate. As it is passed, the Littlefield bill was shorn of some of the features which, in its original form, were most entitled to be called drastic, and it cannot now be regarded as an attempt at revolutionary lawmaking. Even so, however, the Senate will nope of it. Though the Littlefield bill passed (in the House) with unanimity, it passed without a particle of enthusiasm. The debate was listless; the voting mechan ical; the result cut and dried. Why was this? Partly because the whole thing was an insincere shouldering of a disagreeable subject upon the Sen-ate Even more, we think, because everybody was conscious that a roundabout and uncertain attack was being made on the evils of monopoly, while a direct nut damaging assault, which might have been made, was neglected.

For more reasons than one, we are interests," be enacted under the title not inclined to believe in the story, so of An Act to Make People Believe that the Republican Party Is Opposed to Trust Rule.

"Publicity" is the sum total of the program, and it is pertinently remarked that the leading stock exchanges of the country already require and enforce a greater measure of publicity for the protection of stockholders then is proposed by the "irustsmashers" in Washington.

The only trace of a real purpose in the publicity plan, in the minds of the few who support it in good faith, is to protect the smaller capitalists-the socalled "conservative investors"-from the raids of the great "operators" in the stock market. In this purpose workingmen and Socialists, as representatives of the working class-can have no interest.

Whether or not the small capitalist is fleeced by his bigger competitor, whether or not the $10,000 investor is "squeezed" by the million-dollar manipulator of stocks, is a matter of indifference to the workingman, whose tabor and whose living are fixed by his necessities as a propertiless wage worker, and who is dependent upon the interest or the caprice of the capitalists for permission to work and live at all. Whether the surplus product of his labor goes to a few great exploiters or to many smaller ones, or in what shares it is divided among them, he must tell to the full limit of his strength in order to hold his job, he must limit his family's comforts and cut short his children's education for fear of the pauper's doom, and be must stand idle and hungry when the cap-Italists, big or little, are not satisfied with the profits his labor creates for them.

The workingmen are learning, just in proportion as they learn to think for themselves and think together, that they must not look to the past for relief from the crits of the present, as the "trust smashers" of all sorts would have them do, but that before them lies the Co-operative Commonwealth of industrial liberty and fraternity, for which the concentration of capital is helping to prepare the foundations, and which they have to build up by their class-conscious efforts,

The Republican Congress and A6 ministration would not check the concentration of capital if it could.

A Democratic Congress and Administration could not stop concentration If it would.

If either or any party could and would restrain that tendency, it would only be prolonging our misery.

The Boosevelts and the Hearsts may go on with their spectacular shambattle against the trusts. The trusts will go on organizing industry, making it ready for collective ownership. The workers will go on acquiring knowledge, learning discipline, and cul tivating the spirit of class loyalty and nright, without danger to any "vested class revolt. And Socialism will come

Stimson-Carey Debate. The Stimson-Carey debate in Fan-

In a campaign speech at Franklin be attacked Socialism in such a way that State Secretary Mailiy challenged him to meet Carey in debate. Stimson accepted and expressly desired that th discussion should be upon the general principles of Socialism, not on ques-tions of municipal or national ownership, to which Comrade Garey cheer fully agreed.

On Saturday evening the "Cradle of Liberty" was packed and hundreds Liberty" was packed and hundreds were turned away. At least 2,500 were mt. Mr. Stimson has been looke upon as an intellectual giant; he is a law lecturer at Harvard and an author of note, and by our opponents was ex-pected to completely demoltsh Social-ism. But he quite abandoned his desire for discussion of the general pri cipies and talked of New Zealand Glasgow, tramways of England, and the superior condition of the wagegorker in this country. What bearing this had on the scientific basis of So claims. we have yet to learn. Carey mened, making a clear exposition ialism, tracing the development of that the change brought about by th force of industrial progress would com-pel a rearrangement of the relations of men and that in conformity to these changes the social ownership to the tools of production and distribution

There was no attempt on Mr. Stim on's part to show that he had any knowledge of Socialism. The audie appreciated that fact. They gave him patient and respectful though occasional laughter and groans at the absurd statements made by him would break forth. The great wonder is that a body of intelligent people could remain silent under his misrepresentation of Socialism. But in his clos ing be made a statement which implied immorality upon the part of So-clalists. Carey closed with such a reply as only Carey can make when was ion insult is offered to the men and women of his class. Stimson will not forget the lesson he got that night.

Mayor Flanders' Message.

The spirit in which Parkman R. Fletcher, Socialist of Haverhil, has taken up his duties, can be judged from the following extracts from his inaugural address: "I shall assist in so far as my power permits, the forces that are making toward a more equitable and humane obtains. "I shall resist every aggression of the corporations upon the rights of the people, and shall assist every effort made toward the public ownership and peration of public utilities. "I shall aid the workers in every attempt to lessen the hours of labor, to ment, to increase the returns for their labor power and all else that makes for the betterment of their condition. "I recommend that the contract ava-

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Every party member in New York City should be present at the Labor Lyonum promptly at two o'clock on Sunday, Feb. 15. The report of our National Committeeman deals with spectures of vital importance to the movement and should be heard by all.

AS TO HEADQUARTERS.

Our advice, given last week, that the local organizations of the party force a referendum upon the question of party beadquarters and overrule the decision of the National Committee, was prompted by two concurrent motives, either of which seems to us amply suf-

In the first place, we do not consider that headquarters at Omsha, with a Quorum composed of members from lows, Kansas, Missouri, Netenska, and South Itakota, is an arrangement at all representative of the spirit and purpuess of the Socialist Party or conducive to the most rapid and safest dereferences timals is not relatively an important industrial city. It is not is as yet young, weak, and inexperienced. No reasons have been suggest ad in its favor, and there are at least these three forcible reasons against its being selected. The five states to which nmediate control of party affairs to to be entrusted under the plan overwhelmingly so. In Kansas, Nebracks and South Dakota the Socialist movement, as in Omaha locally, is as yet roung and weak and inexperienced. In none of them was there ever a Socialist state ticket before 1900. In lown and Missouri it is older; but notthe conspicuously strong Socialist states. The five states together, in 1900, gave us but 11.467 votes-consid embly less that the single state of New York. In 1962, they gave us 20,826-c week mitsfactory increase, indeed, but still an increase less than that of the total vote of the United States, and a total less than that of Massachusetts alone or New York alone or Pennsylvanta alone, and barely above that of

The Worker does not wish the party to neglect the agricultural portions of the country. We will heartfly applayed energetic measures to push our propa gands in the farming states, and we shall lowfully record every forward step of our enganisation or our rote mate against the West. We have neve done that and never shall. We insis that it is the duty of the East to give meral and funncial sid in pushing ou propoganda in the West, and we shall giadly recognize every gain made there

But we do emphatically oppose the progressive removal of the headquarters westward, for beyond the cente of industry, of poulation, or of Societies strongth, and out of all proportion to the relative growth of our movemen AND REAL PROPERTY.

And we do emphatically oppose putting the adminintation of national party affairs entirely into the hands of five agricultural states, states compare tively out of touch, with the labor movement strictly so called, states in which the Socialist Party is young and inexperienced, states whose combined Socialist vote is only 9 per cent. of the total for the country and its ratio of increase during the last two years be low the average for the whole country.

So much for our opposition to the plan adopted. Now for the prompiness, the emphasis, and the tone of our pro

Article VII of our party constitution is clear and explicit in its provisions. it reads: "The headquarters shall be located at St. Louis, Mo. But such headquarters may be changed by the National Committee SUBJECT TO A REFERENDUM OF THE PARTY." If the submission of the question of removal were optional with the National Committee, the words we have not in large type would be superfinous and therefore meaningless. If the referendum on this question were to be held only in case of demand by five locals, equally would these words be superfluous and meaningless. The only menning these words can have is, that the National Come-tu-, if it thinks the headquarters should be removed. shall submit so h a proposition to general vote and that its decision shall go into effect only when sanctioned by such general vote.

Even if there were room for reasons ble doubt that the provision for referendum in this case is mandatory and the validity of a National Committee's vote for removal is conditional on the result of the referendum, the apirit and tradition of our party demands that in matters of such moment, especially where there is a considerable division of opinion on the question immediately at issue, delegated bodies, such as the National Committee, shall refer the derision to the rank and file of the party.

When, therefore, the majority of the National Committee showed a disposition so to construe the constitution so to increase their nower and tenson their responsibility to the rank and file; when they voted to postpone the referendum on the question of removal as long as they could; when they voted to take possession of the headquarters, with the records, etc., at once, even before the arrival of the new National Secretary, and put them in the hands of a sub-committee chosen entirely by and from the majority; when the only reason they assigned for this hasty procedure was a vague insinuation against the St. Louis comra-les, an insignation which they contradicted first by flenying a hearing to the old Local Querum members on their deposition and then by adopting a resolution thanking them for their services and asserting belief in their integrity; when the majority which did these things repres states casting a minority of the Socialist votes of the country; and when the nucleus of this majority was plainly organized and disciplined for the purposs—in the face of all this we believed and do still more strongly believe it

In order that the force of this rebuke should not be lesseued by a division of the vote, we advised and still advise that Chicago alone be supported as against Omaha in this referendum Moreover, Chicago is a very fitting place, probably at present the best piace, for the headquarters. It is a large and centrally located industrial city, with a strong Socialist movement Illinois and the four continuous states adopted at St. Louis are all prevailing of Iowa, Indiana, Kentucky and Wisconsin, furnish a good constituency for the Quorum; they mingle the agricultural and industrial elements in representative proportions; in three of them there is a mature and experienced Socialist movement; combined, they can 22.658 votes in 1900; in 1908, they advanced to 51.504-in each year, about 28 per cent, of our total, just keeping pace with our general increase.

The plan which we advocate will, therefore, give as a truly representafive and rightly located national organinstion, and its adoption by general vete will at the same time serve as a warning against future usurpations by the National Committee. We have only te add that our unqualified conde tion of the acts of the majority at th St. Louis meeting should be considered quite apart from any question of their good faith. We are not now called upon to judge of their intentions. We ballove that the inexperience of some in the Socialist movement and then inck of knowledge of the move outside their own localities led then into what we countder most seriou error; for others, strong feeling against the policy of the old Secretary as Quorum in feeling which we, so well as post of the minority members, fully share) seems to have temporarily bline ed there to other considerations. A LAST WORD ON THE PUSION QUENTION.

With this issue of The Worker believe-at least, we hope-that we close the long discussion on the question of the policy to be pursued by the Socialist Party toward Union Labor parties. We have tried to be fair in our treatment of those who opposed us and advocated fusion, and have even refused publication to very many letters supporting our position, in order that, without taking up too much space, we might give the other side a full hearing. After Comrade Hillquitt's article in the present issue, it seems unnecessary for us to say anything further in reply to the arguments advanced by Comrades Harriman. Faigenbaum, Putnam, Dunn, Roche, and others.

The unanimous adoption by the National Committee of the two resolutions printed last week will probably be accepted in all quarters as an antheritative decision of the party, arrived at after due consideration, unon the questions at issue. In order that this decision, unnuimous though it was, might have the utmost finality, we could wish it submitted to general vole-freling confident that it would be overwhelmingly austained. We hope that enough iscals will agree with us in this wish to bring these resolutions to referendum along with the question of bendmarters.

Une further word we have to say in closing the discussion:

Those who have agreed with us and who most vehemently oppose fusion in any form will do well to bear in mind that the question as it arose in this case was one which left room for difference of opinion: that only by the free expression of opinion has a valid decision been reached or could it be reached; that we ought to respect those who have frankly differed with us rather than condemn or discredit them; that what the party requires of its members is, not that they shall change or pretend to change their minds when a decision adverse to them is made, but that, in action, they shall abide by the party's expressed will. For us, we are confident that these who have most Vigorottsly advocated fusion with Union Labor parties will loyally support the party in acordance with the lecision it has made, and we hope that the controversy just closed will leave no rancor and no suspicion in its wake.

The New York "Sun." in a curious diterial on "The Rival Socialists," analyzes the Socialist vote in this coun try, notes the existence of two parties and concludes that "It is rather to this autagonism than to the success of the Socialists in getting new recruits the the large vote they have pelled through the country in 1982 is due." If this be sound political philosophy, let us wish long life to the "smashers" and disrup-

If there is any one principle to the observance of which the integrity of the Socialist movement is don, it is that principle upon which the referendum is based. With the control of party affairs resting in the rank and life, the supportunities of the dictator ille, the opportunities of the dictato and trickster are reduced to a mini mum. Any attempt to circumscribe the participation of the party membership in the matter of principles or policies is an attack on the democratic char matantly rebuked. Any man or group of men who seek to avoid the submi sion of any important question to the party membership must be regarded as-enemies of the Socialist movement. It does not matter what excuse this man or group of men may offer. The letter and the spirit of the party law are plain, and wee to him who would subvert the letter or disregard the spirit law were flagrantly disragneded by the unjority in control at the St. Louis meeting of the National Committee, which convened Jan. 20. This majority not only denied that a referendum was necessary when Omaha was selected for headquarters, but made this denial after having previously given full assent to the ruling of the chair that the constitution was mandatory on this point. Thus the majority not only went counter to the spirit and letter of the party law, but displayed an inconsistency which verged pertiously near upon downright chicanery. This is shown by the proceedings as set down on the minutes of the meeting.

On Jan. 30, (Carey of Massachusetts in the chair) the question of selecting a new place for bendquarters came up and the chair was called upon to decide whether the countitution required a referendum in this matter. He ruled that the constitution did so require pointing out that the constitution speci ficulty declares that St. Louis shall be the headquarters, and any change of headquarters involves a change of con-stitution, which can only be changed, interpretation of the constitution, and the majority gave further evidence of Hillquit, according to the minutes, "Moved that the two cities getting for referendnin." Lovett, of South Da and make it read "one" to be sub-united to a referendum. The motion as amended was carried. The vote on roll call resulted: Omaha 14: Indianapolia 5; Chicago, 1; St. Louis, 2; and Washington, 1. According to the minutes, "Omaha was thereupon declared aclacted by Committee for submission to referendum." Thus it will be seen that there was unanimous agreement that the place selected should go be fore the insunivership of the party for approval on referendum vote.

After declaration of the result of the rote. Hillault moved that Indianapolis be submitted as a minority report, but a point of order was made against the motion. The chair ruled that the preposed submission of the minority port was constitutional, but Goebel of New Jersey appealed from the decision of the chair and on a roll call the appeal was sustained by the vote of for standing by the chair were the memhers of the Local Quorum. The reprecentatives of states standing by the unir were Berlyn, Ill.; Malsoney, Ind.; Dobhs, Ky.; Carey, Mass.; Lockwood. Miun.: Hillouit, N. Y.: Barnes, Pa.: and Berger, Wis.

This repudiation of the chair's posttion, if it meant anything, meant that the majority was afreid to submit two cities to a referendum of the party. This feer of the party membership was further revealed on the following day. On this day, Jan. 31, the majority, through Milis, of Kansas, presented a proposition to move the headquarters manediately. The minority protested earnestly against this, claiming that the headquarters could not be moved until the question had been passed upon by the party membership. The minority pointed out that this question had been sattled on the previous day, when unanimous assent had been given to Chairman Carey's ruling that a referendum was obligatory. But after having agreed to this interpretation on the thirtieth, the majority repudiated it on the thirty-first and, with Smith of Montana in the chair, there was a ruling that a referendum was not obligatory, but only optional. Acting on this interpretation of the constitution, the majority voted to turn the headquarters over to the members of the new Local Quorum, who were then in St. Louis, and they were instructed to transfer the books and records with all despatch to Omaha. The minority protested against this precipitate action as high-handed and unwarranted, and some even refused to vote upon the proposition, claiming that it was unconstitutionally submitted. But these protests had no influence upon the maerity, who adopted the proposition as The reason for this precipitate action the party was explained by several members of the majority to be because ned there for a moment langer than absolutely necessary. In other words, the influence of the retiring Lo-cal Quorum or the St. Louis membership was dangerous and not to be trusted during the time necessary to take a referendum on the question of locating the headquarters. That this explanation, however, was disingenuons was proved on the following day, Feb. 1, when these members of the majority voted manimously in favor of a resolution extending thanks to the retiring Local Quorum and retiring National Secretary, and expressing perrity of the members who, on the pre-vious day, had been stigmattend as un-fit to have the headquarters a day longer in their midet. Thus the record, as shown in the

A striking illustration of the numher and the intimacy of the ties which connect each nation of the world to nil the other is found at the present time In the case of Germany on one side and Venezuela and the United States on the other. A very important election is soon to take pince in Germanythat in which the Reichstag, or popular branch of the empire's parliament, is to be chosen. There are 397 mem-bers in that body, or 11 more than are in the corresponding branch of the United States Congress. The largest element in the dozen partiann groups of the empire is the Socialists. This is a party which the Kaiser particularly advisers fear. The Socialists are op-nosed to the Kaiser's scheme of colonposed to the Kaiser's scheme of colonization. They are especially hostile to jingoism of all sorts. The adventure in Venezuela has been condemned The Emperor wants to strike the Socialists in the coming election. A war scare always has a tendency to obliterate party lines and to make all citizens rally in defense of the government. The Kaiser's war fever, if it can be kept up for a little while longer, will lift the Socialists hard, and will strengthen the parties from which he looks for his principal support.
William II. has reason to view the Socialists as a menuce to his ideas. From one of the smallest of the po-litical sects in the German empire they have grown to be the largest. Polling only an insignificant vote a third of a ittury ago, they cast 2,140,000 votes the elections of 1898. This was a larger total than any other two parties polled in that contest. The next strongest party was the Catholic center, which east about 1,450,000 votes. Because of the gerrymander however, which has come through the however, which has come through the rapid growth in the cities of the empire and the slower jucrouse in the rural regions, it now takes about twice elect a member of the Reichstag as it does in the farming localities, and the Socialist strength is chiefly in the big towns. In this way it happened that although the Socialists had a long lead in the latest election in the popular vote, their representatives in the Reichstag number only 76, while the Center has 104 in that chamber and the German Conservatives, with only a third of the popular rule of the Ro-cialists, have almost as many memhers in parliament, or 55,

Before many years are over the Socialists will have a majority in the German Belchstag. Such a great authority as Prof. Monnuses has pointed out that the future of Liberalism in the Empire depends on a work-ing alliance with the Social Demo-erats. What will the Kaiser do as a war lord, and ruler by divine right, as he is pleased to regard himself, when the pure strings are held by his avowed enemies? The English Liberals, like the German Liberals, are powerless to fight against the forces of reaction which have been strengthened by the result of the war in South Africa. Not only is the Opposition weak and without a leader, but the Boverelga is taking more of a hand in international affairs than any of his predecessors did since

A writer in the "Review of Reviews," discussing the Liberal party of the future and its program, says: "In England we have witnessed the overthrow one by one of the principles of legislation which the Liberals of last ment which has levied an export duty on coal, an import duty on bread, and which has reimposed religious tests and re-enseted church rates in dismoderate men. What Prof. Monumer enys in Germany is that the Liberal must form a working alliance with the Social Democrats. What we are be-ginning to my in this country is that the Liberal party must experience a glorious resurrection as the party of progress with the 'condition of the people' question—the material im-provement of the individual citizen by the use of all the forces at the disposa of the state—as its buttle cry. Liberal party, in abort, must been nocial party, with a social program so broadly defined as to make it practically indistinguishable in its diate nims from the Labor party.

> The City Campaign Committee of he Socialist Party has engaged the Auditorium in Chiengo for a night the last week in March for a grand mass meeting to round out the enthusiastic campaign now being made for the Chieago city ticket. The Auditorium costs $500 a night, seats six thousand people, and its acoustic properties are so good that a speaker with ordinary voice has no difficulty in making himself heard. To provide for the rental, tickets will be sold at 25 cents up, and the Chieven comrades expect to sell enough to pay for the ball and leave a handsome balance besides. Very rarely in even the most exciting campaigns have the Republicans or Democrats peld a meeting in the Auditorium, and the an nouncement that the Socialists have had the temerity to curage it in a local campaign will come with such a shock to the capitalist parties that hundreds of the members of the latter will at tend out of curiosity to witness the evolution of the Socialist propaganda from the corner soap-box meeting to

Comrade Wyatt presided at the las cting of the New Jersey State Committee. On the seating of new delegates, Organizer James of Local Essert County protested against the scating of Courade Billings as delegate from Essex. The discussion revealed a de-plorable state of affairs in the local and the State Committee was com-pelled to declare the seat vacant and to hope that Essex County may find a way out of its troubles. A new branch in Camden requested a charter. At-tempts are being made to organize in Herdentown and Westfield with good Herdentown and Westfield with good chances of success. The Organisation Committee made an excellent report, showing, among other things, that 17,574 books and leaflets had been either sold or distributed. A monthly appropriation of $20 will be made for this committee. The protest of Local Hudson County was acknowledged and the Secretary instructed to take a new referendum on time and place of convention. A resolution was adopted censuring the National Committee for not submitting the change of nations hendquarters to referendum. The State Committee declared the seating state Committee deciared the seating of proxy delegates unconstitutional. The old Organization Committee—On-wald, Firth, and Kearms—was re-elect-ed. Wyatt, Krafft, and Oswald were chosen as a committee to desft a new constitution, to be reported at the next meeting for consideration, then sub-mitted to the convention, and finally to referendum. The financial report, which was ordered sent to locals, showed rewas ordered seat to locals, abowed re-ceipts, $491.77; disbursements, $507.65; descipts, $491.87. Owing to marked differences which have arisen in the party with regard to the action of the National Commit propositions, taking form in the firs instance in an official protest from the l'enseyivania State Committee and la both cases subjecting the Local Quorum and National Secretary to adverse opinions and severe criticism (finding expression in prominent Socialist pub-lications) it is but proper, and justice to ourselves requires that in this annual report, we should state to you committee that concept and interpreta tion of the "trade union resolutions and party platform adopted at the strictly guided ourselves in the policy under consideration. We beg leave to submit to your com-mittee that the difference between these two elements was that while both agreed that propagands and tre-tics should be conducted from the con-cept of social revolution, yet there were two concepts—one cataclysmic, the other constructive; one regarded ameliorative measures an incubus on the platform, the other insisted on their vital importance and their in-section. The Local Quorum and Na₇ tional Secretary, elected unanimously by said convention, were known to both elements as men who (with one exception) had fought and voted for the retention of the "immediate deamnds" in the platform and further more as men more or less actively identified with and having faith m the progressive revolutionary character of tne trade union movement, which at that time was and still is almost entirely comprised in the American Fad-eration of Labor and its affiliated oc-At the time of the Unity Convecbetter its condition (while engaged it a strike) by nrging them "to cinists to political offices." The concept entertained by the trade union movement (which we acknowledge is an emancipating factor) found expression not in a request for agits ors to encourage their men by direct ing their eyes toward the politically emancipating force, but in an appeal for financial aid. It becomes abso utely essential for the trade union movement during a strike to nerve it self to a supreme effort with solely to the accomplishment of the mmediate object in hand.

Bearing this in mind, it becomes of the gravest whether we should choose such a critical moment (even if we receive a large measure of innocent encourage from those engaged in the struggle) to propagate and organize in the strike field in furtherance of the political movement, especially if our operation tend even in a minor degree to diverthe attention of those most vitally concerned from the immediate problem in hand; not to mention the circumstance (distanteful though it be to us) that the emphashing of an impending cateclysmic revolution superinduces lack of faith in and appreciation of the progressive revolutionary methods of the trade unions. Policy in Goal Strike.

While the economic organization during the "steel strike" appealed solely for material aid and while we saw some significance in this circumstance at the time, nevertheless the then but later as a result of act perisace during the strike in the anthercite coal fields.

The hance raised by the conflicting policies of the Pennsylvania "State Committee and the National Committee consist mainly of three points: 1. Whether the political movement truly serves the immediate economic interests of the wage-working class when the latter are on strike by political propaganda and organization among them. 2. Whether such a course does not conflict with the economic program by detracting from its supreme importance at the time.

2. Whether the Socialist Party in the midst of a strike of national neignitude should concentrate all "of its power on the raising of strike relief

The policy of the Pennsylvania State Committee as put into force was apparently founded upon the baller (which we shared at the outset of the straggie), that the extremity of the trade union was the opportunity of the lineshilst Party.

SOCIALIST PARTY AND LABOR PARTIES.

I We present under this beliding som further communications on the ques tion of the attitude of the Socialist Party toward-inher parties, as brought to the attention of the party by the action of the San Francisco and Los Angeles comrades.]

No one, I hope, will accuse me of laxity of adherence to uncompromising feetalism, still I must differ with most of the opponents of the Californian policy, not in their opposition to that policy, but in their line of argument.

The cry of "No compronrise" seems to have been misunderstood by comwhom, with what, and under what cir-Cumstances.

That this should not be the case can constitution and principles of the very International Workingmen's Associa-tion was necording to Frederick Engels, in his preface to the last German tended to be a platform of a social democratic party proper. The com-promise was calculated for the enabling of the English trade unions toin the movement.

There is only one thing we refuse to compromise: the endeavor of organizing an independent political power of the working class, with the purpose of conquering the public affairs from the heurgeois class. Every "compromise," deavor is not only permissable, but even imperative to us. By conquering the public affairs we mean the admittance of so called labor men to office no matter by what means. No. If, for instance, the the devilish Hearst plan to capture the labor movement by the Democratic party should be realized and so-called "labor men" brought to office "en nonese" through that party, a Hearst, with the Schmitzes, the Sullivans at like, in order to prepare the road to Washington for blunelf in 1904, to be carried thither by a "laborized" "new democracy"—then it would cerour movement that our comrades attention, against this danger they should concentrate all their efforts.

But in case the working class should attends small the control of a second field independently as a working these abstraining, however, from joining our party because they did not grasp yet the economic teachings of Rocialism; if their aim and object in the political power out of the hands of the capitalist class and its hirelings, the pricessional politicians, in order to use the power so lacquired for the enactment of genuius him: measure ad for the defending of the econon labor struggle against capital, even if only within capitalist society; if, in a ord, they should at last do what we blumed them so long for not doing, ful-ing, however, to come to us entirely, not out of dishonesty but out of their ot having yet come to the conviction not having yet come to the convection of the inevitability and practicability of the final goal of Socialism—then our very desire to see the working class conquer the public power would imperatively dictate us to say: "If the mountain does not come to Mohamet. then Monamet must go to the most tain!" We can't help taking people on they are. We will not change then stioning the reasonableness denver to tight its battle against capi an understanding with such party there being no other alternative—it would not be less a crime than oppos-ing it on the economic field! A Socialist candidacy against a real bons ie iabor candidate, even if this latter ses not believe in the thorough sothe labor candidate, thus unwillingly the hands of empitalwould be exactly as criminal and as suicidal for Socialism as was the organizing of Socialist rival unions and souding S. T. & L. A. scales to take the places of the strikers, because of their not yet accepting the Socialist

Nay, very much more so, inasmuch as here we would no more have the excuse of considering such labor movestill much more, because we would discourage the workers from a step which we were preaching to them as being, and which really is, the right course to Socialism, whether they wander consciously as such or not.

And, finally, the more would such a policy be totally wrong now, at the present juncture of American politics, when the Democratic party is entirely demagogues like Hearst, aware of the spirit of the time, are trying to identify that party with the labor movement. Should we, by misunderstanding the principle of "no compromise," make ourselves the antagonists of Labor's spontanous attempt in the political struggle against its oppressors, we would play into the hands of the newly-haked "Labor Democracy" and help it carry out its demagogic acheme of capturing the labor movement.

If, on the other hand, we should give to Labor our helping hand, politically to hands our neighing hand, positically as well as economically, we would not only have its doors open for "boring from within" for Socialism proper—in this case as well as in the case of the economic trade unions—but would by such action alone travel the very road to Socialism. We will FRACTIBE Socialism rather; for the development of power 18 Socialism—the or Socialists have to do NOW.

Never mind the social revolution of the future. It will and must inevitably result from the development of an independent political power of the working class fighting the capitalist class genuinely. So says Carl Kautaky:

"It is clear that a people's party, in which the class interests of the farm owners or small capitalists have a preponderating influence, always must re-niain on the basis of the present order of society, the private property in the pream of production-the "freedom" of private production—no matter how triendly to labor and how radical may be its professions. * * * Entirely differ-ent will inevitably develop a clear proproperty in the means of production No matter how peacefully and legally such party may come into power, and no matter how energetically it is destrons of stepping consciously on the toad of 'organic idevelopment' only, and even if it is extremely skeptical in regard to the 'Socialist Stopina,' it atill will, in defending its interests, put tion and on the preservation of private

And he proceeds to show concretely how in the very nature of the most simple interests of Labor it has to undermine the very foundation of capitalism, wittingly, on the part of Labor, or not. And he concludes:

"Thus the transformation towards Socialist production would impose it-self upon a victorious proletariat even m the case it has not strived to it from the beginning but was simply moved by the logic of its class interrets. In other words, capitalist production and political power of the pro-

In a word, we speak so much of the class struggle as the only salvation, Low should we escape such struggle when it manifests itself? We should never compromise THE class struggle, class struggle.

Thus, the Californian policy can by no means be condemned on general principles. On the contrary, a compro-nise with labor genuinely fighting capital politically, is the very thing that on general principles recommends itself to Socialists. But—here comes the very hig but—is the Californian case a genuine spontaneous outburst of an honest and sineere political class struggle of Labor against Capital? Is it not the very kind or affair we are anxious to be guarned against; to wit, a scheme of shrewd politicians to shletrack the patural awakening of Labor by the apirit of the time to political action— to addetrack it to the roads of the capitalist political scheme?

The soution of this question lies not in general principles, but in the thorough knowledge of the local affairs in California.

and I hope the discussion will be car-tied on only by comrades acquainted with the facts in the history and nature of the California Union Labor party, and will tend only to produce clear insight into the true character-

Comrade Harriman and the others have not committed themselves to that kind of fusion which we condemn, on general principles, I still must now add, that during the time the above was awaiting its turn for space in The Worker, my above confessed ignor-nace was greatly madified by the recent events in California, and especially by the speeches of Mr. Schmitz in New Orleans and Chicago, as paid ngent of W. R. Hearst. It is now ob vious, it seems, that our comrades in California were fooled into helping to lay the foundation of the "new laborhed democracy" schemed by Hearst and that, no matter what the origin of the California Union Labor party—end it will like its predecessors, the multi-tude of the "Labor parties" using the graveyards of American politics, under

B. FEIGENBAUM.

The Union Labor party incident as such may at this time be regarded as a closed chapter in the history of our expressed itself in clear and una sincerely intends to fight capital in the present, in the true interest of Labora a Socialist candidacy in opposition to such one, tending inevitably to defeat ther co-operation with the Union La-bor party, and the Los Angeles Local at a recent meeting formally repu-diated the policy of fusion.

Of course, I know that debatable questions of party policy caunot ordinarily be disposed of by resolutions or majority votes, but when a movemen as was the Balon Labor party move at: when that movement does no ganization, and when, finally, the jority of the local supporters of that movement openly repudiate it, it is hardly likely that it will present any serious practical issues in the future.

But the arguments advanced in the discussion on the subject still merit our serious attention. These arguments frequently transcended the scope of the immediate question under discus-sion, and encroached on general questions of party policy which may prove of importance in the future. They were presented by men, many of whom deservedly enjoy the respect of our party members, and they were at times discussed with much lagenuity and ability, as was notably the case in the two contributions on the subject from the pen of Comrade Harriman. It will, therefore, not be considered out of place to sum up the controversy as briefly as possible before dismissing

the means for fulfilling that mission is the propagands of Socialism; political action is one of the forms of such pro-action is one of the many it has bepagnada; and of late years it has be-come the settled conviction in the So-cialist movement that such political ac-tion is most effective when conducted strictly independent lines. Independent political action is not necessarily an in-tegral part of the Socialist movement. While the cardinal principles of our movement have never varied since Socialism first took root in this country our political policy has undergone many raulcal changes. In 1876, when the several Socialis organizations of this country first united into a national party under the name Workingmen's Party of the United States (which name was sub sequently changed to Socialist Labor Party), the political declaration adopted by them was as follows:

"The sections of this party and all workingmen generally are earnestly requested for the time being to abstain from all political movements, and to turn their backs upon the ballot box." Two years later the party was the first to violate its own injunction by entering the political field with inde-pendent tickets in all strongholds of the movement. Under the influence of the great railway strikes an other labor troubles, the party scored considerable success in several states, and proclaimde the necessity of inde-pendent Socialist politics. In 1880, however, when the movement was again weakened, we find the party of-ficially co-operating with the Greenback party, and energetically support ing the candidacy of Peter Coope President of the United States. six years following are again marked by abstention from politics and by the by abstention from politics and by the passage of many resolutions declaring the ballot a farce and a snare to avoided by the workingmen. In 1880 the party in New York enthusiastically supported the Henry George move ment During the three or four year following each section of the party adopted its own political policy, some nominating independent tickets, others fusing with local "labor" or "reform" parties, and some abstaining from politics altogether. And it is only since nhout 1800 that the present party policy, that of independent political action, became tolerably fixed.

· A similar state of facts is presented by the history of the Socialist move-ment of almost all other countries, and the oft quoted passages of the "Comnunist Manifesto." bearing on the re lations of the Communist party to other reform movements, likewise go to slow that independent political action is by no means indissolubly con-nected with the activities of international Socialism.

The political history of our movement all over the world shows a succession of varying tactics, but on the whole it may be divided into three stages corresponding to the degrees of development of the movement, polit-ical inactivity, fusion tactics, and in-

It would be the extreme of idealistic reasoning and a good deal of conceit if we were to attempt to account for these changes of policy by the superior in-tellect of the Socialists of our genera-tion over that of the pioneers of the evement. The actual reason for the change lies much deeper and is to be explained by the changing political and monic conditions of each country.

At a time when the labor movemen cannot exercise any perceivable influthe only existing politics are capitalist politics, the Socialists naturally proclaim alutention. When the lab movement reaches a higher stage of development and other radical reform with it, and so produce a political movement which bears in it the elemovement which bears in it the ele-ments of opposition to capitalism, while the conscious Socialist movement is as yet in its infancy, the latter has no alan such is sufficiently strong to con duct political campaigns on a national scale, it uniformly advocates independ-

From this it follows that political co reform parties may be permissible and even wise at certain times, but that it requires the concurrence of two cir-circumstances make it so: First, the Socialist movement as such must be second, the movement supported by it must be a genuine, spontaneous, and powerful labor movement presenting a good field for the propaganda of Socialism. Such a movement was repre movement was by no means Socialistic: its standard bearer was the Single Tax apostle, Henry George; but it had been inaugurated by the Central Labor Union under the impulse of the eight-hour agitation, and at the time weh nthe labor movement in this coun-try ran highest. As the campaign proceded, the lines were drawn more and more clearly. It was generally admit-ted to be a struggle between capital and labor, Abram S. Hewitt representing the interest of the one and Henry George those of the other. The phere of New York, and every reason ing man took sides. And the Socialists? They consisted principally of German immigrants. Their voting strength is the entire city at ordinary times ran from 1,500 to 2,000. Could they afford to nominate a ticket in opposition to that of the Union Labor party? Could they afford to remain indifferent spec-tators in this intense struggle between capital and labor? Obviously they could do neither. They threw themselves into the campaign on the side of labor, lending sense and enthusiasm to the movement, "not on account of Henry George's theories, but in spite of

Bimilar situations might have arisen in this country at other times, for our movement here was until recently quite insignificant; and under similar conditions, we might have been com-pelled to act in a similar manner.

But such occurrences are always signs of the weakness of our move-ment; and can only be justified by the plea of necessity. When our movement becomes a political factor of signifiinto pointic inospendently of the se-cialist movement at a time when our party is well established and the aims and objects are well known, it does so not in ignorance of, but in opposi-tion to, Socialism; it is then a reactionary movement, and in the interests of the purity of the labor movement it-the purity of the labor movement itself, we must combat it.

Now, it is quite possible that the aituation in California, especially in the Schmitz campaign of 1901, was somewhat analogous to the Heary George campaign of 1886. That there really were accordance to the neighbor labor. was something in the political situs tion of California that could not be ap-preciated by us in the East, I infer-from the fact that such men as Harriman and Spring, who do not as a rule run away with their judgement, and who were known to be strongly opposed to the so-called fusion policy while they were with us, changed their views as soon as they reached the soil of the Golden State.

Had the advocates of fusion, therefore, merely sought to justify the particular acts of the California courades as the reloce of the leaser of two evils.

as the choice of the lesser of two evils. many of us might have been inclined to defer to their better opportunities for judging the situation, and the question might have been disposed of by the fact that our party has since grown to such proportions as to become an es tablished factor in our national poli tics, and thus to obviste the nece

But the advocates of the Union Labor movement went much farther than that. The particular occurrences in California were construed by them as symptoms of a general tendency in the labor movement. They preciaimed their belief that the movement would within a short time grow into national dimensions. They welcomed it as a political awakening of the working class, to be encouraged, and advised the political effacement of our party before the new movement. And here they are wrong in all respects. The Union Labor parties will not and cannot prove a lasting factor in politics; they will not and cannot take the place of the Socialist Party; and it would be very unfortunate for the labor movement as a whole if they

The labor movement, as any other historical class movement, cannot succeed unless it is organized, and organ ization presupposes a proper division of functions. Trade unions are organ-ized for the purpose of conducting the lattics of their respective trades, and their entire machinery is adapted to those purposes only. If we attempt to add to their functions those of a political party, we impair their usefulness as economic organizations, while we do not add to their strength by their po-

Let me make this somewhat clearer by a concrete example. Take a carpenters' union which has decided to go into politics as such carpenters' union and has adopted a certain political plat-form, say a Socialistic one. What qualifications will It Impose on lis members? Will it suffice if they are carpenters by trade or will it also be required that they be Socialists? If the former is the case, the union will nave to admit Democrats, Republicans and men of all political creeds, with the result that a harmonious political action wit soon become impossible.

And if the union imposes a test of political qualifications on its members then it cannot admit all carrenters, but only certain carpenters, and the organ-ization will become crippled and power-less to light its immediate economic teason why a carpenter should not rise to the realization of the fact that the immediate economic battles within his trade are ineffective to remove all the social evils under which he is suffering and why he should not recognize the necessity of concerted working. class action in the political arena, which is, after all, but a reflection of the great economic class struggle. True, the curpenter may and often does realize the fact. But he does so, not as a carpenter, but as a working-man, a member of the working class as a whole. And so do some shoemakers, and so do some miners, and crafts; and as soon as they do that, they cease to act in this particular as members of their respective trades, but unite as a general workingmen's party for the purposes of advancing the general interests of labor which.

This attempt to combine the acnomic and political struggles of labor in one organization was the distinguishing feature of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance, and the Alliance

This is the origin of all Socialist parties, and this is the great point which distinguishes them from trade unions. Both organizations are based on the analysis moved by economic motives; but one moves coneciously, while the question-why do you trust the trade unions with the economic struggle of the workingmen, and why do you not want to trust them with the political struggle?

conscious workingmen, every use of whom has joined the party with a full recognition of the fact that the interrecognition of the fact that the interposed to those of the class of exploi-ters. One or scores of them may go wrong, but the party as a whole is and there is not a single instance of and there is not a single instance on record where a Socialist party as a whole was captured by capitalist politicians. But a trade-union laber party consists of elements not sorted according to their political-creed or degree of intelligence, but according to their chance occupations. In times of strong social agitation the majority of them may hold quite radical views; when the agitation is allayed they may return to their old unreasoning tradithe agliation is allayed they may re-turn to their old unreasoning tradi-tions. A union may send to-day a So-cialist delegate to the union labor con-vention, and the next day, the major-ity having changed, it may send a Democratic or Republican delegate. The political complexition of such a body is always subject to change, and that is why all "union labor" parties have hereinforce pencefully ended their.

But the immediate interests of the working class, once it moves as a class, will conduct if to Socialism, argues Comrade Harriman. This is somewhat more than ecanomic determinism; this is fatalism. For if we should rely on the economic forces to teach the on the economic forces to teach the working class Socialism, we might as well give up all propagands of Socialism as useless. As a matter of fact, however, the economic conditions make our propagands possible, but intelligent human agencies are required to do the work and must do it in an do the work, and must do it in an organised, and intelligent

To sum up: Trade unions are organigations of trades for trade purposes; that is what they derive their name from. At times of great labor agintion such unions may temporarily dis-regard the primary object of their cre-ation and may inaugurate a political working- class movement. But that can only happen where there is no or-ganized political working-class morement of any significance in the field Where there is a party representing support the old one. (The excitement of the coal strike last fall did not re-sult in the formation of a new party, but served to swell the vote of our party.) In the present state of our movement it is, therefore, not at all likely that the Union Labor party will develop any appreciable strength, and if it should it would tend to create confusion in the ranks of the labor movement, and it would be our duty to combat rather than encourage its growth. After years of persistent work and patient drudgery, after maintain-ing its political integrity throughout its hardest struggles, our party has for the first time in its existence, attained a position of some significance in the political field of this country. Shall we now, when success sems to becken us, forsake the position for a phantom movement, untried and untested? Surely it would be a poor way of per-forming our self-imposed task in the labor movement.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

However, as a result of this experi ence we submit that while the soli-darity of the labor movement so desirable in a strike requires us to greatly lessen if not entirely refrain from political activities in the strike district, it on the contrary, constitutes good cause and reason for pushing propaganda and organization elsewhere with renewed vigor,

.The American Labor Union.

Labor Union and the American Fed-Denver, from May 26 to June 7, inclu are well known to your committee and we rejoiced in common with all comrades throughout the country, over the addition to the roster of labor or ganizations that endorsed the International Socialist program. Our pleasure, however, was not unmixed with mis-giving when we learned that the American Labor Union had determined to remain separate from and independent of the established trade union move-ment, and actually proposed to enter actively into competition with it on a tive concern, when a few weeks after the A. I. U. convention we received a letter dated June 20 from the head-quarters of said organization at Butte, Montana, and signed by Clarence Smith, its secretary-treasurer, contain-ing the following: 1. A copy of the resolution adopted member of the Executive Board of the A. L. U., informing us that he was about to start out to organize unions of the A. L. U., and requesting a commis-sion as organizer for the Socialist Party, and such financial aid as we could afford. We call the attention of your committee to the significance of this letter and the consequences involved to the Socialist movement by the possibility of our acquiescence in Comrade Ott's request.

Since the outbreak of he

We fore-saw these developments, being warned in advance of their coming, by the access attending the launching of the American Labor Union. The strong invective and violent philipple with which the A. F. of L. was assailed on that occassion by comrades very protal-nent in the Socialist movement, was accepted by many, especially in th West, as committing the Socialist Party to the support of the A. L. U. Regardless of this, the question be-fore as involved in the request of Comrade Oft, was what assurance we had should we authorize an organizer of the A. We also sent out a letter of inquiry to all of the state secretaries similar one sent out a year ago, just prior to the meeting of your committee, re-questing information about the general standing of the party in the re-spective states, and we included, mong others, questions touching the existence of Union Labor parties.

We have received replies from alx-teen states, not including California, and in none of these, with the possible exception of Montana, are there any Union Labor Parties identical in any vital respect to those in San Francisco and Los Angeles. In Connecti cut there are economic leagues oper-ating in eleven or twelve cities, but these can in no sense be regarded as bona fide labor parties. The essential difference that we find between them and the California movements is comprised in the maner of formation, class membership and democratic conduct, in the case of Los Angeles and San Francisco the political parties were purely a reflex of the trade union movement and directly formed by it-movements from within and not from without the trade unions.

in Montana, there was a Union Labor Party in Deer Lodge County, which succeeded in electing commundes to the legislature. Immediately after election it changed its name to Social ist Party and became an integral part of the Socialist Party of Montana.

It is not our intention here to offer any argument on this question, but we beg leave to suggest that the problem as it presents itself involves the fol-lowing vital questions for our investi-

Bebel, the Socialist leader in the Belchstag, recently made a sensation by his reply to the Kaiser's speeches, aithough it was necessary for him to speak very guardedly. Foreign press dispatches give the following partial report of Bebel's speech:

"Herr Bebel, as is often the case,

been addressed in words of such brutal frankness. Herr Bebel prefaced his re-

During the last few months the Ger- | tional Economic League. The "Voi man Socialists have so harrassed and embarrassed the government as to enrage the Kaiser and bring conster-nation and dismay to the ruling class.

In his determination to maintain great military establishment the Ger-Emperor has been seeking to greatly increase the tariff tax on food products. As this burden would fail most heavily on the working class, the Socialists used every possible means to secure the defeat of the law. So successful were their tactics that the gov ental parties were compelled to gag-rule in order to force the bill through. This violation of parliament ary law and constitutional right by the agrarians and clericals was no flaon in conservative circles. The recent proceedings in the German Reichstag show once again that the capitalist class which poses as the defender of 'law and order' will stop at no methods, however illegal, to attain its ends.

As a reward for forcing the tariff law through, the Emperor offered Chancellor Von Bülow the title of The title was declined, Von Billow probably realizing that the title of Prince, given to Hismarck for its so much greater, would when awarded for such a shameful and petty suc

The Krupp Affair.

One of the greatest heneficiaries of the military policy and the strongest supporters of imperial despotism was Herr Krupp, the head of the great armor and ordnance firm. The Berlin "Vorwnerts," the great Socialist daily. published an exposure, that Krupp was practising the fuost revolting "unnat-ural vices" at his winter residence on the island of Caprl.

The Emperor saw as oportunity in this fact to turn public sentiment against the Socialists, and attended the funeral and made a most violent attack upon the Socialist movement, defending Krupp's character, sulogis-ing him as a public benefactor and friend of the workingman, and chi ing the Socialists with his death. Th enpitalist press of America, which joined the Emperor in his laudation of Krupp and rebuke of the "wicked Soinlists," in almost every case failed to ention the real nature of the Krupp In answer to the Emperor's culogy of Krupp's "generosity" and "benevolence," "Vorwaerts" showed that the Krupp system of insurance, pensions, etc., for employees, was sim-ply a shrewd method of reducing increasing exploitation, and de wages, increasing exponention, and de-stroying the last vestige of personal illberty. It has since become known that the Emperor was considering a re-quest of Krupp's wife that he be de-prived of legal rights and placed under a guardian on account of his habita, and that physicians were sent to examine that physicians were sent to examine into his sanity just before he died. It in supposed that he committed suicide.

The libel suit against the "Vor-The Hoet suit against the "vor-waerts" was dropped. The Krupp af-fair has again exposed the kypocrisy of the Emperor and the degeneracy of the ruling class. Before the abandonment of the prosecution the secret po-lice tried to bribe one of the employees of the "Vorwaerts" to tell the secrets of the Socialist organ; the money was accepted and the fact then published in "Vorwaerts" with an announcement that the money would be refunded to cratic paper or Social Democratic the police if called for.

FOR SUFFRAGE IN SWEDEN.

New York Executive Committee for Promoting General Suffrage in Sweden Tells of Past Efforts and Present Status of the Movement-Social Democratic Party Against Forces of Reaction.

An interesting statement and appeal has been issued by the New York Executive Committee for Promoting ieneral Suffrage in Sweden. committee consists of M. Ponedel, Treasurer, 232 E. Eighty-eighth street, New York; A. Skanberg, Secretary, 83 Hunter avenue, Long Island City; E. Nordman, 301 W. 148th street, New York: G. Sjöholm, 321 E. Ninth street New York; and C. J. Miller, 85 Duffield street, Brooklyn. We print the statement in full:

"Fellow Workingmen and Comrades: "To most of you it is no doubt well known that the people's struggle for an extension of the suffrage in Sweden las from the beginning met with the bitterest opposition on the part of the privileged classes, an opposition which has only grown more obstinate and brazen as the revolt against the old system has grown in might and the cry for justice has rung out more clear and loud and determined.

Petitions Had No Effect.

"For several decades this just demand of the people took the more modest form of pleading and petitioning through such press organs as arose in the cause and through the very few real representatives of the common people in the Riksdag (parliament), who in a few districts were elected in spite of the absurd existing system of voting. In 1895 the popular demand for suffrage reform culminated in an organized effort and the holding of a and mass petitions to the Crown were decided upon, and later these were duly presented, but all in vain,

"The Social Democratic Party, the organised workingmen's party of Sweden, then saw and concluded that something else than petitioning must be resorted to, and discussed plans of a general strike of all the organised workers and their sympathisers, as a means of gaining a-bearing and break-ing the barriers raised against the igpored non-voters and their demand for political justice.

"The old so-called 'Liberal party," which had posed as champion of the suffrage movement, was too mild or timid to favor such radical measures as a general strice, and from that time on the Social Democratic Party has been recognized as the party which is to carry the cause of universal suffrage to victory in Sweden.

"It became known at the opening of the Riksdag in January of last year that the King and Cabinet were pre-paring a bill, to be presented to the Riksdag towards the close of that year's sessions, proposing a constitu-tional amendment about the suffrage; and it also became known that the bill was a mere sham and that the 'reform' the Crown proposed was almost worse

This aroused the people generally and the working class especially, and they decided to be up and doing some-thing—anything—to kill that bill and at the same time strike the stubborn conservative opposition a blow that would be felt. The workers of the land decided to take the suffrage ques-tion into their own hands; and so they did. When the bill was to be finally passed upon in the Riksdag in April of last year, the organized workingmen pause in their work, held opposition meetings, and otherwise made demon-strations denunciatory of the bill. In Stockholm and at other places the authorities, trying to stille these demonstrations, ordered the police to scatter the crowds, and this was done in such a fashion that the Twentieth n the struggle for general suffrage in

"Neither the more peaceful nor the bloody parts of that struggle need be told here in detail. It is sufficient to say that the privileged classes in Sweden have proven from the beginning of the struggle to the present moment that they are not going to give way to the demand for suffrage vent it. And the workingmen are just as determined to wring the power from their oppressors by the means at the workingmen's disposal. The three days' 'strike' last spring abowed what might be accomplished with tweapon if there is the proper fu and preparation behind it. Those who oppose general suffrage made the same observation and are making prepara-tions accordingly. Thus it is made plain that the workers must make their preparations.

"Nothing will be done in the matter on either side during the present Riks-dag. The final struggle will be during the Rikedag of 1904. The adheren to press arresistibly on for their full right and nothing less.
"It is not necessary to dwell here upon the details of what the Socialists in Sweden are going to do and what the preparations are. It is sufficient for us now to state, that the Executive Committee of the Social Democratic Party in Sweden has sent an appeal to be forwarded to the workingmen of this country and such others as may

IS THE PUBLIC TO BLAME FOR BAD TRANSIT SERVICE?

The newspapers report that the ele- | parties have got just what they would vated railway employees of New York City are organizing: The "Times" adds that "the employees say they have grievances, but refuse to state what they are." This is delightful. Only a week before, the "Times" told us that the ticket-choppers were working twelve hours a day for $1.47, and that many of them are being "promoted" to be trainmen without any increase of wages. Perhaps the "Times" does not consider such a condition as that of a legitimate grievance.

The passengers on the elevated roads submit to be hustled, herded, jammed, and smothered, like a lot of sheep, for the glory and profit of the Goulds. They complain sometimes, of course; so do sheep bleat pitifully, sometimes; that is all the good it does them. Perhaps if the employees pluck up spirit to organize and demand better treatment the "dear public" may wake up to a realization that it too has wrongs and power to redress them.

The report of the Manhattan Rell. way Company for the last year shows a reduction of operating expenses and a big increase in gross receipts. The Goulds and their partners may well be satisfied. Equally satisfactory is the showing of the Whitney-Brady-Widener-Rockefeller Metropolitan and Union companies, controlling the surface lines. And equally outrageous is the treatment of employees and of passengers by these companies. And now Governor Odell's bl-partizan State Railroad Commission adds insult to injury by saving that the responsibility for these abuses rests upon the city and not upon the companies. Because the city government, which has given away franchises and street privileges of almost incalculable value for a mere fraction of what they are worth and with virtually no conditions attached for the protection of the public and which has allowed the transit companies to dodge the greater part of their taxes-because the city government has not given these companies gratis absolute ly everything they asked, the Railroad Commission says the city governmen has obstructed the improvement of the service. Messrs. Greatsinger, Vreeland, and the rest of them, it seems, have been yearning to lay hands of blessing upon us, for lo these many years, but a stiff-necked and perverse generation refused to be blessed.

And yes, in another sense, it is true that the people of New York-or, at least, the voters of New York-are responsible, that they have themselves to thank for the injury and the insult They have persisted in believing them selves incompetent to manage their own affairs, in believing that it is necessary to depend on the "enter prise" of certain bondholders and stockholders, that without the aid of these capitalists street railways capot be built or operated or any other industry carried on. Both old parties have held to this view, in theory most of the time and in practice always, and of the time and in practice always, and do not try, you will be to be those who have supported the two old

Only the Socialists have really & right to complain. We do complain, as much of the dull or timid southy of our fellow citizens as of the capitalists greed. The Social Democratic Party. applying its fundamental principles to this question of rapid transit, has consistently and persistently declared that the elevated, surface, and underground railways and the ferries ought to be owned by the city; that they ought to be operated by the city, not for profit, but for the public service; that the millions of dollars which now go annually-nay, monthly-into the pockets of non-producing bondholders and stockholders should be used to extend and improve the service and to increase the pay and reduce the working hours of the employees.

This program is not to the taste of Mr. Belmont, Mr. Whitney, Mr. Crimmins. Mr. Hill, or the other eminent gentlemen who dominate the Democratic party in this city and state Neither does it appeal to such influential citizens as Senators Depew and Platt, Governor Odeil, and Mayor Law on the Republican side. These mea believe in private enterprise and individual responsibility-the responsibility of the individual workingman to create private profits for the enterprising capitalist. They are moved by an intelligible self-interest and classinterest and the theories of both their parties consistently support them.

The question is, Why should not the mass of workingmen act with equal intelligence and consistency for their own self-interest and class-interest against these eminent gentlemen? This question is worth considering.

The next time you, as a passes nd an employee, feel inclined to awour, at the street-railway companies, just stop and think calmly about this mas-

Consider whether the program of the Social Democratic Party is not favorable to your interests and the programs of the two old parties favorable to the interests of your expiditers.

Consider that you have a vote to cast next November, just as weighty as George Gould's vote, or William C. Whitney's or P. A. B. Widener's or John D. Rockefeller's, Consider thak these men are going to vote against public ownership, against the Social Democratic Party. Make up your mind that you will vote against them, for the Social Democratic Party.

Consider, also, that you are one of many; that you have a brain and a tongue; that you can help to educate and organize the exploited many against the ruling few. Consider that you have just about eight months in which to use your influence. Make up your mind to lose no time. Talk Seclalism to your neighbors. Distribute persons in New York, known to the Executive Committee in Stockholm, and they in turn left the matter in the hands of an assemblage of Socialists in public meeting on June 14, 1902, which meeting was mentioned at the time in The Worker. This meeting took the matter in hand and the Ex done sundry work on the matter and hereby comes before the readers of The Worker with the appeal above re-

It may be mentioned here that the Committee, thinking that the Swedish paper 'Arbetaren' (S. L. P. organ) ought to be the proper medium to be used in this matter, has asked it to lend a hand. But, owing to the incurable obstinacy of its editor, nothing of any real benefit is to be expected from that quarter. "The Executive Committee in New York for collecting a fund for the suf-frage cause in Sweden is now sending out to a number of prominent comrades some printed matter concerning that work. The Committee may turn mostly to Swedish-born comrades when sending this mail-matter and when establishing sub-committees, but of course this in no way means that all the helpers in this work must be Swedes, much less that we expect aid from Scandinavians only. We are in-ternationals and when we see that we can, by a little financial aid, strike a blow at oppression anywhere, and thereby help millions of our comrades to take a great-step towards the attainment of justice and freedom, we feel it our duty to do so.

Complaints against the business or editorial management of The Worker may be addressed to the Board of Directors, S. C. P. A., 184 William street, New York City.

Our readers will please take notice that all moneys for the Daily Globe Fair should be addressed to Wm. Butother, Secretary, 64 East Fourth street, New York, and not to this office.

The letterheads of the Connecticut State Committee bear a suggestive adaptation of scripture: "A prompt re ply turneth away wrath." Doubtless this is intended as a gentle hint to promastinating correspondents; but we find more in it than that. A large share of the trouble of this world re suits from our failure to respond mpthy to the changing demands of the time in which we live. We cauno get rid of evils by ignoring them Weeds thrive through the husbandman's neglect, but useful plants live only by his vigilant cars. One moral of this in: If you think Socialism is the cure for the social ille we now antfer, vote for it the next chance you have: you may not get another. An other moral, fitting this between-cam paign season is: If you wish Socialism come quickly, don't wait till just before Election Day, but begin to work

The Socialist Party has its internal disputes, like the aid parties. But one difference is that our disputes are over questions of principle, while those of the old parties are aquabbles over the Mistribution of matrouage and infi Another difference, resulting from this, in that we are never afraid to discuss our disagreements openly, while the old parties try to conceal theirs. Another difference is that we settle our Internal questions, a pr open discussion, by an appeal to the vote of the rank and file, while old-party disputes are settled by secret conferences endone in deals and combines among the leaders. Because the Socialist Party applies the principles of democracy management of its own party milities, it has nothing to fear from occasional internal differences.

NO LOG-ROLLING POR US.

The "Appeal to Reason"-or, t speak more strictly, A. W. Ricker, reporting the National Committee meet ing for the "Appeal"-says:

"After the Committee on Resolution had reported as above and the report was unanimously adopted, the next real struggle in the Committee was be-A National Secretary must now be chosen to serve for a year. For this office the contest, which was begun by preliminary skirmishes before the convention assembled, finally narrowe n to W. G. Critchiow of Ohio and Wm. Mailly of Massachusetta. In the earlier hours of the session, Work of Erwa had been an active candidate, and had be been an active candidate for the position, he undoubtedly could have received the support of the Meeters men, and several of the Bastern dislegates. The West, however, wished to generous with the East, and white countdevable distract of West-part. while considerable distrust of Western Socialists was manifested on the perf Courader Chren of Hassachuset, ad Hillquit of New York, and while be West by unitive could be quarters, yet they manifested no pur-pose to exert their power, and on the final vote, Berlyn of Illinois and Chris-tiansen of Omsha voted for Mailly, thus electing him. When the referenpolemnly reminded of this most generous act on the part of the Western comrades. I think I may say that the election of Mailly is satisfactory to the Socialists in every state and territory in the Union. His fitness is unquesin the Union.

The Worker, believing it can speak from a pretty full-and accurate knowledge of the Socialists of the East, now colemniy" replies to the "Appeal"or to Comrade Ricker, as the case may be-in these terms:

We do not consider the election of Comrade Mailly as a favor to the East and a "most generous act on the part of the Western comrades." We consider it an act of wisdom on the part of the Committeemen, Eastern or Western, who voted for him heramwe consider him a man well fitted for the position-and a man above all see tional feeling and devoted only to the interests of the party at large.

If the "Appeal"-or Comrade Ricker. as the case may be-is sincere in its (or his) judgment of Courade Mailly as expressed in the sentence quoted, we do not see how it (or he) can consider Comrade Mailly's election as a concession to the East, which the East ought to be willing to pay for with me other concession.

We said two weeks ago in regard to the evasion of the provisions of Article VII, by the majority of the National Committee: "We are not used to such politics in the Socialist Party, and we do not like the innovation." We repeat that comment on the "solemn" proposition made by the "Appeal"-or Comrade Ricker. We know what "logrolling" is in the old parties. We are not used to it in the Socialist Party, and we do not like the suggestion that n be introduced. We do not like the idea of settling questions of party organization by dickers between differ ant sections of the country.

If any Western or Eastern Commitcompa did nat consider Comrade Mailly the best man for National Secretary, he would have violated his duty to the party in voting for him. If—as we believe-the Western and Rastern Committeemen who voted for him did consider him the best man for the place, they did only their duty to the party in so voting. There is no question of generosity or of gratitude here. There is no room, in such a matter, for sectional or personal generosity. Comrade Mailly would be the last to feet grateful to a National Committeemen who voted for him on such grounds.

Equally in the matter of headqua ters, there is no legitimate piace for sectional ambition or generosity or gratitude. If, as the "Appeal"-or Comrade Ricker, as the case may be implies, fourteen Committeemen voted for Omaha with the idea of balancing that place against Comrade Mailly's personality, then fourteen Committee men were in so far false to their duty We are leth to believe that they did so consider the matter. We would rather suppose that each of them considered Omaha the best place for as tional headquarters, regardless of any question of generosity or gratitude. We dissent from their judgment, without impugning their motives, and appeal to the rank and file.

In so appealing, we "selemnly" disavow any recognition of "Western generosity" and call on the rank and file to do likewise. If any comrade, Eastern or Western, thinks Omnha the heat place it is his duty to vote for Omalia; if he thinks Chicago a better piace, it is his duty to vote for Chicago against Omaha. Which choice of headquarters will be best for the whole party? is the sole question every comrade has a right to sek, Ju man is best for National Secretary? was the sole question any Committeeman at St. Louis had a right to consider. The Worker will loyally abide by the party's decisions and will never factiously oppose or seek to hamper the national 'organization, wherever located. But The Worker will not keen silence when the referendum provisions of the party constitution are vielated; it will not help to foster an East ern faction and a Western faction within the party; and it will not fail to protest when log-rolling between such factions is "solemnly" proposes as a canon of Socialist statesmanship.

An included reader of The Workerone whom we know to be a devoted Socialist of several years' standing, but who is the only known Socialist in his fown in a state where we have as yet no organization-writes us in a way that indicates a serious misapprehen sion. He says: "I have been working for Socialism for fifteen years. But I am not a mechanic and cannot belong to a trade anion. Therefore I am excluded from membership in the party and from a rote in its councils. What is to be done with such a follow as I?"

We have replied to this ource nt personally. But lest there be others laboring under the name miser ion, we reply size in these cal

We would call attention to the more ment initiated by Local Toledo, as reported in another column, for the pay ment of the dabts of the national organization of our party.

As shown in the National Secretary's report, printed in The Worker of Feb. 8, the total gross and net liabilities of the national organization at the close of the Unity Convention of 1901 and on Jan. 1, 1908, were as follows:

1901. 1903. Gross liabilities....$1,970.80 $1,835.62 Amets 587.65 1,307.08

Net liabilities ... $1,389.15 $528.54 As the present assets, however, incinde a considerable amount of "hills collectible," not all of which are, at least, promptly collectible, as well as the value of the office equipment, it is evident that the fund here opened, in order to serve its purpose of clearing away debts and disembarrassing the national organization, so that it can carry on its work energetically without being compelled to draw upon current revenue for the payment of old debts, should amount—and that as quickly as possible-to at least $1,200.

.The Worker believes that this amount can readily be collected and urges organizations and individual comrades and aympathizers to con-

Just as strongly would The Worker prese that all state committees meet their present and future obligations to the national organization promptly and cheerfully, so that the clearance of debts which we now propose may be a clearance for good and all.

The Steel Trust capitalists are de nouncing the organized steel workers just now for "limiting production." In a year or two more, when the hard times come, and myriads of workingmen are tramping in march of employ ment, these same capitalists will answer their complaints with the one word, "Overproduction." Under capimilians, the worker is between the devil and the deep sex. He must either produce too much or not produce enough, either work too hard or not be allowed to work at all. The reason is that, with the means of production held so private property and the conteol of industry lodged in private hands, private profit is the only motive to production and industry is pushed forward or checked without regard to the people's needs.

LYNCHING AS A CURE FOR ETRIKEN.

The New York "Times" of February 18 gives a very frank exposition of the capitalist ideal of "law and order." That we may not be suspected of coloring the matter-after the fashion of the "Times" itself, which prints "all the name it sees fit to print"-we quote the article in full:

"The citizens of Shreveport, La., are imitating the excellent example of those of Bioomington, lil. The streetar men and electric light employees lately went on strike, and, as is usual when this class of labor is diseatisfied, eas and violence were at oner resorted to. The conditions being in-tolerable, a mass meeting was held, at which the Grand Jury was called up n tudier all law-breakers, and the City Judge, who had manifested a disposition to dismiss complaints should have had more attention, was requested to resign. Notice was also served upon those known to have been dentified with acts disturbing the pub lic peace to leave town with all convenient dispatch. Three measures not having the desired effect, a second mass meeting was held and a Law and and injurious to the interests he reprevenient dispatch. Three me having the desired effect, er League organised. A large force of volunteer policemen was sworn in, and under its protection the power and light plants resumed operations, and city again enjoyed the advantages of electric lights and a street-car a vice. All disorder was promptly supressed, and at last accounts the town was out and orderly.

"We may well doubt the "Times" sintement as to the lawlessness of the Shreveport strikers. We have known the "Times" to lie before this, and we might semme the officers of instice in Shreveport to be the best judges of the conditions there prevailing. But this is beside the question.

The emential point is that this most respectable of capitalist papers of Democratic paper which supports Re publican candidates a good part of the time-deliberately commends and advines the organization of "vigilance committees" and the bankbment of obnoxious strikers under threat of lynching as a means of maintaining law and order as the "Times" and the owners of street rallways and electric-light niauts concaive R.

There is nothing surprising in this except the frankness with which it is put. But that is surely worthy or noise The davil cannot always coucsel his cloves hoof. The true fawardness of capitalists' respect for "law and order" a phrase which, in their months ans nothing more nor less then the

The Washington dispatches inform as that Secretary of War Boot "has given his endorsement of a project formed by the National Ride Association, which met in New York last week, for the introduction of ride practice in the public achools of the United States. The idea of encouraging rifile practice in schools and colleges by govrnment assistance originated with Secretary Root, who has indicated on several occasions his desire to further as far as possible the training of the youth of the country in rifle marks nanship. He endorsed the plan of organizing rifle clubs, and he is now in. favor of extending the idea to the public schools. As soon as definite plans can be made the intention is to give the project a trial in the schools of Washington".

No doubt a good many humani barians and some Socialists, even, will strongly denounce Root's new scheme. The Worker is rather inclined to welcome it, holding to the idea of our forefathers who wrote the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution. declaring that "the right of the people to keep and hear arms shall not be in fringed," We grant the evil motives of those who are promoting this move-ment, but we are not afraid of the results.

"While the Jamp holds out to burn the vilost sinner may return," District. Attorney Jerome will still have a hance to appear before the Contral Federated Union and "put up or shut up" in the matter of his malignant attacks on the labor movement.

As was to be expected, it has been deckled that the engineer was alone to blame for the Westfield railway disuter. The entiwey officials, directors, and steckholders are satisfied; the ongineer is dead, so he cannot protest. Now things will go on as before until nother dissuter results from the same causes—the economy policy of the rallway companies, conducting increased traffic with antiquated equipment and an inadequate working force. So it will be until the people who are not enpitalists, but who work to produce the capitalists' wealth, take the public cowers into their own liands.

It is worthy of note that of the six men in the present New York Legislature who have been willing to act as agents for the property owners' associntions in introducing bills to deprive the tenement dwellers of all protection from the landlurds' greed, two are Republicans Senator Marshall and Asemblyman Remera-and four are Demograts-Senators Hawkins and Wagner and Assemblymen Dale and Matthews. The two old parties are a unit in serving the expitalists, up to the limit they dare to go. And linwkins is a "labor man".-God save the mark! Such are "labor men" elected on capitalist tickets. Of course, each and every one of these men protests either that his bill is harmless or that he does not support his bill, but introduced it only si a favor to some constituent. It is not true that any of these bills are harmless. They are all imidious attacks on the existing Tenement Horse Law-a law already for too mild and lax; and the attack is all the more dangerous for being indirect. As for the other point: No man of prin ciple in a legislative body will introduce a bill that he considers vicious sents. The man who th ter what his exenses, deserves no confidence in the foture.

Bishop Potter has been taking a hand at demonstrating that the interests of Capital and Labor are identical. The German printers of New York de cided to demand an increase of wages. The empleyers refused it. Bishop Potter was chosen to arbitrate. His decision is that the printers shall get a wage-increase of 7 per cent. and that they shall be required to do 20 ner cent, more work in a day. The empluyers are satisfied. They may this exactly fits their idea of prosperity. The printers, however, take a different view of the matter and may that the Bishop's decision doesn't "go." Oh. these lany and unbrateful workingmen! What is a good Christian to do in the face of such stubborn wickedness.

the various questions acted upon by the National Committee has been made meeting and by his communications li the last two issues of The Worker, it is not necessary to add much to has been said. He showed that th there was entire unanimity in the Na tional Committee on the question of fusion and of the attitude of the party toward trade unions, yet through mos of the session it was clearly divided into a well organised majority and a minority, the former led by Committeeman Mills of Kansas. Several Westera members, he said, comparatively new men in the party, were evidently influenced/ by representations that Carey, Hillquit, and Barnes were "danrous schemers," and this method was ed to hold the majority together. He old how, on the second day, Mills showed the existence of what might justly be called a "machine" as fol-lows: When a vote was to be taken on an appeal which under parliarules, was not debatable, and on his chair and cried, mentary Vote it down, boys!"-and the majority voted it down. Comrade Hillquit gave his reasons for holding that the removal of headquarters before the referendum was taken was unconstitutional and also for considering the seection of Omaha an unwise presented in The Worker of Feb. 8 (klentical with those adopted by Local Toledo as reported above).

He admitted that the majority held enueues and that Mills was im leader, and explained Mills' "Vote it down" speech by saying inexperienced in party affairs did not know always how to vote and needed someone to tell them. He charged that some St. Louis comrades were responsible for changing the name of the party in Missouri to "Working Class Party" during the campaign, alleging that the S. L. P. protent in court had nothing to do with the case; he had received information to this effect in S Louis and this, together with the acts of the Local Quorum, caused him to consider immediate removal ne He strongly condensed the conduct of the minority and especially that of Hillquit who, immediately on returning to New York, started to bellion," He added tion to himself in Hudson County, N. OUR BENEVOLENT FEUDALISM By W. J. Chent. New York. Th Macmilian Company, 1902. Cloth, 202 pages. Price, $1.25.

This book is expanded-very greatly expanded—from an article similar eptitled which appeared in the "lad pendent" of "April, 1902, and which was shortly afterward issued as a pamphlet by the Collectivist Society The article was very widely noticed a the time, being given, as it seemed to us, much more attention than it really merited. The idea of comparing the rule of the capitalist class in present day society to that of the nobles of medieval Europe was feudal means original with Mr. Gheat. uppoticed Socialist writers had draw drawn it more accurately than he Because of the extravagance of the up the present book, of which it was the germ, with a certain degree of prejudice. As we read, however, this feeling disappeared, and we gladly rec-ognize in Mr. Ghent's book a valuable contribution to the criticism of capithist society. What gives the book its value is not the main thesis—which is not only not original, but not tenable in the form it is here givenbut the great mass of illustrative fact which the author has marshalled to support the thesis and which he has presented in a most lively and effective

We are sumewhat at a loss just how to regard the book, to know just how far the author expects or desires to be taken seriously. The tone of the open ing chapter, "Utopies and Other Forecasts," and of the closing one, "Transi tion and Futfilment" (which latte formed a considerable part of the "In dependent" a licle), would indicate that he takes himself very seriously indeed. But as we read the interven ing pages we get the idea that Mr Ghent is something of a joker, that he does not at all believe in the perma nence of the "benevolent feudalism," that he will heartly agree in the criticlam which we have to make upon his

This thesis is: That under the form of civit and political liberty and equality, and even by means of the use of those forms, there has grows up a ruling class, whose pawer is based in its ownership of the means of production, which is able to domiits various phases as completely and more calectively that have the formally acknowledged ruling classes of the past; that this class is already very clearly conscious of its position and its interests and is daily becoming more so; that it is, and in a still greater degree will be, able so to control its own conduct and so to play upon the minds of the ruled as to keep the latter in a state of con-tented servitude, substituting well calculated benevelonce for the methods of "blood and fron" by which the rulers of the past have sought to main-tain their power; and that the new class rule will thus neutraline or divert the forces of resistance which have proven fatal to earlier ruling classes, so that industrial feudalisa will survive, at least for a very lour time, as a stable system of society

Most of the evidence which he addrees in the other seven chapters (omitting the first and last)—"Combi-nation and Conlescence," "Our Magmates," "Our Farmers and Wage-Earners." Our Makers of Law," "Our Interpreters of Law," "Our Moulders of Opinion," and "General Social ("hanges"-serves to support only the first part of the thesis, to show that the capitalist class does now actually control society through, rather than is consolidated and organized, and to i Instrate the many indirect methods by which our lords of industry carry out their will. In all this, of course, we Socialists have been proclaiming the truth for many years and have called attention to most if not all of the illustrative facts be uses, and if Mr. Ghent makes too scanty acknowledgment of the fact, we can forgive him all that for the service he has done in bringing the whole argum systematically together in most attractive and convincing form.

We part company with Mr. Ghent when he tells us that this system of class rule is to be permanent. He rather assumes this than tries to prove R. except in a superficial and incidental way, and we are talf inclined to think that he does not himself be-lieve in the truth of the assumption, but thrown it out as a sort of challenge to stimulate others to fight the more igorously against class rule

We do not doubt that Mr. Ghent has well formulated the ideal more or lass clearly held by many of the more inreligent of the capitalists and their hired thinkers. The capitalists know know that their right to rule is being questioned or denied, that the very basis of their power is being attacked. They would like to continue to rule and to hand down their power undiministed to their children's children. Most of them, too, quite sincerely be-lieve in their right to rule, believe that they are the numerior once selected by Providence or Nature or Fate to govern the mass of inferior men; it is as pattern! for a Vanderbill or a Rockey follor to believe this as for a Withein er a Nicholas; s man "born in th purple" is not likely to question his fitness to wear it. The more cautious and thoughtful capitalists—and sup-cially their hired thinkers, of whom we have spoken, who see more of the real world than do their mastem-realise the discontent of the raied and the reasons for it and their intent power to destroy the masters' power. Their ideas, then their wildly usepin dream, as we believe-is to govern well, to rule firmly but kindly. soothe the workers' discontant with "brend and "plays," hospitals and libraries, to fool them with schemes of arbitration and profit-sharing and pen-sions, to divide and disorganize them by holding out false hopes of individual success, by all means to keep them contented, rather than to risk them contented, rather than to risk increasing their discontent by roughly stifling its expressions.

That this is the capitalists' ideal, so far as they have a common ideal, we believe. That it is a restizable ideal. alf history deales—and current history most emphatically of all.

No ruling class has ever yet been wise enough to restrain its own arro-gance, consistently to follow a policy of moderation, or even to gauge the feelings of their subjects well enough to make their concessions at the right time and in the right manner to have the desired conciliatory effect. The same training and environment which convinces the rulers of their right to rule makes them impatient of any questioning of that right and prope to punish-or, even worse, violently to threaten with aunialment - any insulordination or presumption in the com-mon herd. One ill-timed reprisal or ill-considered threat by one of the rul ing class may destroy the effect of the moderation and paternal benevolence practised through long months or cars by all his fellow patricians. If of old Europe or of the slaveholders of our old South could not restrain indiout in violent words or acts disastrous to their class luterest, far less can this expected of a class the very breath mad. And the very benefactions and concessions of the capitalists, being dictated rather by individual caprice than by collective wisdom and in that gnorance of actual conditions which always handicaps a ruting class, are likely to be made in such a manner as to examerate or to calighten rathe than to conciliate or to decrive the workers or at such a time as clearly to betray the conscious weakness ate fear of the rulers and so to encourage the spirit of revolt.

If our modern ruling class is no hersistently to follow a policy of a easterint and newdent moderation, the ruled class of to-day—especially in its typical form of the industrial prolariat-is, for many resmous, better able to understand its own subjection more apt persistently to neek ameliors tion and even emancipation from class rule, and infinitely more canable of concerted action than any ruled class of the past. It is not necessary to dwell upon this point. To institute a conditions of our working class and those of the serfs of old Europe or ren the artisans of the medieval towns is, for one who knows history, to ognize at once the vastly greater agressive stimulus of desire and the vantly greater power of organization in the exploited tollars of to-day. We see what we make for others, we se what we lack, we see what we might have, we begin to see how we can get it. The more we get, whether of material comforts or of power and freedom, the more we desire. Once we have get so far, whether our masters seek to engage our affections by patronizing kindness or to intimidate us by bruial force, the one course serves only to increase our discontent, the other only to arouse our indiguant res

we beserve that air, other tream the signs of the thues all wrong when he does not see in current events the proof of these principles. Carneste, who sincerely feels his responsibility, no doubt, as a "trustee of other men's fortunes," can never build enough liraries to wine out the memory of been strengthened by his estentations giving; he is more widely and severely idenised to-day than he was nin years ago; the one concession that might have made friends for him among the workers—the concession of a shorter workday in his mills—he could not have the sense to make. Morgan may catablish a free maternity bospital; it serves chiefly to remind us that one out of every len of us is born in paupermun; and better strikers, "The damned fools don't know what is good for them." The Standard Oil King may cated in a harder school, bitterly call to mind his son's Sunday-school talk on the American Beauty, The rail-way men of the Sowthern Pacific and the employees of the Steel Trust have not been deceived by the pension and profit-showing scenies recently an-nounced; they have no scriples about "looking a gift herse in the mouth."
We remember that Vanderbilt said,
"The people be danned," and we feel that we may do our nort at damning when we get ready. The good advice of a churchful of hishops could not put a bridle on Baer's longue; and that ne unfortunate sentence on the divine right of capitalists has more herm to the capitalist cause than a score of philanthropists and a multitude of subsidized editors and parsons can undo.

No, the industrial foundation is not As fast as possible-and many of its beneficiaries keenly feet this -it is developing the forces that are to destroy it. Democracy is not dead; it is not asleep; if it is working more quietly, so it is working more surely than ever before. It will come cominto its own in the fullness of time, when the way shall have been propared for it by its enemies.

Perhaps the importance of Mr. Ghent's book hardly merits such extended comment, except as it furnishes us a convenient text for a timely ser mon. Nevertheless, we comment the book as a most readable and surgre-tive one, which may well have a place in every Socialist reading-room. A CONVECTION.

"Resolved, That Local Toledo appropriate $10 to apply on payment of the debts of the National Committee as-sumed at the Unity Convention, and that the Organizer forward the same to The Worker, with an appeal to it and other Socialist papers to open and other Socialist papers to open funds through their columns for the purpose of paying the long standing debts of the National Committee in the shortest possible time, organizations and individuals being asked to contribute, and the money received to be forwarded to National Secretary Mallly."

Knowing what has been done by the party press in the past, Local Toledo hopes that by its aid the debts will soon be wiped out and a real scandal removed from the party's reputation.

The Worker acknowledges the re-celpt of $10 from Local Toledo and consents to act as an agent in receiv ing funds for this purpose and transmitting them to the National Secretary. It is best to send money by check or draft or hetter, by postoffice or express money order. Letters en-closing contributions should be ad-dressed to The Worker with an enclosed statement showing the purpos for which they are intended. Receipts

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

We are at last able to present a com plete table, from official sources, show ing the vote of the Socialist Party in 1902 as compared with that of 1900, by states. In Arisons, Idaho, and Wyo-ming we entered the political field for the first time in 1902. In the eight states marked with a star we had no chance to test our strength in 1902. and the vote cast for our mational ticket in 1900 is therefore carried for-ward for the latter year. In several cases, where the vote for different can didntes of the Socialist Party varied largely, we have taken the lower figure, as indicating the solid vote. The figuras given are, therefore, extremely

The official returns for the election of November last in New Jersey show a good gain for the Socialist Party. It is the vote for Assemblymen that counts for official standing and we therefore take it so a basis for esti-mating our strength. There was no general election in the state last November. The Socialist Party had candidates for the Assembly in ten-counties—Bergen, Camden, Cumber-land, Essex, Hudson, Mercer, Ocean, Passaic, Sussex, and Union. These polled a total of 4,835 vates. The same counties, in 1900, gave us 3,954 votes. The other counties of the state, chiefly agricultural, in which we had caseny agricultural, in which we had no organization and no local candi-dates, gave us, in the general election of two years, ago, 655 votes. Assum-ing no increase in these counties, but simply carrying forward the figures of 1960; we can put our strength in Nevember, 1962, at 5,961 votes, as against need of and the rest of the human mind on laws outside of itself which is at once the beginning of science and of social obedience, as opposed to the unlimited inventions of dreamers, or the impositions of arbitrary powers unexpirited, is that which in our day inappenned, is that which in our day is most characteristic of the man called Socialist. By whatever name we may finally designate our largest conception of this sure orderliness, whether it he evaluation or involution, the recognition of an order outside is the socialistic missual temperament; and this constitutes the small temperament; and this constitutes the greatest of all human guarantees for social obedience,

Bill Ostensibly Aimed at Tabacca Trust Turns Out to Se Really an Attook on Cigar Makers' and Tebacco

"For ways that are dark and for ricks that are vain the bid-party friend of labor is peculiar." So would are paraphrase a famous saying.

The occasion of the remark is a bill low being passed by capitalist "friends of labor" in Congress. Ostenship this now being passed by capitalist "friends of labor" in Congress. Ostenably this bill, of which we have heard a good deal lately, is an anti-trust measure, aimed at the Tobacco Trust and its retail agency, the United Cigar Stores Company. It is publicly alteged to be intended only to prohibit the giving of premium-checks, by which the trust. ducts (tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes) are being so extensively "borned." Incidentally, however—and this feature is not being publicly mentioned—it provides that no pack-age of manufactured smoking or chew-ing tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigar-ettes shall have anything packed in or attached to it or in any way con-nected with it except the manufac-turer's wrapper and labels, the internal resenue stamp, and the manufactured articles—that is, it is carefully so worded as to forbid the use of the labels of the Cigar Makers' Union and the Tobacco Workers' Union, though without openly mentioning them.

If the Tobacco Trust can get these labels outlawed it will be quite willing to drop the premium plan. It will thus kill two birds with one stone—save the expense of premiums and make it impossible for the nurchaser to distinct. sible for the purchaser to distin possible for the purchaser to daths zulsh union-made goods from those manufactured in the worst sweatshops. Every capitalist politician in Con-gress is thus given a beautiful oppor-tunity. If the true purpose of the bill had not been exposed, they could have voted for it, thus winning credit both "trust smashers" and as "friends of tabor," and yet by their real service to the Trust they would have paid for past and future favors. Since the "nigger in the woodpile" has been brought to light, they can take their choice: Pose as "friends of labor" by voting against the bill and thus putting an end to the attack on the Trust, or pose as "trust-smashers" by voting for it and thus incidentally striking a blow at the unions. Either way, the Trust calna: either way, the capitalist pol ticians gain; and either way, the work-ers lose—and so it will be while they continue to depend on capitalist

KINGS COUNTY.

At the regular meeting of the Kings County Committee, held on Feb. 14, the Organizer reported that information was received that a "United Labor and People's Party" was in progress of formation in Jamaica. Comrades Fur-man, Atkinson, and Cooney visited this organization, and there is every prob-ability that it will become a strong local of the Social Democratic Party.

The Organizer also reported that h has been endeavoring to secure Father McGrady as one of the speakers for the May Day demonstration and that he expects to have Comrade Krafft's play performed if Comrade Krafft will consent to take charge of it. The countities appointed to see the Board of Trustees of the Labor Lyceum reported that permission has been granted to place motions throughout the building. A supply of posters has been printed and will be given to the Bill Posters' Union to be posted in conspic-uous places with instructions that they distribute a number every month. As the County Committee intends to send a letter to the enrulled voters it was decided to have Comrade Hanford write such a letter, to be submitted at the next meeting of the County Com-

OF MANY VOICES ONE VOICE.

By Horace Traubel

We are learning the lesson. The lesson is the lesson of unity. The masters have traded on our quarrels. The one solid asset of mastership is time isolation of the slave.

We refuse longer to remain isolated. We have learned to stick together. You can defeat any man who, comes to you alone. But when the single man comes to you one handred and firty thousand strong you have to listen to his appeal.

You make so often said no that no has become the word nearbst within reach when labor presents its pro-gram. But labor is learning not to accept your no as we. It is beginning to see that your no may mean no to you but does not mean no to labor.

You have been spoiled by the effectiveness of your ancient weapon. Your weapon was never really very good. It only seemed good because the opposing weapon was so bad. Now that labor has a weapon with which to meet you, your blade has lost its

You have looked upon labo as com mon. Common labor labor has been called in the blasphemy of social disintegration. And the vulgarity of la-bor has reflected itself upon the laborer. Though, as for that, taborris' the laborer, and always was, God knows! And the laborer himself has rather accepted your estimate of labor. And labor has admired your superio clothing and your superior speech and your overdressed women and the sports of your leisure. And so you have felt yourselves confirmed.

A change has come. Labor is getting stuck on itself. It is beginning to realize its majority. It sees that all the fine things you possess and for which it has admired you are but the creation and property of labor silonated from the common weal. And that conscionsness has lifted labor out of the dirt. It has inspired labor with a con-viction of its right of way.

Labor no longer says: By your leave, Labor now says: By my will, Labor no longer fears your anger, Labor is no longer a single man exposed to a tempest. Labor is an army creating gradually an iron will. That iron will will break your iron will. Because labor lives with the sources of wealth. That makes labor invincible. Labor handles all the earlier laws. Labor arrives first. You come after. Without labor all would be lost. Without you all would be better off. The values are being inexorably shifted. You will

The men on top are beginning to look worried. They are feeling that in the submerged world of labor something is going on. Something that does not mean well far them. They do not know what that something is.

They think that whatever it is it is crivitinal and is to be fought to finish. criminal and is to be fought to a finish. But they know there is some calamity threatened. And they are preparing to meet the dreaded event.

Labor, too, knows there is something n the wind. And inhor itself does not always know what that something is But labor by an instinct of self-preservation is learning the lesson so far overdue. That philosophy in its present formulations may seem inchoate and imperfect. But the ele-ments all exist and they are taking counsel of each other. When the time is ripe they will coalesce with such force and upon such terms as will per-mit no doubt to be entertained of their purpose. The masters may as well be warned in time. Their one last weapon is effete. Labor has closed up the gap. Do you think that labor is striking for favora? Labor is demanding justice. Labor will take nothing as a gift. Keep your gifts. We ask you to render an account. After all you have been a steward. We do not acknowledge you beyond your stewardship. And we call in your short loan. You have got to meet us on the open. Not back of closed doors. Not in a distant town. Not helplessly one by one. You have got to meet us where we choose and when as well as where and when you chose. We come to you no longer begging pardon, hat in hand. We come with a demand, our hats on our heads. The office-boy can no longer dismiss us. We break a way in to the throne. You have got to hear and you have got to be polite to us. We are teaching you manners as

The little dago who cannot speak a word of English and who is known by a number rather than a name is the big American who has the power to command an audience of kings. He sends his idea up to headquarters. and there you have to meet it. We have no apologies to offer for disturbing your peace. You have had-that sort of peace long enough. It is a peace-that is no peace. Peace with-ent honor is the worst war. You have had the aort of peace which has made and the sort of peace which has made all the decisions one way and that one way yours. Now we take you aside and say: That will not de. We are no respecter of properties. The prop-erties must take care of themselves. The meanest men takes precedence of the most formidable and magnificent edifice. ought-to-be, that is faith. Nature, experience, the constitution of the mind, or whatever other name may be given to the thing upon which man rests for his ought-to-bes, has given sanction and assurance that after certain ante cedents certain consequences will fol low: and the mind that unfinchingly looks for this, through the mists of de-lay or interception, is the mind of

I will call it nature's contract with labor, that if a man casts his exertions into the earth at springtime, sowing seed and tending, with the diligence of his brain and band the thing that he has sown, there shall come up out of the hidden resources of the soil, unto his bosom a harvest, and his fearless onlooking to the later months for pay-ment of nature's old, old custom is the faith of labor. And it is this faith of labor which all the other faiths of the world have grown from; it is this faith

The printry distribution of the product is the product of the product faith. It was out of this first doing in the dark, and nature's invariable endorsement of the doer and his work. that the first moral principle sprung. It is upon this first moral principle that Socialism now reasserts mankind's right to faith built upon work, and the credibility of nature as the source of law and consistency; and whatsoever disrupts this relation between labor and its reward is as fundamentally the falsehood as the faith it repudiates is eternally the truth. The faith of labor.

This is the first of the Socialist founds.

Self-extension appears to be the most invariably present effort manifested by humanity in progress.

Look at childhood, and tell me what so satisfactorily covers its restless of forts as this description—"the struggle for self-extension." An effort to be with, to be in, to be of its vast employed.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individ tal worker. To day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership anables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them. Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the reserve and the time to the ever increasing uncertainty of livelibood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle-class is rap-The once powerful middle-clase is rep-idly disappearing in the mill of con-putition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and se-cial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery. and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social little child in one century on a whole system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indis-criminate siaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sauctioned in order .. that .. the capitalists may extend their commercial domin-ion abroad and enhance their suprem-acy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to So-cialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher or der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflets, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public own-ership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political repre-sentatives of the capitalist class.

While we declare that the develop while we declare that the develop-ment of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognise that the time and manner of the transition to Socialize also deof the transition to Secialism also de-pend upon the stage of development reached by the proletarist. We, there-fore, consider it of the utmost import-ance for the Secialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect So-cialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end-As such means we advocate: As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class but a such as the computer of the capitalist class but as property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improve-ment of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

7. The initiative and referendum proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by helr constituents. But in advocating these measures steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-opera tive Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an a tempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public util ties for the purpose of obtaining great-er security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working Socialists Fight to Protect Workingmen's Lives.

Pemperats Join Republicans Against Garoy's Automotic-Goupler Bill and Even Refuse Hell-Call-MacCertney's Public Ownerskip Bill Behated-See slist Agitation in the State.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.-Representative BOSTON, Feb. 22.—Representative Carey's bill for automatic couplers and power-brakes was debated in the House on Monday. This bill was introduced at the request of the different organizations of railway trainmen and was supported by their representatives, as well as by Comrade Carey, in the hearing before the Committee on Railroads, as reported in The Worker two rratic members on this committee. I this because the claim is conmention this because the child is constantly made by them that their bearis are ever bleeding in the interests of working class. Yet these four socrats joined with the Republican members in a manimous against the passage of the bill. report

Representative Carry moved that the bill be substituted for the adverse report and spoke at length in favor of his motion, quoting the statistical re-ports showing the average of deaths of railway employees from accident in the ten years from 1803 to 1903 to range from one in every one hundred and thirty-six employed to one in every one hundred and fifty-six and mber injured to be one in every twelve of the employees. He draw a striking word-picture of the instances of heroism upon the part of this class of workers, and his presentation of the technical work of the railway employees was masterly. He also sho how greater safety would come to the travelling public were the roads equipped as this bill provided.

Democratic Treachery.

The capitalist representatives were led by Quinn, Democrat. They op-posed the bill on the ground that Con-gress alone could regulate this matter. In reply, Carey read from the Interce Commissioners' report where they advised the passage of just such laws by the states. Quinn said: "This work does not belong here; it is someone else's duty." Carey replied:
"Yes, the saine old cry, whenever we have endeavored to carry something for the working class. "Take it somewhere else.' When we went to the city government, they told us to go to the state. We went to the state and they told us to go to Congress. It is a peculiar habit of Speaker Myers to watch the galleries when the Socialist members are speaking, always ready to drop the gavel."

gavel was in the air and Carey turned to the Speaker and smiled, that amile that has confounded his enemies

It looked certain that no considers tion would be given the measure, that the House could hide behind the mational law on such matters, and that the scope of the bill, being so broad, рамнаяе.

The Socialist mambers had a speedy conference with the railway men's representatives who were present, with the result that Representative Mac-Currey asked that the bill be substi-tuted and be laid over until the next day, when they could offer amendment. to make the law apply to all vehicles owned by railroads within the state When the vote was taken, 35 voted is 02 against. asked for a roll-call, 30 being nece sary, but only 27 roted in favor. Ho many more examples of treachery will vote for a roll-call on such a measure and even defends the railroads and attacks measures in the interest of the working class? But if one can estimate the sentiment from expres-sions, our men are looked upon as the true representatives of the working every act of treachery unon the part of ince, and it is all grist coming into the ManCartney's Public Ownership Bill.

In the afternoon, MacCartney's bill came before the House. The commit-tee reporting adversely, Mac Cartney moved to substitute the bill for the committee's report. He spoke at length in support of limitation, stating in the outset that this was not Socialism, but that the street railroad interests in this state were fo-day in the control of two companies, that the So-cialists stood for the overthrow of the entire capitalist, argum and acts of this kind were single modestal and prepared the people for its end. He showed that under public ownership in Chargow wages had risen and bours of labor had decreased, and the public got better and cheaper service than labor had decreased, and the public got better and cheaper service than when their utilities were conducted for private profit. He accred the railroad interests for debauching legislatures and said that the West Edd street railway paid $42,000 for securing legislation in 1890. Representative Callention in 1890. Representative Callentier, our old friend who has such an anfortunate motive to the same and that the west countries to the same and t rescue of private interests, replied to MacCartney, who again nailed him to the cross of capitalism. To show that he was free from railroad influence, Callender said he had never as a law Callender said he had nover as a two-yer been hired to defend the railroad companies, and added, "Pérhapa it is because I have not the ability." Quick as a fiash, MacCartney saked him if he was trying to demonstrate his ability now. The House roared and Callender and not down discomplian. Frothingagain sat down discomfited. Frothing ham of Boston defended the commit ham of Roston decenness the commit-tee's report and quoted from the Lon-don "Times" to show the failure of municipal ownership. He considered that Socialism was "chimerical." Ca-rey replied and said that the House, would surely be influenced by the Lon don "Times," the representative monarchy and the natural opponent of Socialism and public ownership. He continued: "Your Lieutenaut-Governor said forty thousand men voted for naked Socialism, voted for the chimera of which he speaks and next election there will be fifty thousand, and long we will elect a Governor of this state." This statement being per-state." This statement being per-sistently made by our Representative alarmed the Democrats who can alarmed the Democrats who can read the handwriting on the wall, and they pleaded with their partizans to support the measure so that the ground would not be taken from under them. This bill was introduced in the last Legisla-ture by Comrade MacCartney and re-ceived 65 wates, this year it got 77. ceived 65 votes, this year it got 77.

"Unconstitutional" Again. The comrades at Milford petition for six articles to be placed in the town warrant, the main ones being to instruct the Selectmen to appear beforo the Legislature and advocate a memorial to Congress for government ownership of the coal mines. The same articles have been inserted in the warrant of many town meetings, and in some instances special town meet-ings were held and these resolutions were acted upon and adopted. The Selectmen of Milford referred the matier to the Town Solicitor, who declared the articles unconstitutional. We could have nothing better happen to us. their blind prejudice they do the very things that help to bring public opinion up to the Socialist standpoint. Our ement will take on new life in Milford by this act. We have directed convades to arrange an indignation meeting and stir the town and deposit the Selectmen in a cavity of their own digging. "Let the galled Jades wince, our withers are unwrung.

Work in the State.

The comrades throughout the state show a healthy activity. Most of the clubs show increased membership and clubs show increased membership and from every locality demands for speak-ers are being made. We are arranging dates for Father McGrady for week commencing April 6, and if any of the locals desire him, they should notify the State Secretary at once. Two locals have already got dates. Our Speakers' Club under MacCartney's leadership is making good progress and great interest is being mani-fested by the members. As a pedagogue he is a success, and ere long he will be shie to turn loose a band of new speakers, much needed in the state.

MUST FACE NEW ISSUES.

Let us not deceive ourselves. Let us meet the issue fairly and squarely.

As trade-unionists we cannot ignore the economic changes which are gothe workingmen who support the the economic changes which are go Democratic party in this state need, ing on all around and about us. The industrial development and concentra-tion of the means of production into ever fewer hands, makes it imperative that we change our tactics in treating with the employing capitalist class. The strike and boycott, the only weapons thus far recognized by trade unions, are becoming ever less potent as weapons of immediate offense and defense. These are necessary, how-ever, under the present capitalist system, and so long as that system re Industrial liberty possible, to free our class from the thraldom of wage slavery, we must unite at the polis; gain possession of the powers of government, and having achieved that power, use it in the complete over-throw of the capitalist system of ex-ploitation and establish in its stead the Workers' Republic.-Annual Report of R. T. Behrens, President of Missouri State Federation of Labor.

COAL ROAD'S INCREASING PROFITS It is announced that in the months of December and January alone the increase of net carnings of the Eric over the net earnings of the same months a year earlier was nearly suffimonths a year earlier was nearly sufficient to pay the full dividend on the first and second preferred stock for a whole year. The increase for the two months was about $2,000,000.81,200,000. 000 from the railroad and $800,00 from the coal mines. Evidently the strike did not fatally injure the Erie. It will take a strike at the ballot-box to conquer such adversaries.

SOCIALIST VICTORIES.

Workingmen Taking Control of Berough Governments-Socialists Carry Mining Town of Lansford — Reading and Austin Send Good News.

LANSFORD, Pa., Feb. 19.-The Sc cialist Party won a striking victor; here in Tuesday's local election, win ning complete control of the borough administration. This result shows tha the great increase in our vote last No vember was not merely a momentary protest, but that Socialism has taken a firm footbold here. Last summer's firm footbold here. Last summer coal strike—Lansford is in Carbo County, in the heart of the anthracit -did more than stir the worker see that in Socialism is their only hope of escape from the conditions that produce such class conflicts. Justice of the Peace, and a majority in the Council and the School Board. strike and four of them were indicted on trumped-up charges of "inciting to riot." Now the mine capitalists and their old-party agents have received the workingmen's answer.

Gain In Reading.

READING, Pa., Feb. 18.—In the lection held in our city yesterday the nutests were bitter between the two old parties. Personalities figured so largely that we feared a loss for the head of our ticket. In municipal con-tents of the past we generally lost as compared with the state elections. But it is evident now that we need not ex-pect reverses any more in our city.

Yesterday, in spite of the hitter co test and in the face of an extravagant expenditure of manay by the old par-ties—money supplied by the corpora-tions, to whom those parties must reciprocate—we increased our vote over the state election of last November. At the election last fall, out a total vote of 14,338, we polled for John W. Slayton 1,11? votes. Yester-day, out of a total vote of 12,038, we polled for the head of our ticket 1,139 rotes. This is unofficial and may be alightly increased by the official count.

The Socialist Party is the only party that made any gains. We also elected an Inspector of Election in the third precinct of the Tweifth Ward, and were responsible for the defeat of the Republican candidate for Council in the Thirteenth Ward. We fought the est in this ward, and the Democratic candidate resped part of the barvest.

We are recognized by both old parties as a factor to be reckoned with in all elections and are keeping them on the anxious seat in every contest. They could not predict the result and had to wait until the vote was counted to find where they were at. was nearly straight, which indicates that the Socialists of Reading are vot-ing for principles and not for men. All the near future.

If the votes cast by the, not pure and simple, but purely simple trade unionists were cast for the principles they pretend to represent, we could sweep the town. But they will get hungry some time, which seems the only means to educate them; and when that time comes, watch Rending, All their best fighters into our local two weeks ago, and some of the others are preparing to fall in line, and some day with a united party we'll clean the M. N. W.

Victory at Austin.

AUSTIN, Pa., Feb. 18.—At this week's borough election the Socialist Party showed that it is here to stay and to win. We elected our candidate for Burgess by a plurnlity of 57 votes over the Republican, and elected also two Councilmen, a School Director, and an Auditor. Austin is in Potter County in the north-central part of the state.

C. I. R.

DUQUENNE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Election is over, and while we have a loss of ten votes from last fall's figures, we are satisfied with the results, considerwas headed "Socialist Labor" and a number of our candidates omitted from First Ward ballot. We did not compelled them to reprint the ballots for the whole borough, but in the meantime we had decided to stay away from the polls and when we found the change would be made it was too late to notify all the comrades. ATTACK ON UNIONS

Capitalist Program of Hostile Legisla tion Initiated in Connecticut

Representative Edwin Hallook Representative Edwin Hallock of Derby has introduced in the Council, cut Legislature a bill requiring the labor unions in that state become becorporated. This is the first step, we are told by the capitalist press, in a plan to make them responsible bodies, and is the result of the Waterburgstrike. If the resolution is favorable strike. If the resolution is favorable reported bills will be introduced mak-ing unions responsible for riot den-ages instigated by their members. Unions will also be held liable to damages for conspiracy to injure private business. A bill drawn by State Attor ney William H. Williams of Derby, which has been introduced in the Legislature, makes all tewns, cities. and beroughs in Connecticut liable for damages to private property or injury causing death, resulting from mob we-lence within their limits. Both the damages thus obtained and the cost of militia services, if rendered, are to be defrayed by the special per capita tax on all unities between the ages of twenty-one and seventy residing in the town at the time of such mob violence. The intent of the bill is to make the participants in mob violence financially responsible for the damage they cause and all other male residents likewise responsible for not aiding the police to suppress the rioters.

These bills are quite in line with the capitalist policy which The Worker has forecast as likely to be pursued. Incorporated unions would be at the mercy of the courts. As soon as a serious strike was on suits would be begun against the union on the ground of alleged rioting and conspiracy. Even though there might be no evi-dence to support these suits, the court could tie up the funds of the union pending their decision. The requis-ment that unions incorporate carries with it, of course, the penalizing of unincorporated associations of workingmen for the purposes now served by unions—a virtual return to the old con-spiracy laws against unions which England repealed seventy-five years

AGAINST THIRD-MAN BILL.

The Assembly Committee on Railroads at Albany gave a hearing last week on the bill requiring an assistant week on the bill requiring an assistant to the engineer and fireman in the cabs of locomotives. Some surprise was caused by the fact that a number angineers appeared to support the rounsel for the New York Central in opposing the bill. They argued that the presence of a third man in the cab-would be more likely to distract the engineer's attention at a critical mement than to help him.

There are two or three possible ex-planations of this opposition. It is quite possible that the engineers who spoke against the bill are mere hired tions, which do not, of course, wish to be compelled to stand the expense of hiring a third man for every engineer Others explain their opposition by the theory that the engineers do not want third man in the cab who would nave nothing to do but to acquire the knowlengine, and who might thus become a ous competitor for employment, not impossible, however, that the engineers' opposition is sincere and well founded. It would seem that What does the firm expect to get out there is a much better way of meeting of the scheme? there is a much better way of meeting the need so terribly demonstrated by recent disasters—not by putting a third man in the cab, but by making it a penal offence for the officers of a road to keep any engineer, fireman, conductor, or telegrapher on duty more than eight hours at a stretch, or even

At the Washington Birthday banquet of the Sheriff's Jury in the Hotel Savoy, last Monday, five Justices of the Supreme Court, Recorder Goff, Sheriff O'Brien, Borough President and nearly every city officer except th Mayor—Republicans, Democrats, and Reference all together—applanded the remarks of a Wall Street corporation lawyer, Charles F. Socialists Address the Trust King.

By Direction of the Pennsylvania State Committee, Secretary Fred Long Thanks Him for Having Shown the Fallacy of Competitive Theory. In accordance with the instructions of the State Committee of the Socialist Party of Pennsylvania, the Secretary of that body, Comrade Fred W. Long, has addressed a letter to J. Pierpont Morgan, thanking him, as the representative of the trusts, for the aid and opportunity which the formation of monopolies is giving to the Socialist movement in the United States. The letter has gained considerable pub-licity in the capitalist press and thus successfully served its propaganda purpose.

An Unconscious Agent of Social Eve lution.

The great trust organizer is told that he cannot help his actions in furthering the economic evolution to-wards Socialism, being moved thereto by inevitable laws of economic devel-opment over which he has no control. The letter says that the trusts have demonstrated the wastefulness of competition and the practicability of combination on a large scale, but points out that Mr. Morgan knows nothing of Socialism and does not see what pro-paganda work he is unconsciously do ing in furtherance of the Socialist ideal -the Co-operative Commonwealth.

Following is the letter in full: Headquarters of the State Executive Committee of the Socialist Party of Pennsylvania, Logan Building 1305 Arch Street, Rooma 19 and 20 "Philadelphia, Feb. 14, 1903.

"J. Plerpont Morgan, New York City. "Dear Sir:—As a preface to this let ter and as an excuse for the liberty we take in addressing you, we desire to say that we consider you one of the most notable characters the world has seen. At the same time we cannot for beer adding that we are of the opinion that you are an unconscious tool in the hands of natural forces, a chief factor in certain social and economic tenden cies, whereof you know not the meaning and of which you cannot see the end. You are the leader of the great modern so-called trust movement, which is doing more to prepare civil-ized countries for the advent of Socialism than all the feeble efforts of us workingmen. We know, or at least tingly manifest the feeling of your As your friend, Emperor Wil liam, frankly said, you know nothing about Socialism—'the great question of the day'—but then a man in your posttion does not, in the nature of things, have time to study social science.

"Political economy, as taught in all the schools to-day, is an anachronism, holding that competition is the best means of advancing the welfare of soclety; whereas the successful operation of the trust has demonstrated at once the practicability of co-operation and the impossibility of a continuance of competition. The Socialists have maintained this for the last fifty years, in predictions of Karl Marx in 'Das Kapital.' proof of which we refer you to the "For years the recognized intellectual class has told us that production on a national or world-wide scale was impossible; that one man or group of men could not conduct such vast en-terprises; that they would break down of their own weight-in short, that they were an ephemeral phase of econ-omic development. We could not con-vince the intellectuals to the contrary, but the stern logic of events has The trust convinces the most obtuse.

"Our position, in brief, is as follows: "In the United States, as in all other civilized countries, the natural order of economic development has separated society into two antagonistic classes—the capitalist, a comparatively small class, the possessors of all the means of production and distribution fland, mines, machinery and the means of transportation and communication), and the larger and ever-increasing class of wage-workers who possess no property at all. This economic su-premary has secured to the dominant class the full control of the governmeets the pulpit, the schools and the subsidized press. It has thus made the capitalit class the subtree of the fate of the workers, whom it is reduclag to a condition of dependence, economically exploited and oppressed, in-tellectually and physically exippled and degraded. Under these conditions, their political equality is a bitter mockery. The present government is a conspiracy of organized and incor-porated wealth, hiding behind and of the exploiter and the exploited.

"Socialists demand that this struggle shall cease, but it will cease only with the elimination of its causes. To eliminate these causes it is necessary to sholish the private ownership of the modern tool of production—the trust— and place its ownership in the hands of the people. To accomplish this, it is necessary to arouse the wealth producers to a recognition of their class interest and weld them into a compact political force. This Socialists are do-ing, and the development of the trust constantly accelerates the mevament.

"The Socialist vote in the United States now numbers one-third of a mil-lion, in industrial Pennsylvania 28,000, in intellectual Massachusetts 40,000. These few facts, Mr. Morgan, constrain us to ecknowledge our indebtedness to you and your class for demonstrating the practicability and inevita-bility of Socialism. THE REST TRUST INJUNCTION.

Judge Grosscup of the United States Direuit Court in Chicago has granted a temporary injunction against the Beef Trust, forbilding the packers to make an agreement to refrain from bidding against each other for the pur chase of cattle or to bid up prices to stimulate shipments, intending to couse bidding when the shipments arsive, or to combine to fix prices upon and restrict the quantities of meat ahipped to agents and customers.

So far, so good. It is easy to forbid packers to combine for the nurposes memed, but can the court compel the eattle, or to refrain from bidding to bidding after the shipments have arrived, or to sell meat at prices not satisfactory to them, or to sell more ment than they choose to sell? No capitalist court will think of doing any of these things, for it would violate the sucred principle of "free contract." 'And without these things, the injunction is worth no more than the paper price of meat nor any rise in the price of cattle. What we have observed. within five days after the issuance of this injunction, is the announcemen that the nackers are calmiv proceeding in organize a securities-holding company, probably to be capitalised at $50,000,000, to start with, on the model of the Hill-Harriman-Morgan railway combine, to effect a lawful consolida tion of the ment-packing interests. The trust learn to act together to take the can-

And these evils will help educate us to the point where we will bring in the Socialist system, in which the benefits of controliention, its order and economy, will accrue to all the people.

Champions of the taxpayers in New York City are raining a howl against the new system of paying jurers Heretofore jurors have been compelled to serve without pay or with virtually ma: Now they will receive $2 a day. It is said this will not an additional burden of at least $400,000 a year on the taxpayers. Insamuch as nine tenths of the litigation arises out of the conflict of private capitalist interests it would seem unreasonable for the property-owning class to object to affair is of interest to us only as it calls attention to one comparatively small item in the enormous waste involved in the capitalist system.

It is almost to be bound that the Connecticut Legislature will pass the bills against labor organisations of which an account is given elsewhere in this issue of The Worker. These bills embody a distinct program that capitalist "statesmen" in this country and in England have been contemplating for some time. Their adoption in one state would bring the matter to a clear issue. It might be hard on the union men of that state, but they would undoubtedly have vigorous support from their brothers throughout the country, and it would help in the education of the working class.

"I will roar as gently as any sucking dove," mys Bottom the weaver. E. E. Clark, Grand Chief of the Order of Rallway Conductors and the sole "labor" man an the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, spoke in Fancuil Hall, Boston, the other day. The canitalist papers say his address was "a conservative and thoughtful one." | actly: Judging by the reports given, we do not wonder at the comme Among other things he said: "If hy divine right some are given charge of many and great interests, it is not that they may exalt themselves above all men and reap great personal profit and rewards, but that they may, by the exercise of the talents intrusted to them and the opoprtunities given to them, work out the will of the Maker by elevating and improving the condition of mankind," Andrew Carnegle and George F. Haer would heartly applaud that utterance. Labor leaders who speak in this tone earn the cantemptuous patronage of Labor's worst enomies and deserve the vigorous con

Examination of the weekly rallway reports in the financial papers shows that the wage-increases made since election have not cost the railway capitalists anything. Every week for the last three months almost every company has reported larger not "earn ings"-that is, surplus of reverse ever all expenses of operation-than in the corresponding weeks of one or of two domnation of thinking workingmen.

This is accounted for chiefly by the fact that the advance of wages was immediately followed by a proportionate advance of freight rates. The is not very much room, therefore, for enthusiasm over the generalty of the railway capitalists. It is not difficult to be generous when one is in a position to reimburse bimself with interest for all it costs. The fact that this wave of generosity followed so closely on the great increase of the Socialist vote in November also suggests that it was not altogether spontaneous or dis-cals the benefit even to these workingmen whose wages are increased, and positively injures those who do not share in the wage-advance. Had the railway employees demanded and the companies granted shorter hours instead of higher money wages, the direct advantage to the workers in that and all industries would have been much greater. That, of course is just what the capitalists are least willing to do.

From whatever standpoint we look at it—whether observe that the capi talists make bigger net profits while paying higher money wages, or that the railway workers have to do harder and more dangerous work in return for the slight increase of real wages, or that the workers of many other trade have to may higher prices without any increase of wages-we come to the same conclusion, that no material im provement of the condition of the workers is to be expected so long as they remain wage-workers, that capiprinciple of the right of private-prop- | taliam cannot be mended and must be troi of industry into its own hands so that it will-not "share in the general prosperity," maw and then-but enjoy permanently and normally the prospe ity # creates.

We noted last week that two Repub lican members of the New York Legis lature-Senator Marshall and Amen blyman Remsen of Kings-and fou Democrats-Sensions Bawkins of New York and Wagner of Kings and As emblymen Dale and Matthews of Kings-had so far shown their servilits to the worst capitalist interests by introducing bills for the purpose of nullifying the Tenement House Laws We have to add to this roll of dishon one more Democrat-Assemblyma Everett of New York. Everett's bill is one of the worse of the lot. It exempt from the provisions of the laws all houses occupied by less than eight families-three being the present randard; and it also proposes to re duce the minimum size of nirshaft. from one hundred and fourteen aguar feet to sixty-six square feet-thus liminishing by about 40 per cent. the tenants' supply of light and alr.

Comment on this utterance is almost unnecessary. We desire only to call the attention of the comrades to the position taken by the Omaha majority -If, Indeed, Comrade Gorbel, in this instance, speaks for anyone but himmelf.

First, they say the National Committee cannot initiate a referendum os the nuestion of headquarters.

Second, they say the National Committee can remove headquarters with out a referendum.

Third, they say the membership can not luitiate a referendum to overrule the decision of the National Committee.

This, in the name of constitutions democracy! All that our constitution is good for, it would seem, is to prevent the expression of the will of the rank and file. That is not our conception of the true use of a constitution. Nor do we believe that hy any subtle reasoning the majority of our arty emails induced to submit to an uterpretation so completely at varisuce with the spirit and traditions of our party.

We have now one plain question to

Ernest Untermann, writing in the mand for a referendam on the choice of headquarters. He says:

"The referendum on the question of opposing the selection of Omaha is a clear waste of time and means, for it certain to result in an endorsemen of the action of the National Commit tee. It is doubtful, if even the selle vote of Massachusetts, New fork, Kentucky, Illinois and Wiscon ain would disarow the action of the National Committee. And it is certain that Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaha, Kansas, Minneseta, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, Borth Daketa, Ohio, Okla-homa, Oregon, South Dakets, Utah and Washington would vote in favor of Omaha. Is it not a waste of energy to go to the trouble, expense and delay involved in a referendum on a question which is sirendy settled?" This is about the limit. Comrade Untermann knows in advance how we ing? Let's save time and trouble and expense by taking his word for it that Omaka-and, incidentally, Comrade Untermana himself as a member of Quorum—is our predestized choice. I'The Worker desires above all things to be fair, believing that only by the hearing of both sides can a wise division on any question be reached. We therefore give space to various communications and notes on the headquarters question, which will soon come before the party for general vote. Considerations of space. of course, must limit such discussion, but The Worker will not deny a hearing to any member of that majority of the National Committee whose actions at St. Louis we have so vigorously demounced and still as vigorously op-

We are in receipt of information that petitions from four locals in Mas-sachusetts, Natick, Salem, Chelsen, and Worcester, have been received at endquarters, requesting the National committee to submit a referendum, as oflows: "That the headquarters be removed to Chicago," "That the Local Quorum be composed as follows, mem-bers of National Committee from littnois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa, and Kentucky."

These petitions are on the same kind of paper and gotten up in the same form, showing they are the work of ne and the same hand. Editor The Worker:-- In your lastic of Feb. 22, reporting my remarks at the meeting of Local New York last Sunday you make a misstatement in saying I admitted that "Mills was the leader of any caucuses which might have been held. I admitted nothing of the kind, and, on the other hand, expressly denied that Mills was any more responsible for the result at St. Louis than any other of the majority. What makes it singular that you should so report me is the fact that I the Editor of The Worker, defended Comrade Mills against any such imputation. Nor did I admit that caucuse would give of my remarks. I said there was one canens, it being entirely suit of the way the business of the Committee had been held up for two days by the Local Quorum, sided by a combination (in the shape of the minority) of such astute parliamen-

the only avenue for reaching the party membership in the Eastern states, and controlled largely by comrades themselves interested in the questions at lasue. It was openly intimated at St. Louis that we would find curselves up agains, it, no matter what we did, as the papers reaching the party membership would be against the action of the majority. Your entire action has proven that those who gave expression to such ideas knew what they were talking about. Your issue of Feb. 8, the forms for which must have been looked within three days of the adjournment of the Committee, before you had the complete minutes of the last two days, and before it was possible for you to have obtained even one side of the matter at issue in anythink like a complete manner, famed out in an editorial containing remarks about "high-handed methods." "the majority saw fit to refuse to rebeat ship would be against the action of the the question in any form to the mank and file," etc. And since then every issue has been of a similar nature, with not a line for the other side, even my senarise at the meeting of Local New York being so poorly or insorrect-ly agastred that, as far as The Worker is concerned, the membership know nothing of the important reasons actuating the majority. And I submit unless there were important reasons, you would not find fourteen states nunding solidly in the latter portion of the meetings against a minority of only seven states. To say this result was due to the wire-pulling of any one or more comrades is to insult ordinar; intelligence, not to speak of the reflection cast upon the fourteen states rep resented by those composing the ma jority. Personally, and I believe I speak for many of the majerity in this respect I went to St. Louis with no fixed idea r plans as to location of headquarters the state autonomy clause of the ron stitution lived up to, was hitterly op would niean in the caming year such a period of organization as would bring the party membership up to at least a reasonable percentage of the votes cast for our candidates at the recent election, and every state in the Union or-ganised in such a manner as would insure our ability to have a full set of Presidential Electors nominated in the members of the Local Quarum seeking every occasion to justify their course regarding fusion, that in ac-cordance with that position the name of the "Missouri Socialist" had been changed to "Missouri Labor," that our party being compelled to adopt the name of "Working-Class Party" was due to the same element, instead of the S. L. P. as most of us had sup-National Committeeman from Missouri (now member of new Local Quesume its proper name; more surprising still to some of us, was to find what seemed a plan more of less clearly shown as time went on to whitewash the Local Querum, retain bendauarters in St. Louis, perhaps re-elect the old Secretary and adopt a namby-pamby resolution concerning fusion, nificant fact in this connection is that the Local Quorum (representing only themselves) and the minority were found voting together every time.

Comrade Hillquit in his report tells us that he went there expecting to find the fusion matter the important business, but to his surprise found it ectiled without debate. In my judg-ment fusion was not killed until we voted to remove the headquarters from St. Louis, and no one knows this better than some mumbers of the minority.

The "cheek" of Comrade Hillquit and some other members of the minor-ity in speaking of the high-handed methods of the majority is almost re-freshing when we read the minutes and find that Comrades Carey and Hillquit, as the majority members of the Committee on Rules, urged with all the skill at their command, in the carly session, that a rule be adopted the party for the coming year.

Comrade Hillquit tells us that Comrade Mills shouted across the room, "Vote it down, boys." But he furgets to mention the fact that at a critical moment during the election of Na-tional Secretary he himself said to the nembers of the Local Quorum (indicating an understanding), "You will have to vote new." And aithough they, of their own accord, had said that recogvote on election of Secretary, etc., did vote, with the result that Couracle Mailly was elected Secretary without a majority of the members of the Naa majority of the members of the Na-tional Committee voting for him. Had Comrade Mailly been personally present he would have been the first to protest against an election obtained by of the minutes, and thus changing the such methods. And nothing can better better prove the moderation of the mation as made by him and understood fority and the esteem in which Combus howed that the question as to moved the Quorum so summarily, without opportunity for a hearing. By examining the minutes of the meeting it will be seen that almost every sesber of the majority offered a resolu-tion requesting their resignation or similar result, and no one but evinced. a willingness for the Local Quorum to have opportunity to defend them-selves, although most of us felt they, had full opportunity to explain them-selves in the party press and had availed themes resolutions were all tabled or referred because of the pleas of Comrade Mili-quit and other members of the minortir. And now we see the attempt made to put upon the majority the im-putation of being unfair. After two days of this sort of thing, the memacttle fusion finally and forever got to-gether and decided to exercise the that they were not there to try any comrade but to lay down policies for the coming year. Nothing was re-sponsible for this result but the action

Probably the mo surprised people when the senult was announced were those who first sugadduced in the spectuse nominating cities was responsible for its selection, and were the members silowed to calmly consider the matter in all its bearings, Omaha would receive an overwhelming majority. I wish to state bottly is this connection that in my judgment the objection being made is not really against Omaha, so much Local Querum, and not so muc neginat their class consciousness and ralty to the bed-rock principles of socialism as it is to the fact that per haps they will not be as susceptible to the wishes and ideas of certain com quarters. This is a baid statement out one I make advisedly and am will ing to assume full responsibility for.
That the fight being made is largely a personal one is evident from the fact that, although urging a referendum in large block of Socialist votes, the movers of this referendum carefully diana, Iowa, and Kentucky. If the chief anxiety is to have a Quorum nembers and votes, why did the movers of this referendum carefully skip Ohio with its 15,000 votes and go one hundred to two hundred and fifty miles further to Kentucky with its 2,100 votes in making up their proposed Quorum? Regarding the proposed referendum will react.

A branch of the Social Democratic Party was organized last month in the 9th A. D. of Kings County by seven comrades residing in the 9th who transferred from the 12th A. D. The branch now has nineteen members and expects to treble its membership in the near future. The branch meets on the second and fourth Thursdays in each month at 18 Cole street; Comrade Pat Sinnott, 113 King street, is organiser. and Peter Thorsen, 46 Dikeman street secretary. All sympathizers in this district are urged to join the branch and help in the party work.

Rings Corn y Committee meets & Feb. 23th, in Brooklyn Labor Lycens

All earnest thinking men and women interested in abolishing the demoralis-ing conditions which are retarding the human race in its march toward a real civilization are cordially invited to attend the debate to be held under the auspices of the Colonial Socialist Club, at Colonial Hall, 101st street and Columbus avenue, New York, on Sunday evening, March 1. The delaters will be Sol Fieldman, Socilaist speaker, and Henry W. Wilbur, editor of the Prohibition organ, "The Defender," and the proposition to be debated will be "Resolved, That the purpose of the Prohibition Party commands the allegiance of all citizens desiring social order and good government more than does the purpose of the Social Demo-cratic Party." THE "ANTI" S. L. P. IN PENNSYLYANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.-On Sat urday began the state convention of the anti-Delæonite S. L. P. in this city. Delegates were present from Pitts burg, Allegheny City, Easton, Bethlethree other ex-Del coniton were also in attendance, Julius Secretary of the Julius Eberle, the State Secretary of the organization pre-sented a rather lengthy report, largely taken up with a recital of the trouble which culminated in the suspension of the Pennsylvania organization by De Leon's N. E. C. He stated that the organization was now confronted with deficit of $823. The fact that the 8. L. P. ticket received only about 5,000 votes last fall, while the Socialist Party had nearly 22,000, was cited as having convinced many among them that the policy pursued by the S. L. P. gathering, it was stated, should conaider the question of co-operation or union with the Socialist Party.

The discussion showed a divergence of opinion, all agreeing in denouncing De Leon's conduct, but some wishing to maintain a separate organization as ngainst the Socialist Party.

Resolutions were finally adopted 'advising friendly intercourse with the houest members of other Socialist pr ganizations in Pennsylvania, with a riew to final union" on the basis of the class struggle; advising that steps be taken to form a new national party, distinct from the De Leonite organization and from the Socialist Party; decinring that the S. L. P. of Penusylvania should express its sympathy with trade-union struggles as with all other struggles of the working class against the capitalist class," while pointing out the growing impotency of organised labor unless it makes use of its political power to establish the so-cialist Republic: tentatively providing for the publication of a weekly or monthly paper; and, finally, defering ing at Flint the Largest E Hold by the Party-Gandidates Hom lusted for State Election.

SAGINAW, Mich., Pak. 18.-The Se cialist Party state convention at Flint on Tuesday was the most largely attended of the four annual convention thus far held by the party.

Robert S. Clark of Flint called the convention to order, and J. A. C. Menton of Flint, Secretary of the State Committee, read the call for the convention, after which a temporary or ganization was affected by the election of Comrade Clark as chairman and Clarence Neely as secretary, and the various committees were chosen. On reassembling, the credentials committee reported about sixty delegates ennac, Calboun, Eaton, Geneson, Hills dale, Jackson, Kalamasoo, Kent, Lapeer, Oakland, Saginaw, Sanliac, Washtenaw, and Wayne. The tem-perary organization was made perma-tee consisted only of a reaffirmation of the national platform of the Socialist Party and an indorsement of the action taken by the National Committee at St. Louis, without expressing any preference as to the location of crimanent beadquarters.

The constitution committee reported two amendments, covering the resignations of members of the party elected to office, and the formation rity central committees, which were adopted.

Nominations were then taken un, no time being lost in speech-making. All nominations were made by acclama-tion. Herbert A. Hodge of Jackson, candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, is a real-estate and insurance man, and has been admitted to the bar, although not at present engaged in the practice of the legal profession. In a ort speech of acceptance he said that the triumph of Socialism would come the breaking up of the big board-ing house in his city (the Jackson n); such places would be little needed if men were given opportunity to gain a livelihood in honest ways.

John D. Hunt, one of the candidates for Regent of the University, is a farmer of Hillsdale County, well known among Socialists for his earnestness in the cause. William A. Benessi of Kalamazoo, the second can-didate for Regent, is a member of the Painters' Union, one of the organizers of the Socialist Party in that city, and a writer of much force. William E. Walter, candidate for Governor in the recent campaign and State Organizer of the party, submitted a report of his tour last summer. A vote of thanks was unani-mously tendered him for his splendid work in the campaign.

Headquarters of the party were con tinued at Flint for the coming year and the Local Quorum was requested to retain J. A. C. Menton in the office of Secretary.

of Secretary.

Under "good and welfare," C. J.
Lamb presented a plan of carrying on outdoor agitation. The plan was approved, and the convention elected Comrade Lamb as organizer to carry on the work, with the assistance of the State Committee.

A long discussion was had upon the merits of the dues-paying system of organization and dues-paying as a test of party membership. Those who were opposed to the system were almost exclusively from localities where Socialist activity is least in evidence; while those longest in the movement and best acquainted with the difficulties attending the organization of a workingmen's political movement were almost as unanimous in favor of dues paying.

Before adjourning the thanks of the convention were tendered the focial-ists of Flint for the many courtesies extended the visiting delegates.

STATE COMMITTEE.

At the New York State Committee meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 10, Con-rades Neppel, Abbott, Slobodin, Wood, and Bub were present; excussed, Chas. L. Furman, Bowerman; absent, Heich, Phillips, G. Lehner.

GUARDS THE HOME.

A Few Notes of Current News Show ing the Absurdity of the Charge that Socialism Would Destroy tive Family.

From Manila, where manifest destiny and commercial interests have set up the American flag, comes this cable news: "Two girls were sold into slavery in this city a few days age by Gregoria Torres, one bringing one hash dred and fifty psees, end the other one hundred psees. * * A number of cases have been reported from time to tink-where young girls have been bought and sold. * * There are a number of human vultures in this city that are summer victions in the business of buying and selling girls, something that should re-ceive the attention of the authorities." The authorities take it all very com-

Our women should most certainly be in love with the present capitalistic system of industry, designed as it is to foster all the home-loving in-stincts of gentle feministy. Let us see some of the ways in which she is treated in various parts of this round world, and then, woman-reader, tell me if you are a lover of this beautiful system. Out in South America girls are lured to lives of shame in which they are compelled to submit to mock marriages before a notary public alleg-ing indebtedness and signed under threat. Most of the girls are German,

In some of the central provinces of Russia there are regular sales of wo-nen and children; and a sound, whole-some young mailen brings $35 in the market. A healthy female child is from $10 to $25. Speculators are said to do a thriving business by fattening up their purchases and thes selling again at a profit.

According to some of the Russian journals the sale of women and girls has enormously increased in Korea. In their homes and in the public market these child-victims of our profit-produc ing system are openly sold to the cry of "Buy girls, pretty girls, cheap girls." A small child will fetch 10 shillings, while a girl from 18 to 15 years of age brings from £3 to £4; and rich merchants make money by buying the children of the poor, feeding them up and selling them at a big profit. Again in our Christian civilization and under the clorious Stars and Stripes where our unidean are supn homes of happiness and comfort we find the worshipper of Profit afters human flesh and blood. Hew? Through the efforts of the German consul to Philadelphia, Fertiuand Rkschi, Rabbi Joseph Kranskopf, and others, there has been unearthed an international syndicate of vice. By a: concerted movement on the part of the polico, 113 persons were arrested al-c have been active agents in conductings the affairs of the nefarious syndicate—an organization that stretches its innefal tentacles throughout Europe and Great Britain and scatters its thousands of victims throughout New York, Philadelphia, and other large

When the hundred miserable girls were arraigned, the Director of Public Safety said to the Magistrate: "Make these girls toll the truth. They did not come to much a life of their own free will. We have evidence that a band exists that has for its purpose the luring of young girls from their homes. and selling them into lives of shame It extends from Philadelphia to New York and to the other side of the Atlantic. We want to break up this wholesale traffic in human nouls and punish the men who have resped the profits from such a revolting trade."

The Socialist agrees with the Director of Public Safety that such a gang should be broken up, but, Mr. Director, we hambly suggest that as lon as we have the profit system in which one person profits at the expense of others so long will there be shavery and women will be seld into lives of vice for the profit there is in it. Hence, we say eliminate the profit system and auch gangs as we here speak of would be broken up for there would be no incentive or motive to keep such a gang at work plying its "nefarious trade." The incentive for profit being the trade itself would be abolished for men would not acduce were man to sell them into lives of de-bauckery for the few dirty dollars there are in it as they do now. I am told that a great many dancing-menters—charter; after receipt of which, upon make good money on the outside by procuring "a new maid" for some of their patrons, such maid bringing $40 into their pocket. In other words, many of our dancing schools under this system of society are naught but procuring-places for houses of vices And as long as men and women wos ship Profit and the thought of Profit, so long will barter and sale in the bodies and souls of our fellow-beings go on if there is any money in it for us. When profit courses much of the so-called sin of to-day will course.

So while men, strong, rough, hardy men need a change of deal it is woman, refined woman, the slave of a slave, who needs Socialism more than we—not slone for her own sake, but more fully for the sake of her girl-child if she have any. True, she caract vote, but she can convert the men of her acquaintance from the error of their ways and bring them into voting in favor of Socialism and justice! JOHN A. MORRIS. Les Angeles, Cal.

LIBERTY AND POVERTY.

Till a man is independent he is not free. The man who is in danger of want is not a free man, and the country which does not guard him against free country, though it may be the freest of the free countries. Liberty and poverty are incompetible, and if the poverty is antenna, liberty is instability.

AGAINST FUSION.

It has already been noted in The Worker that Local Los Angeles, Cal., has formally condemned the policy of fusion with Union Labor or other par-ties. Local San Francisco now follows with still stronger resolutions repudistthat "the fusion sentiment in the Sc cinits l'arty is dead and buried." Suc declarations from these two locals, after the memorable experience they had with fusion last fall, would seem to complete the funeral ceremonies and nastre us that there will be no further deviation from the straight course of Socialist metics.

Remarkable Record of National Economic League.

Startling Exhibition of Inginocrity is Organization Backed by Bankers. Bishops, and Statesmen-Bisturbed by Socialist Chatlengy - "Labor Leaders" in Onear Company, ;

Renders of The Worker will remem-ber that in our issue of Dec. 28 we gave some account of the National Becommic League, a bood differed and endorsed by many noted capitalists and politicians. We quoted from a cirof the League the statemen that one of its objects was "to rander its services in an impartial educational movement to oppose Socialism and class hatred."

Brooklyn, on behalf of the Socialist Propaganda Club, addressed a letter to Mr. Dutcher, Chairman of the League, protesting against the misrepresenta-tion involved in the phrase, "Social-ism and class hatred," and inviting or challenging the League to choose a representative to debate the question of Socialism.

We ventured to predict that the challeage would not be taken up. Subsequent events have not only justified our prediction, but illustrated in the est striking manner the hypocrisy d moral cowardice of these emineut lefenders of capitalism.

Will Hat Debata.

In due time Comrade Fraser re reived a reply from A. H. Mattox, Editorial Manager of the League, to whom Mr. Dutcher had referred the chal lenge. Mr. Abstrox declared that was NOT the purpose of the Lengue to oppose Socialism and that therefore that therefore would not be accepted: at considerable length he insisted on the truly "impartial" character of the League and intimated that its purpose was to protect, "our commercial su-premacy" by proving the interests of Capital and Labor to be identical. Almost on the day that this letter was written, Thomas Heavy Cochrane, a member of the Organization Comof the League, addressed the officers and employees of the Nationa Cash Register Company of Dayton, O., a notoriously benevolent union-smashing concern. The Toledo "Dally News" reported his speech in full (noting cannally that he was the guest of the resident of the company), and the Coming Nation" of Jan. 17 reprinted We have not space to give the report. the speech in full, but here are some

"Impartial" Utterances.

"The cancer of Socialism is threat-ening the whole body politic." "Socialism is the real cause for class hatred and discontent among the laboring classes in this country.

"The rapid growth of Socialism is Jargely due to the fact that the Sociallat Party is educating the workingmen to their vicious doctrines by printing inflammatory articles calculated to deepen and intensity refellion and class hatred by presenting one-sided views, so eleverly and speciously written that the fallacy will pass unde n manufacturing and business plants in this country, who are not only teaching Socialism, but are making con-

Challenged Again, in view of these utterances by a recognized spokesman of the League Comrade Fraser wrote Mr. Mattox again as follows:

"I regret very much that you decline to delate with the Socialist Tropa-ganda Club...I, about, sat. have troubled you in the first instance were it not that you'r circulair distinctly Economic League is 'to oppose Social-ism.' "It is perfectly natural that the capitalists, being the present incumbents of privilege, should 'command the sur

to stand still on Mount Gilbon,' but one would imagine with all the data at hand which was not accessible to any of their predecessors that even they would perceive abundant evidence of a great impending change. Human society is a living thing and like all living organisms subject to change. To attempt to set limits to this change is to invite disaster. The child that is conceived in the mother's womb must be born or the mother will die. We can no more prevent the change from one form of society to another than we can command the winds and waves and bid them be still. Yet in all ages men have blindly set themselve opposition to these forces which have been at work since the world be-gan, Socialism is the new effspring that is to be born out of the old. The Socialists are neither the inventors not the creators of this new society, nor in fact are they in any way responsible fact are they in any way responsible for it. Rather are they the discover ers and harbingers of a new and better ers which shall know neither stress nor strife. To set ourselves in opposi-tion to the birth of this new society is to set ourselves in opposition to the laws that govern the entire universe. If there is any danger to hended it lies in adopting repressive measures to prevent something from taking place which in the natural ocder of events will and must take place, and in filling the minds of the people with rague and groundless fears born of ignorance and the creation of an unhealthy imagination. "labor leaders" mentioned in the third of the paragraphs above appear to be represented by just two names— E. E. WORKINGMAN-AFRAID-OF-HIMSELF.

By F. A. J. Waldron,

Lycoum in Rochester, N. Y., on Sun day, Jan. 25.]

Indian tribes of the West went on the warpath. Among the chiefs who figured in the affair was one named Man Afraid-of-His-Horses. That is the way his name appeared in the papers. thought at the time that that was ridiculous name and wondered how man who was afraid of his horse could rise to be a chief among the In dians. Observation has taught me however, that there are many stranger things in this world. In our civilized society there is a great chief upon whom we are all dependent. He builds our houses, runs our railroads, raises our food, makes our clothing builds our churches, schools and ur versities and, in short, produces all the secessaries, comforts and luxuries of civilized life. Who is this great chief

Himself. In any rationally constituted society. the man who produces all these good things would have an abundance of them for himself; everyone would be eager to do his will; the governmen would be administered in his interests the conditions of work would be so ar ranged as to protect his life and ficalth and keep him in condition to do his work to the best advantage; he would have the best education that society could afford; he would have leisure to cultivate his mind; he would be the most important member of society; in fact, he would be society, and all the efforts of eaciety would be directed toward securing his welfare.

His name is: Workingman-Afraid-of

Are these things true of society as it exists to-day? Does our great chie demand that they shall be made true Before answering these questions, le me give you a little parable.

Once upon a time the dogs forme union to regulate the ficas. The of tects of the union, as announced, were given dog: (2) To limit the hours du which the fleas should bite, in or der that the dogs might have time to recuperate; (3) To fix the maximum bite which any fice should be allowed

One dog, who was universally a garded as a crank, brought forward : remedy whereby the fleas might be ex "What! abolish fleas entirely You must be crazy. Ever since dogs came into being, there have been fleas. Before you can abolish fleas, you must change dog nature. Besides, we must have some one to provide us employ

Unfortunately, society has not ye outgrown its robber ideals. In orde to be honored and respected by the community, it is still necessary to be somewhat of a thief. Our honored citizens are not the men who produc wealth but the exploiters of labor, who take advantage of existing condition to appropriate the greater part of the wealth which the workers produce People are still inclined to look unor work, especially manual labor, as a badge of slavery. We still sing of the man behind the gun, but who sings of the man behind the machine? Too often there is no man there—only a roman or a little child.

Not so very long ago we used to see companies of soldiers parading through the streets on their return from Cuba. I am told that one company, on reaching Rochester, swarmed around the locomotive and smeared their faces with grease in order to ap pear as "tough" as possible. As the paraded up Main street the peop cuce at their tanned and greasy cour tenances. Suppose they had been re-turning from a day's work in a coa-mine, with their races black and grimy and their very lungs saturated coal dust, how many people would have cheered them? Yet whave learned by our recent experience that one miner, actively engaged in digging coal, in worth more to the community than ten thousand soldiers Society does not estimate the work ingman at his true worth. That is not the point, however, with which I wish to deal. A more important question is: What do s the workingman think of himsel?? Does he accept the prevail-ing estimate of himsel? In many cases he does. He feels ashamed be-cause he is obliged to work for a living. In his every look and action he seems to apologise for the fact that he fir a mere workingman. He tries, in many cases, to set up an aristocracy of labor; to persuade himself and others that he is not in the same class with certain other workingmen; that his work is more dignified than cor tain other kinds of work: he talks of his "salary" and his "profession," and in every way tries to conceal his shame over the fact that he is a pro-

Shame always leads to distrust of oneself and to fear. The workingman ashamed of himself soon becomes the workingman afraid of himself. He remedy, but he is positively frightene when any one suggests that he himself must change the conditions which hold him down. He is always looking to others to do something for him. only certain laws were passed," thinks he, "everything would be lovely." But who is to enact those laws? Of course, he could not do it himself. Of course, he could not trust any member of his class to do it. What should a mere workingman know about law? So he entrusts the job to the first smoothentraits the por to the arst amount-tongued politician who comes along proclaiming himself the friend of is-hor. He spends thousands of dollars yearly to support lobbies in Washing-ton and in different state capitals, beg-ging legislators elected by capitalistic parties to do a little something for him. What does he set in return for him. What does he get in return for all this? An eight-hour law so doc-tored that nobody wants it; an employ-ers' liability bill which throws all the liability on himself and his fellow em-

Once in a while a bill is passed that promises to do something for the workingman. What becomes of 12?

As soon as an eccasion arises for gut-

[An alddress delivered at the Labor process in Rochester, N. T., on Sun-iay, Jan. 25.]

A number of years ago, one of the ment is entrusted to some official, not in sympathy with the law, whose is structions are to administer it in such a way prince to condict with "business

Could the most ignorant body of workingmen in the land turn out a poorer batch of labor laws than those manufactured by the smart lawyers to whom the workingmen entrust their interests? How much more could be accomplished if workingmen would use the money now spent upon lobbles as the campaign fund of the working. man's own party and would elect to office class-conscious workingmen who would enact effective labor laws and enforce them; who, if they found con stitutions in their way, would submit to the people such amendments as would make those constitutions con-form to the interests of the working

Now that I have mentioned the word class, perhaps it would be well to spend a few moments on that word. Have you ever observed how fearful the American workingman is of the word "class"? Tell him he belongs to the working class and he is insuited. He at once resurrects that venerable fake: "There are no classes in America. Here we are all equal." The truth of the matter is that he is afraid to face the facts. He knows that he belongs to that class of persons who have nothing but their labor to sell; he knows that, under existing conditions, he is obliged to go to some employe of labor and beg permission to live, but be is both afruid and ashamed to acknowledge the truth even to himself. He may go to his employer's church on Sunday, if he 'wishes; he may enter his employer's Bible class; his employer may even shake hands with him and call him a brother in the Lord; but he knows very well, when enters the store or factory on Mon day morning, that he and his employer belong to distinct classes and that he must keep his place, if he would keep his Job.

Every effort is made by capitalists and politicians to forestall the development of class-consciousness among the working people. Does the work-ingman demand that certain laws be enacted for his benefit? At once all the truly good people begin to shrick:
"Oh, that is class legislation! We must have none of that. The law must be made and administered for the benefit of all the people." The workingman shrinks back, abashed and terrified at his own presumption. He does not reflect that nine-tenths of the laws are class legis atlon and that they are made in the interests of the wrong class. He becomes "patriotic" and plays into the hands of his be-trayers. He turns aside from mere selfish class interests and votes for measures of "general interest," s, for measures which are of no inblinself. He votes for thing and everything that somebody else wants-tariff, fred trade, rec procity, gold standard, silver standard subsidies, benevolent assimilation-anything will do, provided it has no reference to his own needs. Because e lives in the United States, he is in tensely interested in the welfare of the Fillpinos. If he lived in the Philippine Islands, he would vote for of interest to the people of the United States. This brings us to the question What is the ballot box for? Is it s charitable institution? That is not my idea of it. The ballot was given to you in order that you might say what you want and you have no right to use it for any other purpose. Be charitable? Yes, but remember that charity begins at home. Be just before you are generous. Vote for the welfare of the nation? Certainly, but be aure that it includes your own welfare and the welfare of your wife and children. What right have you to vote for a "prosperity" which means simply the prosperity of the other fellow; which means that you and your wife and children must work from morning till night to provide him that prosper-ity; which means that your child must go ignorant in order that that other fellow's child may go abroad to com-plete its education? Is not your child entitled to as good an education as the son of John D. Rockefeller or the daughter of President Roosevelt? In there any justice in a social system which necessarily—not accidentally. which necessarily—dooms one child to a life of ignorance and hardship and opens up to another a life of ease and luxury? When you vote for the perpetuation of such a system, do not flatter yourself that you are a patriot. You are simply a cross between a food and a criminal. and a criminal.

pend entirely upon fake legislation to secure his rights? Oh, no; he gues on strike now and then, that is, he leaves his job. When you go on strike, you aim a blow at your employer's pocket, where he is strongest, and you hit yourself in the stomach, where you are weakest. In many cases a strike degenerates into a conflict between the strikers and a lot of other working-men who rush in to take their jobs, glad to get work on any terms. Some giad to get work on any terms. Some giane-throwing and rioting ensues, the militia are called out, a few rioters are abot, "peace" is restored, and the busi-ness of fleecing the workers goes or as before. If the strike is successful the workingmen get a few concessions, but they soon lose all they have gained by an increase in the cest of living or come other combatilistic trick. some other capitalistic trick.

The militia—oh, yes, I must say a few words about that. The average workingman has come to look upon the militia as his word deadly fool. But what is the militia? I should dethe militia as his most deadly, for the world.

But what is the militia? I should define it as the workingsans shooting himself and that for twe reasons:

Who calls out the militia? The governor of the state. Who gives him the power to de this? The workingsans, by their votas. Who calls out the militia? The governor of the state. Who gives him the power to de this? The workingsans, by their votas. Who are the militia? Are the companies—composed of capitalists, organised to defend their own interests? Oh, no you don't see them?

Will endure and will prove a blessing to the world.

shoulders, exposing their precious per ions to danger. The militia is comsons to danger. The militia is com-posed mostly of wage-workers. When the call of "duty" comes, they leave their work in store or factory, hasten to the scene of conflict, shoot down members of their own class in obedience to orders, and then return, only to find that their fool of an employer has discharged them for their devotion to the interests of his class.

I see that the Pennsylvania Railrone is pursuing a more enlightened policy toward its employees who served in the militia during the recent coal strike. They are to retain their posi-tions and receive pay for the time they lost in the line of duty. That will, undoubtedly, keep the flame of patriotantil they go on a little strike of their own and are called out as militia to protect the fellows who have takes their jobs.

Suppose the militia should become class-conscious and refuse to shoot workingmen, as a company in New Orleans did recently. How long would it be before the capitalists would re-fuse to pay taxes for the support of such a useless luxury?

The root of the workingman's timidity lies in his faise views on economics. He thinks he must have a boss or employer to provide him work. There have been wage-workers and employers as long as he can re and employers as long as he can remember and he assumes that this state of things has always existed and that it must continue forever. A very sight knowledge of history would show him that society has airendy mused through many forms; there have been different modes of production in different ages, each of these systems has seemed eternal to people living at the time; each form of society has passed away as new methods clety has passed away as new methods of production arose; the capitalist sys-tem is the latest product of the growth of society; it must sometime give way to a new system and the only question is, How soon will the working an end to it and what will b its place? end to it and what will be put in Were any of you supployed in one of those concerns which had to shut down recently from lack of coal? Where was your employer then? Did it not seem just then as if your real it not seem just then as it your real employer were the man down in Penn-sylvania who mines the coal? At other times, no doubt, it has looked very much as if your real employer were the men who produce the raw unterial on which you work or the machine with which you work or the building in which you work-all work-inguien like yourselves. Well, who is your employer, after all? If you are a farmer, your employers are the people who want grain and vegetables t ent; if you are a butcher or cuttle raiser, your employers are the people who want ment to cat; If you are a wants clothes to wear; if you are a carpenter, stone-mason, bricklayer are the people who want houses to live in-and the great majority of these are working people like your-arives. If the capitalistic method of production were abolished, would the demand for your labor be one whiteless than it is to-day? Would people less than it is to-day? Would people want less food, clothing and shelter than they do now? however, that you could

You say, however, that you could not run a great manufacturing estab-lishment yourself. But let us see how such concerns are actually manager to-day. In former times, the employer managed his own business; when it grew too large for him, he usually tool in a partner who understood the business as well as he did; as the business grow they bired a superintendent to take part of the burden off their hands; at present, in a business of any size, the employer manages a very small portion of the business: he lets out the greater part of it to superin tendents, foremen, bosses, under bosses, etc. In the very largest con cerns, the great corporations and trusts, everything is done by em-ployees, working for salaries or wages. The stockholders come together once a year, perhaps, to hear the report of to discuss certain questions, such as the conversion of stocks into bonds bonds into stocks-none of which have anything to do with production-and then their "work" is done. Many of them have never even seen the place where the work is carried on. Now, who should know more about the management of a business—the man who is actually working at it or the man who knows nothing about it? Could not you and your fellow workmen get together and select bosses foremen and superintendents, just as well as these stockholders? If you know of no one cise, could you not select the same men who are over you now? If they know how to make the business profitable to their present employers, could they not so organize it as to make it productive for you and for themselves? The beauty of such a system would be that you would choose your superintendent instead of his choosing you and he would have to serve your interests in order to retain his position.

Timidity has been the mark of the siave class in all ages, and has been the chief means by which the master class has held them in subjection. The shave have been led to believe that they cannot care for themselves and that their masters hold a divine commission to look after them. Kings and fendal lords and owners of chattel-slaves have all maintained that they held their position by divine right. The latest divine right is the right to rob a man by giving him wages and tak-ing what he produces. But one divine right after another has been smashed right after another has been smanhed to pierce and the divine right of the capitalist will, sooner or later, go the way of all the rest. When the workingman coines to his own, there will be but one divine right left—the divine right of manhood and womanheed and childhood. That divine right will endure and will prove a blessing to the work!

The world was wrapped in snow. And gayety and mirth were there To jest and feast and dine, To make the lagging bours fly, While streamed the bubbli And ever came the music by

But to the poet there came thoughts Which he could not escape; And suddenly above the rout And flow of sparkling grape, As from a mist, came slowly out

A wierd and awful shape.

In harmony divine.

It fixed on him a sightless gase As close his form it scanned; It spoke to him in hollow tone, It raised a withered hand And said, "I come to you alone, "For you can understand,

I am the despot of the poor-"A slow, consuming flame; "I am the messenger of want, "The barbinger of shame; "And Hunger is my name.

I walk in many humble hou 'Mid whispered hopes and fears; 'I know where men and women wet "Their daily crusts with tears; Where furrowed brows know naught

but sweat. "Through the long, treadmill years

They spurn religiou's solemn farce. "Can tracts restore the dead? "Have sermons any spothing skill.
"To case the weary head? Theology can never fill "A mouth that asks for bread.

The greed of gain has gone abroad "And truth and manhood rust, "The world but one mad impulse feels "And all for riches lust, While Riches at her charlot-wheels "Drags Honor in the dust.

"I tell you, wealth, like some grea snake, "Holds virtue in its fold;

I am the counter over which "Young girls are bought and sold. "Your kings among you are the rich; "Your chains are forged from gold."

Then as it vanished came these words, Clear as a silver chime:
"I am to all mankind a law
"Relentless and sublime. "Ro, tell the people what you saw, "That they be warned in time.

"I say to you, the land is filled "With poverty's low moans,
"And vengennee yet will pour its flood,
"I awear it by these bones; "Your brothers' and your sisters' blood "Is crying from the stones."

Then gray and wan the silent dawn Crept down the drowsy east, And sunlight cast a ghostly sheen Where wassail long had ceased. None but the poet there had seen The Skeleton at the Feast. Ernest McGaffey.

Formerly the tools of produc were simple and owned by the individ-ual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owner by the capitalists and not by the work-ers. This ownership enables the capi-talists to control the product and keep be workers dependent upon them. ,

Private ownership of the means of oduction and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and unsery of the working class, and it di-vides society into two hostile classes -the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomested between nations, indis-criminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial domin-ion abroad and enhance their suprem-But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Se-cialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher or-der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the Instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

While we declare that the develo ment of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the ti we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the projectariat. All Capitalist Parties in Saxony Agree to Combine at Polis against Social Democracy-Gealition Will Probably

The dread with which all the cap italist elements of Germany regard the dispatch says:
"The text of an agreement signed by the leaders in Saxony of the Conserva-National-Liberal, Anti-Semitic. and Agrarian parties, providing for mutual support at the forthcoming elec-tions, was made public to-day. It is specially aimed at the Socialists, and its chief feature is a piedge not to nominate candidates against each other in districts already held by one of the parties concerned and assigning the everal districts now represented by Socialists to one or other of the parties. It is expected at least to main-

"The political events of the last two years have caused the conservative elements of the country much apprehen-sion. The Socialists are generally supposed to have gained largely over their rote of 2,300,000 in 1898. Their leaders expected two months ago a gain of from fifteen to fifty sents, but the combins tion of the political parties has mod-erated these estimates, until now the best-informed men of the Social Democratic Party think they will do well if they gain ten seats."

The open coalition of the capitalisi parties will undoubtedly have the ef-fect of still further increasing the popular strength of the Social Democratic Party, the conduct of whose deputies in the Reichstag has already made it certain that here will be a great gain over the vote of 1898. The reaction coalition may succeed in preventing the Socialist representation in the Reichetag from increasing in proportion to the popular vote, but the Socialists can afford to bide their time and may well be satisfied with forcing a clear draw ing of the lines between the political representatives of the capitalist and

Text of the Tracy Incorporation Bill-If Passed it Will Put Trade Unionism Entirely Outside the Pale of the Law -A Moromement That Will Sear

NEW HAVEN, Conn. - Senato Tracy of Waterbury has introduced-"by request," as he says a bill similar in its provisions to the one introduce by Halloch of Derby in the House, as reported in The Worker last week. The provisions of the bill are so drastic and there is so strong a possibility of similar legislation being ini tiated in other states that it will be worth the while of your readers to ex-amine it carefully. The bill reads:

Trade unions or guilds, to be com-posed of men engaged in similar occupations or professions, may be in-corporated on the following condi-tions:

Bection 1. The incorporators shall consist of not less than five men, wh shall present to the Secretary of State the petition for incorporation, stating therein the name and purpose of the proposed corporation, together with its methods of action and the duties of its everal officers and the terms of admission to the same.
"Sec. 2. If the Secretary of State, upon consultation with the State's Attorney, shall deem that the methods and purpose of the proposed corpora-tion are not inconsistent with the public welfare, he shall issue the charter of incorporation desired, under the seal of the state.

Sec. 3. Any employer of labor who shall discharge an employee because of membership in a union thus incor-porated shall be subject to a fine of five hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jall for three months, or both.

"Sec. 4. Any employer of labor who shall discharge an employee because not a member of a union shall be subject to the same penalty as above prescribed for each offense.

ployer the discharge of any employee because not a member of a union, shall be subject to a fine of one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the county iail for six months, or both. "Sec. 6. If any union in the employ of any corporation engaged in public service or the supply of any article of common necessity shall propose a simultaneous cessation of labor on the part of its members, said union shall give to said corporation previous notice of said intention of not less than fourteen days, and in default thereof each member of said union shall be liable to a fine of not less than

"Sec. 8. Any labor union not income porated or any member thereof who shall be guilty of any of the offences berein-above indicated shall be liable to the penalties above prescribed for such several offenses, and in addition each individual member of such unincorporated union shall be liable in an action for trespass.

"Sec. 9. Ang person who shall by restored only by special act of the Legislature, and if not a citizen and over eighteen years of age, he shall not be admitted to civil rights except by special act of the Legislature."

DERBY, Conn., March 1.--In connection with the attack on trade unions embedded in hills introduced in the Conecticut Legislature, as noted in The Worker of this date, it is worth while to record that Representative Hallock of Derby, who introduced the while Attorney Williams, also of this city, who drew the riot-damage bill, is a Democrat who voted for McKinley, but claims still to belong to the Democratic party. INJUNCTIONS AND RIFLES.

Down in West Virginia the deputy | signed the writ, President Rameey marshals have been shooting miners for refusing to obey Judge Kellar's bianket injunction, reported in The Worker last summer, which forbade them even to hold meetings in the private hall that they had hired and paid for. Beveral miners were killed and some sixty others are now lying in prison, under charges of contempt of court, rioting, and beaven knows what other offenses, because they atood up for the right of free assemblage, guaranteed in the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. "What's the constitution be-

turn. Eleven hundred employees of the Wabash wanted an advance of wages to partly compensate for the increased cost of living and the enormous increase in the amount of work they are required to do in these days of prosperity.

The Wabash has joined with other roads in advancing freight rates. But advancing wages is quite another question. President Ramsey decided to resist the employees' demand.

President Ramsey knows his business. He did not frankly refuse the demand. He asked the employees' committee for time to consider the question, They granted him time. Within three hours, President Ramsey had applied for an injunction and got it. President Ramsey is a pillar of respectable society and one of the rustees of our national prosperity. So is Judge Adams of the United States

Circuit Court at St. Louis. Judge Adams granted the injunction without hesitation. The order was already prepared by the Wahash attorneys. Judge Adams signed it offhand, and court officers rushed away to serve copies on all the officials of the various railway brotherhoods. What's the constitution-or law or decency or common sense-between such good friends as a railway president and a federal judge?

Judge Adams granted the injunction without hesitation.

farther than appears upon the surface, that the facts of concentration are largely disguised by the organisation of many companies to carry on the affairs of a single group of capitalists. It is doubtful, however, if any but a very few who have made a careful study of somewhat inaccessible sources of information have any adequate idea of the extent to which this is true. Still less is it generally recog nized that, saide from the concentra tion in each branch of industry, the reat combinations in the various inalready justified in speaking of the existence of one great capitalist trust, rather than of the trusts as separate

Very encouraging reports were received at last Thursday's meeting of the Daily Globe Conference, which was the best attended session yet held. Among other things it may be noted that Carpenters' Union No. 300 reand would furnish fifteen men to work in preparing the hall free of charge. Union reported that this body would supply 200 volunteers to decorate the booths and do other work of the sort. The delegate of the Suspender Mukers reported that his union had bought 200 tickets and would donate a full line of union-made suspenders as prises. The Franklin Pressmen's Association reported taking 500 tickets and Electrical Workers No. 3 asked for 1,000 tickets and believed they would all be sold. The Young People's Social Democratic Club of Yorkville has taken 300 tickets. The central body of the Bohemian workingmen's societion has taken 8 000 tickets. These socie tertainments at the Fair. WHY THIS SILENCE AND

In our editorial last week entities Comrade Goebel's Surprising Claim we summed up his position, on which be seemed to speak for the majority in the National Committee, as fol-

"First, they say the National Com mittee cannot initiate a referendum on the question of headquarters.
"Hecond, they say the National Committee can remove headquarters with-"Third, they say the membership cannot initiate a referendum to over le the decision of the National Con We then asked the plain question:

"Does Comrade Gorbel speak only imself or for the Omaha major-We call on Comrades Lovett, now acting as the Quorum with headquarters at Omaka, to say whether they propose to act upon the principle laid down by Comrade Goebel, whether they intend to refuse to submit the Chicago referendum when de-manded by five or more locals in three or more states?"

We have now good reason to believe that the answer, if a candid answer could be got from these functionaries, would be an affirmative one, that they propose to stand upon the america constitutional interpretation indicated above, and that they intend to prevent if they can and, if they cannot prevent then to postpone as long as possible the placing of the headquarters question before the rank and file of the party. If they think that by a policy of ebstruction and filibustering on technical points of interpretation they can strengthen their position and have a better chance of winning when ther are finally forced to submit the question to vote, then they sadly mistake the temper of the rank and file of our party. We are not "sheept, minded eggars." We have memories that are likely to be inconvenient to those who try to "play high politics" in our move

One more thing The Worker has low to say. More than a fortnight has passed since the national headquarters received notification from more than the constitutional five locals in three states of & demand for the headquarters referendum. There has been ample time for the Quorum as decide whether it will submit this referendum and to inform the party of its decision. Yet the Quarum pre-

erves what it may regard as a digmified silence

It is not the business of the Quorum to decide whether the referendum is a wise one. It is their business to submit that referendum to vote. If they do not intend to do so, then it is their business to inform us of their inten-

The Worker is not informed how matters stand, what action, if any, the National Secretary or the Quorum or the National Committee may have taken. We are confident that the National Secretary has not been remiss in his duty, which, in this case, is merely a clerical one. For the rest. we want to know what is going on.

Our party has never found it necessary to transact its business behind closed doors. It is not well that it should begin now, The National Committeemen and the members of the Quorum are the delegates of the rank and file. They owe it to the rank and file to let us know what they are doing.

The way in which the Democratic politicians join in naming John Mitchell as a vice-presidential candidate must be highly amusing to the mine workers' leader. One set of ticketmakers wants Hearst at the head, another wants Parker, another wants Tom. Dick or Harry-but always a capitalist politician; but they agree beautifully that the empty and doubtful honor of second place should be given to Mitchell, as a sign that they "recognize Labor"-or, in Hearst's lucky phrase, "to establish with the leaders of Labor relations similar to those which the Republican party has established with the leaders of the trusts." The reputation of a labor leader is a most valuable asset-to the politicians who can persuade the labor leader into leading them his name. For us, we see no reason to doubt the sincerity of President Mitchell's declaration that this use of his name is unauthorized and that he has no thought of going into politics.

things to be fair, believing that only by the hearing of both sides can a of the Social Democratic Party of Wiswise division on any question be renched. > Editor of The Worker:-Comrade Goobel's letter in last week's besuc contained the following relative to my apinion, while acting as chairman, upon the question of referendum on choice of headquarters: "The fact is, Comrade Carey admitted on the floor that he made two decisions, several hours apart, and each opposite to the other, some members claiming they heard neither, the matter being thus is in error as to "two decisions several hours apart." The fact is that willie for an opinion on the question whether the choice was a subject of obligatory or optional referendum. I was unable to read the fine print and a part was rend aloud. At first, judging from the part read, I thought and stated that it was applional. Immediately a discus-sion arose; and again immediately the whole of the countitution relative to referendums was read. I believe by Comrade Barnes, 1 then declared as my settled opinion that it was obl! gatory. None then questioned it. It is absurd to state that this occurred "several hours apart." Nothing interdiscussion, lasted perhaps ton or fit-teen minutes. Had I been able to have read the portion of the constitution relative to the subject, my opinion would have been rendered instantly. In concluding-let us all be calm.

THE SPIRITUALITY

OF BREAD AND BUTTER.

By Peter E. Burrowes.

How is it that we Americans, | hastening back from over the trackshrewdest of all citizens, keen, alick and with almost brutal commonsense, do nevertheless content ourselves with ancient empty windy words as to the things of Better Life. Why go we shuffling and saidling through time talking about our souls and our spirits and our characters without ever look-ing for a clue to what we may chance to mean by these words, or what such things in themselves may be?

This slipshoddiness which does not equire into the meaning of words that carries a tremendous weight of church mortgages, it endures sermons of vast and cloquent irrelevancy to everything it restly appreciates. It subscribes It really appreciates. It substant donstes and silently node its to sayings stupendously out of date or marfellously "misunderstood, and it niffies along about its own character as if the nine letters of the word did not constitute all of the things that can be demonstrated, so far as any me knows or dares to try.

This taking for granted of an inner spirituality and character without insisting upon knowing what the worls mean, has come about either because the words mean nothing, or because the time has not yet come for knowing derstanding grows, like the trust, on collectivist conditions, and that it will take quite a mature. Socialist expari-ence, a long regime of unlimited bread and butter, to usher in the age of spirituality.

We opine a few things about the soul, but with a very weak voiced perhapsness, that prefers leaving the subject to the clergy, not because we think of ourselves as foolish and them as wise, but because we scent an incompatibility between the old-fashioned soul and source the twentlefr century and that-if we have a soul at all it is one of the old style. We have a benithy nort of faith that this century, without theological disputes, will shake a lot of frings and buttons and feathers off the old and reveal to us a new soul without frills that belongs to this world and will always stay with and feed upon temporal bread and butter. The word spirituality, as I use and understand it, signifies the condition of the personal life while it is censcious of subjecting or adjusting itself to the life of the world; and, secondly, tille it is willing and doing with the life of the world. The single mind is entirely formed by the whole life without and not by any single agencies; and thus the sum of man's wisdom is to know his instructor. It is as he socks to become acquainted and to got into consradeship and he one with that instructor that he is spiritualizing. This feeling for light, identity and life staide, this effort to become conscious ontside, this exort to become the of and be in co-operation with the grenter Me outside, though hidden beneath a mountain of theological rub bish has been the real thing of all deand the vital, valued entences of the prophets are on this line. Only they shoved the man outside too far outside, they sent him to heaven and they called him God and have been feeding him on words in stead of bread and butter.

I will tell you how far I have got in this matter and leave you to get farther, for a continuous and unbroken thinking passed on from one to other, is, next to bread and butter itself, the oundation of my spirituality.

It is with regret that I, a labor philosopher, figd myself forced to talk and think about labor in the third person, for I assume myself to be labor think-preserving and satisfying itself; that is spirituality to the private mind, to the day's man who seeks to make his own of that higger selfishness which as The physical force of man thinking often knocks him down. The thing that the capitalist and his hirelings cannot understand is the spirituality of politics; yet he imagines that the soul within binself which devours a handred men a day is a stremons spirituality that shall go to beaven.

An "over-there" spirituality may have served men's purposes in the ages of despair; but who shall say that those ages are not gone by. Going by they are for the Worker; but for the vannire man what a terrific and mad hone in that beeven with which he miraged his slaves into content-t. No. The heaven of the new soul is here, and its spirituality is rational collective selfishness and its gospel is bread and butter. What is that rational selfishness for a view of which John Smith, philosopher, pletist and man, has been so long wearly climbing the byways of sinuous and rugged thought; concerning which he has been misunderstanding, deceiving and damning himself triangularly, un-til, as he draws nigh to the end of his strength now, he hardly knows which is John Smith: whether it be that philosopher, that pletist, or that misunderstood man, the physical John Smith with digestive organs and other persistent little instruments which keep up or down, together, the old tune out whether we be one or three men," out whether we be one or three men," anith the philosopher. "Whether we are here or over yonder," adds the pictist, "has really yet to be agreed upon." "The dispute which ye have been conducting for ages," says physical John, "has not jet been even well commenced; while L, who have been supplying the oil to light yet in year wranches as now at last nearly brased. wrangles am now at last nearly burned out. He still ye fluttering guideless wings and let me say say say."

The spiritual fire is tired for want is solidity; like the deve of Noah, it is less wastes to rest upon the fingers, and come into the cupboard of plain John Smith. It is plainly no longer by running away from himself that manrunning away from himself that man-kind can experience the spiritual life. Plainly that faith is truest and most trustful of final integrities which easts its anchor deeply and fearlessly into the thing that is most surely seen in us, of us, all, everywhere, and at all times—the honest selfish Rational selfahness on the first actually cost so much in hard cash is analysis yields a cry for morality. This the miracle of American society. It cry for morality calls back the winged carries a tramandous weight of church pfagitives from celestial canaiderations to plain questions of collectivism inbor, properly and duty. This leads to ordering sets of harnesses for the cherubim and scraphim and also yoking them to the mills and ploughshares of the Smiths.

.The mere thinker has been always an over-valued man among us, the man I mean who lives all the time in his own head, or the head of the whence he comes with his butterfly wings as substitutes for the shoulders of the field oxen. Books, books, books many a million but they come not near the life of man the Worker, they lie barren on the shelves of guilty leisure Books, many's million, but the days of men who work, and the eyes of men who work are closed to them. Plain John Smith bath this fo tell ye: Put less of your thinking into your think-less of it behind and less of it before you, try the moral fecundity of realism, try the spirituality of Bread and Butter for all, and the gates will swing open to the magnificence of new thought. Head work is, after all, but a percentage of the work of life. In the world's final balance sheet books will count for no more than leaves of the notted plant that flourish ed on the year of their unblication Attempt, therefore, no longer, ye me thinkers, to lend us. We look if something better balanced than the

To dud that welfare which contains me and all the others, this is the great truthing; to find that largest welfare which I alone may contain, this is the great fulsification. But to find welfare this is always the living way, the suiritual life which shall be spent upon the highways of the world's industrial democracies. The spiritual life shall no longer ait down at the college master's feet in the conservatories where they grow winter roses of the mind, nor upon altar pinnacies ginting through clouds of incess on the abashed face of prostrate John Smith. Its temple shall be the laker's alop of the collectivity and its college shall be the counting house thereof, Spirituality will no longer be looked for as the intensification of one person-a specialized straight and fine man. Johannus Smithius you are a spiritual fakir. Spirituality never yet t under any single waistcoat, it is differential, it is not a differentiating thing. It is democracy through and through, the democracy ica has been scandalizing for a century. The nearest approach to the office of the spiritual man that I know of to-day is the office of a judge in purt of equity, the man who stands between the laws already written by old robbers and the laws which the new robbars want to write, because he is considering equity, because he does so from the common understanding and because he is considering questions of the property and infercourse of men. It is on matters of intercourse, use said property that the moral, rational, spiritual and socially thish mind should curage itself.

Rightly tethering the mind to public uses, this is the glory of the api-ritual man. For the mind is a meritual man. For the mind is a me-chanical subordinate that will grind out its tunes of logic from any stump with a loof on it, as the history of the intellectuals abundantly proven. Let us tie it then to this solid, primary, polar peg-the sound soldshorm of John Smith and Company. What though Mr. Somure Prock protests and says you should drive the pag in the "over there" outside the whole; heed mitted the crime of separating spirituality from selfishness.

Riessed is the man who same that the basis of the new faith is to be found in the bread and butter of John Smith in the plural number, and in the wholesome selfishness of every little John and Johanna that finds its whole interest therein.

Talk not to me of your phantom There is more bonor of eternal truth, more reverence meet for true delty in this full casted faith of John other subject for philosophy than the labor, property and duty of to-day, which recognizes no basis for the spi-ritual life but the materialistic comforts and luxuries of the hody and which knows of no spirit holler than the holy spirit of that reasonable selfishness that finds its welfare in the whole. Upon that which is, cast thy self unfinchingly, my brother. Selfishness is here, and it is going to school; 'It is not an instinct but a wisdom. This is as far as I and the proletariat have gone. Spirituality is a rational consecrated race selfishness Bread and butter, occupation and the me of the mind are its primary de-mands. It is not a whim of weeping and sympathy in the personal emo tions: It is not a love nor a senting but a growth of appreciation raceward, as to what is best for us and therefore me. FIGHT.

By Horace Traubel,

Do not apologize for your client. Do ot shuffle and shrink when labor sins. sin some more. Labor hates the haif advocate. It looks to you in the thick and thin of hattle. You are to be in the right place at the right time. You are not to come arguing that you should not come. You are not to go to the front and dispute the virtue war with the acting general. fight is on and you know your post. You are not to throw down your arms nd tell your enemy that you love him. you are fighting this fight as much for his sake as your own. So you will love him. And you will fight. Labor is not making a demand based on superiorities or virtues. It is making a demand based on addition, sub-traction and division. It is building its demand on the multiplication table. It not asking more money because if asking for more money because it has played a good Samaritan sketch in a randeville show. It is not proving that it deserves more money because it olserves the ten commandments or obeys the laws of the state. The multiplication table is also a virtue. And Labor accepts its virtue. But it is not a blanket virtue covering the whole irea of excellence. And to you who object to sentiment we quote the multiplication table. We will meet you with any weapon We will meet you want of your choice. We will meet you way up where the clouds clash. We will meet you way down where the roots fasten themselves in the soil. We will miret you on the surface of the earth. We will meet you in your parlor, your office, or on the street. We will meet you with an arithmetic or a scripture We will turn arithmetic into acripture and acripture into arithmetic. Your We will follow choice is your own. We will follow where you lead. YALE LECTURES: THE CITIZEN IN HIS RELATION TO THE INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM. By Heary C. Potter, Bishop of New York. Scribner's:

When first glancing at these lectures which the Scribners publish in took form a Socialist is reminded, before he opens the rolume, of a scene in one of Flaubert's novels, where an old maidservant is introduced who has been summoned at a meeting of the Agricul-tural Union in order to receive for fathful service on a farm, a silver medal of the value of seventy-five cents. After describing her wrinkles, knotted joints, back bent with toll, brain stupesled with unremitting labor, her blunted feelings benumbed to everything except her daily toil-Plau-hert condenses the whole picture hert condenses the whole picture into one sentruce: "Thus stood in the presence of these well-to-do old fogie

No at themits to mend a supersence a workingmas or labor student expects super-cilious ness when reading college lectures on the industrial situation. But it would be not the industrial situation. be error to dismiss this book with this spirit. The Bishop of New York is not an "old fogy," but endeavors as look with supercilious criticism at the companies. He included the companies of a thousand years of labor. He iries to make a fair companies. The companies of the country so as representative of all classes," not to to look fairly at the present opposing class ideas of labor and capital. His thought still shows the echo of the trumpet blast of Saint Simon, that the mercantile, professional, literary and governing class exist as agents only, and should be as servants merely to the great producing class. The labored consideration which the Bishop endeav-ors to show and give to the claims of the working class deserves to be respectfully considered by them.

As many of the renders of The Worker will not have opportunity to road these "Yale Lectures," we will give some extracts to show the trend of the book. On the industrial situation the Bishop tells the Yale students (p. 11): "It is doubtful whether the average human happiness (among serfs and slaves) was not as high an, if not sometimes higher, than that of the average life of the toiler or artisan in the foul and over-crowded homes of the poor to-day. After stating the fact that wages from 1800 to 1801 increased about 60 per cent, Bishop Potter refers to the fact that the "rate of interest has decreased" to show that labor gets an inreasing part from capital, and sets this up in favor of capital. But he omits to mention the watering of stock, owned by private corporations, the stendy increasing capitalization of railshow that the total amount which the capital class receives from society in-creases faster than the total wage of the producing class increases. But, however, after setting forth in many pages the capitalist side, the Bishop, OD DARP OU. MAYE!

"The workingman insists that notwithstanding all that can be urged as to the rise of wages in recent years, the condition under which the working man labors makes his position incre ingly uncatisfactory and and in every real sense he is right.

The objections of the Bishop to Notalism may be briefly stated.

It would seem that the first and last clauses of the above quotation is-volve a contradiction. But if they do not, the first above that the Bishop, nothwithstanding the church to which he may belong and the creed he pro-fesses to believe and the God he thinks ie worships, is in truth, in fact, and in practice what Ituakin calls a on of "Getting-on."

Socialists betieve in competition for honor, respect, fame, emulation in the ity, but not competition to oldain the necessaries of life. The Socialist can prove that co-operation affords not less but more stimulants to individuality and to the truest elements that make up manhood and character, as do war and statesmanship which imply social inte-gration and not the brute struggle of the savage.

Our present barbarous competition for the necessaries of life countries unselfish and noble feeling to neglect and shame and gives honor, dignity, and social power to the mere possessors of gold.

The Socialists hope a civilization which will cause industrial duty to be honored (as the army honors duty), faithful work to be rewarded, instead of the bondholder, and honor and dignity to the producers of wealth, instead of to the holders of gold. In short, we lay down Bishop Potter's buck with a wonder after saying so much that he expresses his belief in a system which, as Mathew Arnold says, "Materializes the upper classes, vulgarizes the middle classes," and brutalizes the lower classes," instead of a belief in Socialism, a system which will cause duty to be honored, labor to be respected, and moral char-acter to be appreciated in this world, EDWARD W. Socialistic sentiment is plainly grow-ng among labor unionists throughout the country, but it is still wanting a majority of the votes in large repre-sentative assemblages of organized in-lor. One and a principal cause is that the union leaders prefer the status que for reasons of regard for their own interests. They have built up great fighting machines which give public and a livelihood. The upon the maintenance of warlike con ditions in the field of industry. the labor force of the country to be able to dictate to employers the terms upon which work can be had, Employers may remain in competition if they choose, but if monopoly is established here through combination, then labor monopoly will join with then labor monopoly will Join with capital monopoly in taking from the public at large what they may both re gard as reasonable returns, no matter how the same may appear to the public at large. This is a situation and prospect which appeals strongly to me who have fought their way up in th strife and organization of labor and now possess a lendership which commands powers and dignities, if not emoluments, unapproached in the world of industry save only by the great captains of capital. Accordingly they do not care lightly to entertal proposals of Industrial change which promise to cut the ground from under the fect of a militarist labor regime, and their influence in the represents tive assemblages of the labor of course, very great. Thel in regard to Socialistic projects must resemble closely those with which the professional Soldier nes of international arbitration which promise to be effective enough to put an end to war.

FOR MUNICIPAL BAKERIES IN ITALY.

The city of Catania in Sicily has carried by a heavy majority a referendent proposed by the Socialists in favor of the establishment of municipal bak-eries. The announcement of the result was celebrated by a great parade, 20,000 persons marching with torches and red dags. The parade was fol-lowed by a public meeting at which the Socialist Deputy De Fettle under ered an eloquent address.

THE CRITICS CRITICIZED.

In my somewhat extended career in the Socialist movement I have made it a rule to ignore personal abuse wherever possible. But there are some occasions where allence ceases to be a virtue, and where a Socialist actively engaged in party work owes it to himself and to his comrades to repel a victous slander aimed against him, although the task may be unpleasant one of such occasions is the comgadely tribute paid to me by Clarence Smith in the "American Labor Union Journal," and reproduced in the last issue of The Worker:

lasue of The Worker:
"Comrade Hillquit of New York," observes C. Smith, "was one of the smooth, alippery kind, who impressed ien as a man who althe Committeet ways had a 'job' or a 'trick' to spring on the meeting. He enjoyed the distinction of being the only one of his kind at the big gathering.

The tone and spirit of the statement have been sufficiently characteri the editor of The Worker, and I am thankful to him that he relieved me of the necessity to go into this phase of the question. I will now confin myself to the merits of the statement

It will be noticed that the charges against me are not substantiated by any statement of facts, they are based purely on Mr. Smith's impression of the impression I made on "the Com-mitteemen." I dislike to interfere with this most approved and convenient method of character assessination, but method of character assassination, but 1 nm, nevertheless, compelled to disturb Mr. Smith's innocent contemplation of impressions, and to call his attention to the more prosaic facts of the case. The National Committee had four principal subjects to deal with: The question of fusion with the U. L. the party's attitude towards the rival trade union organizations, the election of a National Secretary, and the location of the party headquarters On the first two subjects my "job" consisted in drafting both resolutions which were adopted by the Committee unanimously and without as much as unanimously and without as much as a change of a comma. In the election of National Secretary I spoke and roted for Mailly because I thought him the best qualified of all men who were nominated for the position.

On the question of the headquarters I spoke and voted against Omaha, because I thought and still think that the cause I thought and still think that the election was not made with a view to the best interests of the party as a whole, and that Omaha is about the most illogical and improper place to which the headquarters of a prole-tarian movement could be consigned.

lected. I moved that it be submitted to a general vote, together with Indian-apolis, which had received the next highest vote, and finally when you, Mr. Smith, as chairman of the meetis to be transacted and it is hoped all i ing. made the now famous ruling that no referendum of any kind would be submitted by the National Committee on the change of headquarters, regardless of the express constitutional pro-vision to the contrary, regardless of the opposite ruling made by the chairman on the previous day and regardless of the express resolution of the previous meeting that Omaha be submitted to referendum, I objected to your action as strongly as I knew how. I made no secret of my views on the subject. I opposed what I considered your arbitrary and unsocialistic ac-tions openly and right on the floor of nber of the unfortunate

And how did the majority act? In the first place, they held a caucus to determine on their actions at the meeting. Now a caucus meeting may be very natural in an old-party convention, but in a representative Socialist gathering it is the most vicious and dangerous thing. Let me explain that to you in my own smooth way, Comrade Emith. The distinction between an old-party convention and a Social-ist convention is this—that in one a machine dominates, and the will of the "bosa" is substituted for the judgemnt of the delegates, in the other each delegate acts in accordance with the Arkansas is in good shape for Socialist agitation.

on a majority of the delegates, I decides all questions in camera and re-duces the proceedings on the floor of the Committee to a mere farce. After you had held your caucus and decided upon your line of action, the Commit-teemen from Masanchusetts, New York, Pennayivania, Wisconsin, Illinois. Indiana, and Kentucky might as well have left the meeting; these states were really no more represented in the Committee: no amount of logic, exhortation, or persuasion on the part of their representatives could after the pre-arranged plans of the majority; it was "no use arguing," as was rightly remarked by one of you. Comrade Goebel, who calls the caucus a "get-ting together," says that it was entirely spontaneous. But just imagine fifteen men "spontaneously" conceiving the idea of "getting together" in a certain room at a certain time, without the knowledge of the remaining delegates, and there deciding on a cer-tain apontaneous policy. If we accept the decirine of inspiration such a phenomenon is certainly quite plaus-ible, but under ordinary circumstances these things are arranged by one more "leaders" of the movement, and the others follow. Do you now see where the "job" comes in, Comrade Smith?

After your caucus was held, and it was still feared that the intelligence of some delegates might give out at the most critical moment, it was ar-ranged that Comrade Mills should give the signal for intelligent voting. The signal consisted of the enbalistic formula, "Vote it down boys."

Comrade Goebel again says that this was done "after Comrade Hillquit and other members of the minority had in-troduced so many amendments, sub-stitutes, etc., that it would have puzzied a Philadelphia lawyer to know how to vote in order to get the result he wished, let alone a member of the working class, more used to the black smith's hammer than 'Cushing's Manual'." In plain words this would imply: First, that the National Comamith's mitteemen did not tidesess sufficient inteiligence to understand what the mo-tion under discussion was and had to get the tip from Comrade Mills; second, that Comrade Mills knew exactly what result those Committeemer wished to get; third, that although th Committeemen did not know what the motions, amendments, etc., were about. they nevertheless had to assume that the motions, amendments, etc., offered by the minority were wrong, and the riews of Comrade Mills were right. If the cancus meeting had reduced the National Committee to the "majority faction," the voting by signal practically reduced the entire meeting to Comrade Mills. Do you now see the "trick." Comrade Smith?

Comrade Goebel now seeks to justify the action of the "majority" by an alleged complimey to "whitewash the Local Quorum, retain headquarter in St. Louis, perlians re-elect the old Secretary and adopt a namby-pamby resolution concerning fusion," but this statement, like your statement. Comrade Smith, is not based on facts, but is a deliberate "impression." The Local Quorum stood in no need of "whitewash," they candidly and publicly admitted their approval of fusion with the U. L. P. and they were no charged with any other offense; there was but one vote for St. Louis as headquarters, and Comrade Greennum was not a candidate for re-siec tion and was not placed in nomina tion by anyone. As to the "namby-pamby" resolution on fusion, the reso-lution actually adopted by the Committee unanimously was prepared by sub-committee of five, and four of se (Berger, Barnes, Mahoney, and myself) were members of the ity" compirators.

Having saved the party from the consultacy to "willtswash" the Local Quorum, your "majority" proceeded to remove the headquarters without a day's delay, without giving the Sec-retain-elect the opportunity to attend to the removal or to take over from his predecessor the party's books and effects in an orderly manner. Why? Because St. Louis was such dangerous ground that its influence might have corrupted the party if the headquar ters were retained there a few days longer, says Courade Goebel. This is disingenous. Local St. Louis was the first to adopt resolutions against fusion and to demand the removal of the Local Quorum, and the local party organ, the "St. Louis Labor," was always strongly opposed to fusion. The real reason for your fiction was to put the party before an accomplished fact. and to frustrate any attempt to submit the question of headquarters to a

These, Comrade Smith, are the facts as shown by the minutes of the meeting and the statements of the majority delegates; and if you are bound to pick out the "smooth and slippery" among your fellow delegates and to fasten "jobs" and "tricks" on them, kludly revise your choice to conform to the

The old-party politicians' wonder I taught them not to hope that such dis how the Socialists carry on their party which the Republicans and Demo crats have to draw on the great capl talists for funds.

No one works for either of the old parties without expecting to be paid for it-paid with a few glasses of beer, perhaps, or with five dollars on election day, or with a nomination or an appointment to some office, little or big, according to the services rendered. Considering the individualistic capitalist principles for which the old par ties stand, there is no reason why any one should work for them gratis.

With our party it is quite otherwis Where the old parties declare individual gain to be the ideal and aim of life and regard the man who gets nething for nothing as the type of the successful man, our party's aim is the social good and our ideal of the life that is worthy of a manly man or a womanly woman is the life of enthusiastic thought and action in the service of common interests. As the practise of the old parties is in accordance with their base ideas so is ou practise in accordance with our prin-

We- have some paid men in the service of our party. To men who give up their whole time to the service of the party as secretaries, organizer les' wages out of funds provided by the dues and voluntary contributious of the mass of working people who democratically select these men as their agents. But these paid servants of the party are comparatively few. For the greater part of the work of education and organization which the party carries on is done by volunteers, without reward or even praise or rec ognition. We have many who serv the cause for meager pay as writers and speakers who could live in luxury by selling their talents to the service of capitalism. But more admirable than these are the men who, after their ten hours' hard daily labor in the shop, give their evenings and Sundays to party work-serving on com mittees, arranging meetings, tramping the streets and tenement stairs to dis tribute leasiets, doing all the needful but ingiorious work, calmly accepting the ridicule and abuse they get even from fellow workingmen-"working men with capitalist minds"-satisfied if they see some result from their labors, desirous only of doing their duty, wishing not that they might be rewarded but only that they might be able to do greater service to the cause

It is doubtful if ever in the world's history there has been anything to equal the devotion of the militant rank nd file of the Socialist movement of to-day. It is doubtful if even the history of the Christian church in the early centuries of its persecuted propaganda has anything finer to offer Certain it is that no movement in the modern world can command a tithe of the quiet and patient and personally unselfish individual effort and individual sacrifice that now gathers around the Red Flag and expresses its "Workingmen of the world, unite! there is nothing mysterious about them. The difference in practice be

For example, a year ago the scientific Socialist had little to suit him in by-products on the American continent, with a firm footbold in Europe and Asia, and with a treaty by which it divides the world-market with the only possible competitor worthy of consideration, the Russian oil monopoly; the stock of this company is worth about $800,000,000 and its holders receive about $50,000,000 every year in dividends:

SOCIALISTS WHO

NEED EDUCATING. There are two types of Socialists who need to be educated. They are equally dangerous to the work the party has in hand. One thinks that any one who calls himself a Mocialist and votes the ticket is all right and perfectly safe as an organizer or teacher for the party. The other is forever scenting heresy and fighting personal battle in the name of party discipline. The former is the sort of Socialist who would welcome a victory in city, state or nation by the party regardless of whether the voters enthusiasm or thoughtless contagion would be a calamity. Socialism can successfully use a victory only when it comes as the result of intelligent knowledge of the Socialist position and a clear-cut recognition of the fact that the party is lining up for a revolution which must place the machinery of the state in complete control of the ing class.

To win on any other condition would be to capture a fort without being sure of the fighting quality or loyalty of the men in your ranks.

stern, determined, unyielding members of the dispossessed class and their loyal supporters. Revolution is not child's play. Our revolution will have to overturn a power tremendously in-trenched. No holiday parade will pre-pare for standing like a stone wall behind the workers, whatever comes,

Hence the necessity of gnarding the movement. The best way to guard it, however, is to push aggressively the kind of Socialism which properly educates and labor in season and opt to make such workers and members as do not appear fully to realize the meaning of our platform awake to its vital im-

One thing Socialists need to learn from the churches, and that is "how not to do it." The church fought heresy a good many centuries, while every martyr it has disciplined.

The national thought of the world heresy has flourished the more with that thinkers, giving the subject attention the world over, have reached pracevery page-almost in every paragraph -of this sheet. No doubt it will show spots of weakness for some time, here and there, but it is trying to reform— that is evident.

Again, an example: Some time less year a young speaker passed through Denver who thought he was a Social ist. He was not, as all the locals he struck gave him to understand with emphasis by the vigorous discussion following all his talks. He saw the point and proceeded to find out what Socialism really is. He emerged after six months a good, theoretic Socialist and has, in the estimation of some of our strictest workers, done remark ably good work the past six months. Perhaps there is more for him to learn, still, but the movement can well afford to continue his education. Now, had the "liberais" had thei way, the "Appeal" would have been in discriminately commended, the single tax "Socialist" would have been re ceived with calm approval and the movement been weakened instead of strengthened by agencies which should have been powerful aids. On the con-trary, frank, even flerce, criticism has done great good.

young speaker. Would the movement be so well off to-day? The party must be kept clean-cut. Its platforms and conditions of membership must be uncompromising. Of-ficial activity should be reserved for those in sympathy with the full revolutionary program and uncompre ing tactics, but the main dependence must be upon the educational power of the truth and free discussion.

Even when serious mistakes are made, as in California's fusion with the Union Labor party, the wise policy is that which has been generally pur sued, namely, kindly criticism and gument. Under this policy the Callfornia comrades are nearly all back in line and could not again be persuaded o make such a mistake.

When a party has back of its prin ciples absolute science, the logic of events and the mass of the literature, need not resort to the methods of old-fashioned theology to keep members true to those principles.

The other type of Socialist mention is the nort which has disrupted the R. L. P. into a thousand fragments. It issumes, in the name of a "clear mor ment," the right of personal censor-ship. Any one with personal gradges or animosition may, by using the scienlific phrases, find a righteous acre for his own pettiness and be supported by a certain group who are always ready for a fight in the name of working class movement." "How de you keep the effort to educate in class iousness from degenerating into petty personalities and suspicion?" the writer asked probably the best posted member of the Socialist Labor Party in Colorado. "It is hard to tell." he answered; "that has siways been the curse of our party." / There is little danger that it will: permanently curse the Socialist Party, but the first show of it should be duly rebuked.

The importance of a clear-cut Social is too great to have it identified with unworthy suspicions and the nar-rowness of personslities. — Colorado and socialist Party of America in Ba-tional convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of In-ternational Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the work-ing class and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the ob-ject of comparing the progress of some ject of conquering the powers of gove-ernment and using them for the purcon of transforming the present sys-em of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ewnership by the entire peo-

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individusi worker. To-day, the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the expitalists and not by the work ers. This ownership enables the capi-talists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responible for the ever increasing uncertain ty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it di-rides acciety into two hostile classes videa the capitalists and wage-workers The once powerful middle class is rap idly disappearing in the mill of com-petition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press. the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and so-cial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, warn are fomented between nations, india criminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanc tioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial domin ion abroad and enhance their suprem

But the same sconomic causes which cialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher or-der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Itemphican, the bourgeois public ownreship parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political repreentatives of the capitalist class

collective powers of capitalism, by con-stituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the properties

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also de-pend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost import ance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by mon-opolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improve-ment of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the receiver in the reduction of the receiver in the reduction in the receiver in the reduction in the receiver in the reduction of the reducti of the worker in the product of labor.

8. State or antiqual insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment sickness and want old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class. 4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing.

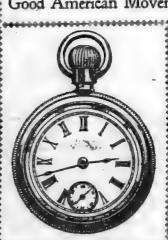

6. Equal civil and political rights for nen and women. The initiative and referendum. proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents. But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the catablishment of the Co-opera-tive Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an at-tempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utili-ties for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration

significant dispatch from Washington, which we quote in part:

"The Republican National Committee, through its chairman, Senator Hanna, yesterday took up the question of preventing the further spread of Socialism, with a Massachusetts manufacturer, who came on here for the purpose of explaining the features of a pian which has been devised by certain well known men of character and standing in a community which last year elected a Socialist Mayor and Bocialist activity.

"The scheme is said to be an educational movement against Socialism; not an ante-election program, but a continual bombarding of its doctris and teachings from one year's end to another, thus preventing it from being purely a political idea, sprung within weeks of an election. Hanna takes kindly to the program. Moody, whose home city of Haverhill has been one of the strongholds of Socialism for several years is said to approve it and has volun-teered to talk about it WITH POST-MASTER GENERAL PAYNE, WITH WHOM HE IS ASSOCIATED IN THE CABINET. Payne is vice-chair man of the Republican National Com-

"The fact is that the growth of the Socialist movement in Massachuseits and other enlightened communities has rather alarmed the Republican leaders, who are anxious to head it off.

"Senator Spooner of Wisconsin sauctions the plan. • • • The gentlemen who are fathering the plan are not cranks. They are men of repute, and if their names were given they would be instantly recog-nized as LEADING BUSINESS MEN

RESPECTIVE CITIES.

"They propose to have a certain number of well-informed gentlemen who have made a deep study of So-cialism, and who claim to be able to expose its fallacies and unsound doc-trines, travel about the country, and other Equally Effec-TIVE MEANS meet the arguments of the other side. • • • • "The gentlemen now in Washington on this matter argue that Socialism is nothing but confiscation, pure and simple, and they say this fact, if prop-erly used. TOGETHER WITH erly used, TOGETHER WITH OTHER MATERIAL THEY HAVE IN HAND, will be sure to sound THE DEATH KNELL OF THE SOCIAL-IST PARTY IN AMERICA."

Readers of The Worker, this is a challenge to you. It is a threat against you. It is a warning for you.

Observe, Senator Hanna takes his counsel with the manufacturers and the leading business men. It is for the meak and act for the workers.

The Massachusetts papers print a | the backers of the National Economic League, which we have already exposed. That organization and the National Association of Manufacturers and the Civic Federation, in their various ways, are working together to "sound the death knell of Socialism" and then to go on and crush or emas-

culate every organization of labor. Postmaster General Payne is active in this business, too. He has "other equally effective means" of dealing with us when their "campaign of education" fails. Do you remember Madden?

But let them try suppression if they dare. It will react against them. "We will not retract. We will not equivocate. And we will be heard.

We welcome their campaign of education. We have truth on our side and truth always courts investigation. They will publish malicious slanders and plausible misrepresentations. They have money to hire intellectual prostitutes to write at their bidding and to pay for printing and circulating their writings in millions of copies. We must meet and answer them.

They have money. We have men. Are YOU one of the men we can count

You ask, What can I do? You can join the organization of the Socialist Party-called in New York the Social Democratic Party. You can induce other Socialist voters to join. You can take an active part in the conduct of party affairs. This much it is your duty to do at once, if you deserve the name of Socialist.

You can belp to organise public meetings in your vicinity where Socialist speakers can explain the principles of Socialism and challenge the enemy to meet us in debate.

You can distribute Socialist literature. Get a few copies of this issue of The Worker-as many as you can afford and can handle-and give them to your neighbors and shopmates. Comrade Sieverman Replies to New Haven Preacher.

Discussing Militia and Trade Unions, Socialist Speaker Denounces the Sort of Patriotism that Doliberatoly Sets Men Killing One Another-"If This So Treason, Make the Most of It."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 1. Bev. Newman Smythe, pastor of Cen-ter Church, one of the most wealthy congregations in this city, recently ade severe attacks upon the trade unious in an address to the New Haven Chamber of Commerce. The Haven Chamber of Commerce. The New Haven Trades Council adopted some caustic resolutions in reply, and Dr. Smythe expressed a desire to address a meeting of the Council and ex dress a meeting of the Council and ex-plain his position to the unionists of the city. The Trades Council extended an invitation to him to do so, and a meeting was arranged for Thursday evening, Feb. 26, at Union Hall.

Although the Rev. Dr. Smythe did not wish for a debate, it was under-stood that a general discussion would follow his address and the Trades Council invited Comrade Frank A. Sieverman, Organizer for the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, to present the union side in the discussion

An audience of five hundred was present. After the meeting Dr. Smythe expressed himself as exceed-ingly gratified with the close and respectful attention and kindly treat-ment which was accorded him. The address and reply occupied over two hours and it is therefore impossible to give even a review of all the argu-ments on both sides.

"Constructive Conspiracy."

Dr Smythe attacked the boycott a illegal and in referring to the article in the constitution of the Brotherhood of Painters which prohibits the payment of sick or death benefits on ac count of the injury or death of members resulting from militia service, ex cept in foreign war, he said:

"Now, gentlemen, that article of that constitution stirs mightily in me I will not say the old Adam, but it does stir the old soldier in me. • • • "But there is one thing which before Almighty God and in that love of my which came to me from m; milk, I have a right to do and "I have a right publicly to ask you you who in all your constitutions have no such articles—to ask you in the interest of organized labor and as good citizens, to repudiate that article and to repudiate it because, although it is not treason—treason under our constitution being defined as an over act in the time of war-nevertheless it its spirit and construction such an ar-ticle against the militia and the coun try is treasonable, and under the con n law might be regarded as a con structive conspiracy against the majesty of the state."

Sieverman's Roply.

eathusiasm by the following reply on these points:
"Let us understand this also, that the gentleman uttered a truth, or at least a part truth, when he said that the strike and boycott are not your only weapons. No, there is anothe weapon and the gentleman indicated it in perhaps a roundabout way. I will give it to you just as plain and straight as any of it: It is the ballot! (Applause.) Let us understand that. If to-day there is a law on the statute books that makes boycotting illegal that does not justify us in concluding hung John Brown! (Applause.) They hung John Brown according to law. According to law they hung John Brown, and the gentieman himself went down South to accomplish that which John Brown was hung for trying to do. Oh, yes, we understand that boycotting is against the law, but against the law. More is the pity we do not all understand that. "Give the Flag Meaning."

"We do not all understand that a we strike, so must we vote, not only be union men three hundred and sixtyfour days in the year but also on th three hundred and sixty-fifth. Give the flag meaning. Give the flag that sanctity which it is entitled to by ris ing in your might as citizens and cast-ing your ballot for the protection of your homes; for the full product of your labor; by sending to the Logis lature men conducting campaigns upon platforms pledging them to serve the interests of the working class. And when that is done, oh, we will ask the courts to pass again upon the validity of the boycott. We will ask the courts to look once again into the laws bearing upon boycotts, and then it might be my proud privilege, or some other labor aigitator's proud privilege, to go to a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, as the gentleman has come to us to-night, and quote the law. The law is supreme. We will submit to the law. (Ap. We will submit to the law. planes.) We will submit to the law to-day, but when we understand the situation—as we will, thoroughly, by reason of this kind of discussion—we will ask the Messieurs Capitalists to submit to the law. Now a battlefield, to me, has all the horrors of hell, absolutely, and I can conceive of no kind of justification that will permit me and justify me in taking the life of my fellow man. I cannot do it and I will not do it at anyone's beheat. I am not that kind of a patriot; neither are you; neither are the men in the Painters' Union.

"We have a somewhat loftler comception of patriotism. Our love of human kind is not restricted by the accidental geographical boundaries of any state, or of any country; and if the gentleman will take the trouble to look into the constitutions, he will find that practically all of our unions are not American unions; nor are they un American unions; but they are inves-national unions, unions based upon the identity of the interests of the working class, no matter under what flag the may for the time being happen

Prescher's Patriotic ideal.

"That is the attitude of our enlight ened trade unionists upon the question of the militia, and if it squares with our friends idea of correct modes of living to prefer to give to a profes-sional killer of men, a man who ex-gages in the business of killing men and accepts pay for it—if it is in accordance with his ideas of the teachings of Christ to give preference to such a man over one who is opposed to killing his fellow men, then I say that I do not agree with his ideas of Christianity. As I understand the gentle Nazarene he was the 'Prince of Peace.' And I do not understand that he came among the people to preach war and slaughter and devastation. I never studied theology, but I extend the right hand of fellowship and con-gratulate that body of workingmen who can rise superior to our modern mock patriotism that sets men at one

"I say it is a distinct advancement along the lines of human progress, and attents a higher dagree of civilization and the greater recognition of the re-sponsibilities of human beings to inruan beings, for a class of working, men to say, 'Houseforth, we ccase to murder one another.' And it, is not mere accident. It is strictly according to the eternal fitness of things that if morement of this kind should find its inception among the working class. Terrible Story from West Virginia Coal Fields.

Officer of United Mine Workers, on Investigation, Reports that Men Were Shot in Their Beds-Deputies Were Notorious Thugs.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8 .- The of ficial report of Chris Evans, who was seut to the West Virginia coal fields to uvestigate the killing of colored miners at Atkinaville, has been received at the headquarters of the United Mine Work-

The report says that Gen. St. Clair, the atterney for the coal companies, created an agitation to have the men rested and taken to Charleston, and that immediately afterward arrangements were made with the United States Marshal by the Mine Workers' officials to give bond for all who were arrested, but that later, on account of the agitation created by Deputy Marshai Cunningham, the agreement was broken, and Cunningham was sent to arrest the men.

A Posse of Thugs.

According to the report there was great feeling against Cunningham. The men decided not to allow him to arrest them and he was driven away. Mr. Evans mys that he sent a telegram to the men to submit quietly, but that the coal companies, who own all the tele-graph and telephone lines into the town, refused to deliver it, and before he could get any message to the men Cunningham and, his denuties, who were the worst characters he could collect, made another raid and killed or mortally wounded several men. They then arrested forty-eight men on charges of conspiracy to kill Cunning-

Mr. Evans got to the scene the next morning. In the house of a colored man named Jackson he found the bodies of three murdered miners. He says:

No Warning Given.

"We found that the wife of Jackson and her four children, with eight no groes, were in the house, and that about daybroak all were awakened by shots fired into the house from the outaide. This shooting took place withou warning, and the three colored mer were found dead on the floor. Two were in their night clothes and the other one was partly dressed. We vis ited another house, where Joseph Hizer lay in bed mortally wounded, Higer lived with his sister, and she made the statement at the inquest that she pleaded with those shooting not to kill her children, and in reply Cunningham said: 'Women and children must take care of themselves.' In no instance could we find where these people had been asked to surrender, until after the deputies had commenced shooting the occupants of the bouses. "We next went to the house of Lucien Lawson, who was considered mortally wounded. I understand that after the shooting referred to, this man, with others, returned the fire of the posse, and this is the only instance where any attempt at resistance was made by the miners. During the shooting in many instances the men pleaded with the men outside to have mercy on them, but their cries were met with derision and curses. Our investigation proves conclusively that no effort was made to shoot or resist, except in the one case mentioned, but that all would have been glad to surrender if they had been allowed the opportunity." The Coroner's jury has returned a repliet of felonious killing against that it will soon be necessary to make Cunningham for the killing of William Dodgen.

Machinery Invades Hitherto Bost Paid Trade.

merican Window Glass Co. Closes Factories and Will Equip Thom with New Machines-Competitors to Be Crushed and Independence of Workers Destrayed.

On Friday last the American Window Glass Company, with headquarters at Pittsburg, gave notice that its factories would close for the season on March 14, regardless of what other musnies might do. The following day the American Window Glass Machine Company was incorporated in New Jersey.

These two events probably mark the beginning of a new era in the glass industry and are full of ill owen for the glass workers, now probably the est paid skilled manual workers in the country.

The American Window Glass Company, though commonly called the Window Glass Trust, is only the largest of a number of companies in the trade and does not dominate the industry to the extent to which, for instance, the Steel Trust, the Oil Trust, the Sugar Trust, and the Tobacco Trust do in their several fields. It was compelled to make trade agreements with the smaller companies, from time to time, regulate production and prices and divide the market. Yearly agreements were also made with the glass workers' union, regulating wages and other conditions of employment.

There has been increasing difficulty of late in maintaining the agreements among the manufacturers and a price war was considered imminent, American Window Glass Company has taken this occasion to throw down the gauntiet of defiance at once to its competitors and to the employees by in-troducing machinery which will dis-place a large part of the men and reatly reduce the cost of production. greatly reduce the cost of productor. The company incorporated in New Jersey last Saturday is a subsidiary corporation which will manufacture the machinery and equip the trust factories, while the competitors will be given the option of surrendering to the trust factories, attempting the homeless task rust or attempting the hopeless task of competing with hand labor.

The closing of the trust factories serves the double purpose of giving op-portunity for the installation of the new machines and of partially main-taining prices for the large stock of glass now on hand. The big company will, of course, be put to an enormous expense for the manufacture of the machines, and will, in the meantime. be making no profits. But it can af-ford this better than can the smaller companies and will then be in a post tion to dictate terms to them.

Wares to Se Reduced.

The "Evening Post" says:
"The object in equipping the factories with these machines is to reduce the expense of the product, the wages of giassblowers being very high. Also, fewer men will be required to run the factories and it would seem that hun dreds of men are in a fair way to find

It is expected that by their aid the cost of production will be re-duced from 40 to 50 per cent, below that of the hand process, and for this reason jobbers are inclined to the view that there will be a ruinous cut in prices if work is soon resumed with ened, however, by the temporary clos

When the time for starting factories in the fall arrives, says the "National Glass Budget," the big company will Glass Budget," the big company will have several plants fully equipped with machines. It will then be able to undersell the other companies, while still making profits, and to make itself absolute master of the field.

Social Effect of Machinery.

Thus under capitalism-the system of private ownership of the means of production and operation by wage labor for profit to the owners—the improvement of machinery, instead of tending to reduce the burdens of the workers and to distribute more widely the benefits of civilization, has just the opposite effect: It tends to the furthe, centralization of wealth, earlehing the greater capitalists and crushing the smaller ones, and it throws a part of the workers into unwilling idleness, forcing them to compete more strenuously for permission to work for a ilv ing, so reducing the wages and de-stroying the independence of those Under Socialism, with the means of

Constitutional rights capitalists hope to cope with the forces of labor and overcome or divert the on-coming arm) of the social revolution,

Since the elections of last November the editorial columns of the leading newspapers throughout the nation have been filled with articles viewing the spread of Socialism with alarm and speculating upon the best means to stop its growth. The counsel of the capitalist press is two-fold. Wise concession and forcible repression are alternately advocated. Capital is advised, on the one hand, to luli discontent by concessions and to maintain mastery over labor by ameliorating conditions and making the lot of the people at least tolerable; and, on the other, to rule by bullet and bayonet and to depend upon a centralized and or interferes with the normal course of autocratic government to hold the profit-making the more hot-headed mames in check. The following, from a recent editorial in the "Boston Heraid" on "Socialism in the United trailized government. After the assas-States," is typical of the latter temper:

"It may be said that the most effective means of checking the advance in Socialism would be to prohibit the incoming of foreign agitators of this class and to restrain those now here from their work of propagandism by speeches and publications. But if we prepare, as we have, the soil for the growth of secial unrest; if we introduce here by government instrumentality wide disparities in social conditions, we cannot hope to check the growth and spread of Socialism by the suppression of free speech or by pro-sibiling immigration. If the Car of Russia and the Emperor of Germany, possessed of autocratic power, find it impossible to prevent the growth of this form of popular discontent, can iny one suppose that, under our repullican system of government, we can be more successful in applying a check?

 * If its baneful manifestations cannot be prevented by existing govrnment methods, then, on the ground of self-protection, such changes will be made in our system of political control as will give to the central government the authority and power needed for the vigorous check of Socialism. Of course, this would mean the end of the republic as our fathers founded it, but the success of Socialism would be equally destructive of our democratic institutions. Of the two evils, those who would in the end secure and bold con-trol would much prefer a centralised, autocratic form of government than the terrible demoralization and disintegration which would follow an attempt to practically realize the principles of So-

The most conspicious "Afferican institutions" which capitalism has established are the injunction, blacklist and militia for strikers and the water-cure are violated at home and political lib erty denied abroad by the class which damus Socialism as opposed to the spirit of American institutions.

In the end, industrial slavery and political liberty become incompatible. As the struggle between workers and capitalists grows more severe political liberty must be crushed under the iron heel of imperial despotism or the exploited class will use political liberty to break the chains of economic sinvery. Signs are not wanting of the progressive and prospective disintegration of the last and the least of the political liberties which the Fourth of July orator tells the American citizen are his. At every event which annoys them representatives of the capitalist class clamor for military measures and censination of President McKinley by an irresponsible Anarchist the suppression of free speech was called for. During the coal strike the conservative newspapers constantly clamored for martial law and more troops. Injunctions depriving strikers of constitutional rights always find ready applause from the capitalists. gradual disfranchisement of the negroes in the South may well be preliminary to the claim that working-class suffrage is also a failure and that the "ignorant, uneducated workingman" should not be allowed to rote.

TAXATION AND THE SUPPRAME.

The capitalist class in the United States to-day is in the position of that luckless fellow i nthe Arabian tale. who conjured the demon out of the bottle to do his bidding, but could not conjure him back into the bottle when he grew rebellions. Political democracy has well served the purposes of bourgeoisie, so long as capitaliam was yet developing and the proletariat had not become class-conscious. Now capitalism has nearly reached its full development, now the workers are learning to think for themselves, the capitalists would fain deprive them of the auffrage. But the same fear which inspires this wish also gives pause to its execution and limits the attempts of the reactionists to such petty backsward steps as that proposed in Minne sots as reported in another column or this paper or as the bill giving suffrage to. women taxpayers in Massachusetts as reported a few weeks ago-measures too small to be in themselves very das gerous to the workers even if carried out, yet plain enough in their intent to help put the workers on their guard and rouse them to action.

A few years ago, when this feer at democracy began to disturb the peace of our better classes and they felt th need of some pretext for limiting the suffrage, they seized upon the ignorance of the poor-the poor whom they had so carefully kept in ignoran such a pretext, and thought first of an dermining the system of popular selfgovernment by attaching educations;

onsideration and experience have shown them the stupidity of that plan. The votee of the ignorant workers are just the votes the capitalists can control; the votes they fear are those of the more intelligent and the better educated proletariat. They have been compelled to adopt a more direct mode of attack, that of property qualifications under varying forms, and their editors and publicists and jurists and divines have been called into service to prepare the way by instilling into the public minds the theory that the state is, at least in some of its aspects, a business enterprise to be conducted on business principles, a sort of giorified joint-stock corporation, in which only the stockholders-timt is, the property owners-should have a voice.

It is a far cry, this new or old-new theory, from that of the men who staked their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor on the proposition that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. We Socialists may not hold to the political theories of 1776. We have a right to dissent, for we do it openly and consistently, maintaining that "time makes ancient good uncouth," that the validity of any political theory or ideal is relative only to the needs of evolving society. They—the good patriots, the blatant jingoes, they who trade on the credit of the Revolutionary forefathers, and they who ever assert the immutability of human nature and appeal to the sternal laws of nature to sanctify their dividendsthey have no such right. They add hypocrisy to apostney and inconsistency to both when they repudiate the principles of the Declaration.

We Socialists do not talk large of the natural rights of man. We do not in New Zealand and many other places found our conception of the state, as is not Sociatism, nor is it a step tomen did in the eighteenth century, on a supposed social contract by which each individual gives up a part of his natural liberty in exchange for the right of participating in the benefits of society. elimination of profit, interest, and That theory played its useful part and is dead and ought to be buried by this time. But if our conception of the state | Only the working class has an interis not that of an aggregation of free and equal individuals mutually consenting to institute government for the security of their natural rights, neither do we accept the ideal of the state as a business corporation, an institution established or created or developed for the purpose of safeguarding and advancing the interests of that portion of the people who now hold lawful possession of taxable property-to say simply taxpayers would inaccurately express the capitalist idea, for even pious young Mr. Rockefeller swears off his taxes and nobody proposes to disfranchise

This idea of government of the people by the politicians and for the propertyowners is a very proper ideal for the property-owners and their politicians. We do not blame them for holding it. We blame them only for not being quite frank and bold in avowing it. Bu it is an ideal that we repudiate and that the economic needs of society will compel it to reject and that the increasing intelligence of the workers will enabl them to overthrow.

We stand for universal suffrage, not on any sentimental or ideological grounds, but on the plain and practical ground that it is the only guarantee of -ar, we should better say, a necessary means to-the administration of the with the common interests of society as a whole.

son and Jackson and that which dis- eral remark suggested by it. honors the memories of Adams and of Lincoln, are alike implicated in this timed but persistent and insidious atlittle bolder and more impetuous than the Republicans of Massachusetts and Minnesota. When they condescend from high phrases to homely fact and tell us that it is necessary to impose property qualifications because otherwise the rights of property are invaded through the abuse of the taxing power by the voters who pay no taxes, then it is good to be able to answer them in the words of a Revolutionary patriot, a aigner of the Declaration along with Jefferson and Adams, pre-eminently the man of plain common sense among all the men of 1776. It was Benjamin Frankin who said:

"Private property is a creature of so-ciety and is subject to the calls of that society whenever its necessities shall require it, even to the last farthing; its contributions, therefore, to the public exigencies are the roturn of an obligation previously received, or the payment of a just debt."

With Poor Richard we are content to stand in this matter, oh practical gentlemen of the capitalist class. And unions history and the signs of the times deceive us, before you have opportunity to disfranchise us we will outvote you and demand back, even to the last farthing, that unearned private property in the socially created means of production which organized society has heretofore vested in your ments applicated but sentent went

man who would sell a part of the blood from his veine. He was overwhelmed with replies. Up to Tuesday evening he had read forty-four appli cations and many more lay anoposed on his desk. Many of the applicants begged pitifully that he would buy their blood, saying they were out of work and in great need. Obviously our prosperity is secure. If any modern Louis le Débauché wishes for baths of human blood, he need not reort to kidnapping children as the French king is said to have done. Free American citizens will eagerly open their veins and supply him under free contract at market prices.

Perhaps some friends who, a . year or two ago, were denouncing The Worker as "parrow, bigoted, intolerant, and fealous," because The Worker declined to accept or even by silence to assent to the stories of "practical Socialism in New Zealand" then so en thusiastically published by some of our Socialist contemporaries in the West and elsewhere, will now admit-in the innermost recesses of their own hearts, at least-that they were unjust and that The Worker was right in standing for straight and uncompromising proletarian Socialism.

Compulsory arbitration is not Socialtum per a step toward Secialism, per is it beneficial to the working class. Such public ownership as they have ward Socialism in any ordinary sense of the phrase. Socialism means public ownership of the means of production democratic control of industry, the rent, and the return to the workers of the whole value of their product est in establishing such a system, and working-class interest must be the sole and sufficient basis of any true Social ist political movement.

APPARENT DELAY EXPLAIMED.

It may not be such an altogether bad thing to lose one's temper a little now and then. Some of the comrades think that is what we have done in our editorial remarks on the headquarters question the last two weeks. Well, we have got what we wantedwhich was simply a plain statement of facts. The letters of Comrades Mailly and Untermann, published in the present issue of The Worker, make It clear that the referendum on headquarters is being prepared for submission and give us reason to hope that there will not be much further delay.

We accept in good faith the explanation given of the apparent delay in putting this referendum before the party and we take this occasion to say again that we do not propose to make any factions opposition to the Quorum, wherever located by the vote of the party. Until the question is settled we propose to continue to advocate Chicago as against Omaha, believing it much the better choice. We hope and believe that this is the opinion of the majority. But if it proves otherwise we shall yield the point as cheerfully common affairs of society in accord as we expect others to yield if they are outvoted. Having got this information-which The two old parties, that which it was our right to have and to transfalsely awears by the names of Jeffer- mit to the party-let us make a gen-

After the establishment of headquarters at St. Louis this excellent custom was almost if not onite discontinuedunconsciously, in all probability, or through mere inertia rather than for any positive reason. We believe that a large part of the unfortunate misunderstandings of this latter period were due to this fact that the party was to a great extent left in the dark as to the deliberations and plans and even the decisions of the National Committee and that the National Committee was consequently left in the dark as to the will of the party.

There can hardly be any valid objection, in a party like ours, to the publication at frequent intervals ony, weekly or fornightly-by the National Secretary, of an official statement of propositions received from locals or from members of the National Committee and submitted to that body for consideration, of votes taken or being taken by it or the Querum, and the like. We criticised Comrade Untermann's argument-his cool proposition that because he thought he knew how a referendum would result, therefore the party should take his word for it and save the trouwe of voting. Dimrails Untermann must lack a sense of humor if be thinks we could resist the temptation to refer to the added absurdity of this proposition coming from one of the men whose positions were at stake. We now gravely assure him that we never doubted his honor, but only his judgment or his tact.

Heretofore, with brief and slight exceptions, the "Appeal" has held an attitude of indifference or even of sneering hostility to the party organization -not only to the particular organization existing at the time, but to organisation in general. It has informed us, and with apparent estisfaction, that its circulation was nearly as large in the unorganized states as in the organized. It has almost completely failed to advise ks-readers of the exintence of the organized party and has, to our certain knowledge, ignored or refused regpes a from readers for the publication of information on this subject. It has seemed to hold that the propaganda of Socialist ideas was all that was necessary, that the nomination of fickets was comparatively unimportant aut. the smillation of Socialists in an organized party quite un-

However, we are willing to forget all this of the past in our joy at finding in the last issue of the "Appeal" an article emphatically urging all its readers to join the locals of the party or to form locals where none exist, to pay their dues to the national and state organikations, to take an active interest in party affairs and vote on party questions. We refer to the article entitled "Shall the Few or Many Decide?" in the Jame of March 7, which we advise all our readers to

Certainly it might seem. "to a man up a tree"-that mythical gentleman being of a suspicious turn of mindthat the "Appeal" has been moved to this sudden desire to get members into the party by a fear that the majority of the ten thousand who came in without waiting for its advice were going to vote against Omaha as national headquarters, and by a shrewd desire to take advantage of the avoidable or unavoidable delay in submitting the referendum by getting in a large number of new voters, uninformed on party affairs and inclined to vote for

Even if the Chicago referendum is defeated by the votes of the new party members 'which 'the "Appeal" may bring in, we shall still rejoice that these men-have-joined the party and taken part in the decision, we shall still thank, the "Appeal", for its unwonted service to the party, and we shall earnestly hope that it will continue to advise its readers, not only to get subscriptions for the "Appeal." but also to become members of the Sociallat Party."

The "Socialist Spirit" discontinues stion with the February num ber. It has been edited for a year and a half at Chleago by Franklin H. Wentworth and general regret is expressed at list shiftension. The final issue announces that afthough funds have been gratuitously effered for its continuance Comrade-Wentworth does not feel justified in accepting them. He urges the comrades to support the weekly Socialist papers and says that whatever he may have to say in print in future will appear in the party press. The unexpired subscriptions to the "Socialist Spirit" will be filled out by the "Comrade" or refunded in cash to the subscriber at his option. We are heartily sorry to see this bright little magazine suspended, for much of its contents has been of a literary quality distinctly superior to anything appearing in our other publication Still, the ability which went to make the "Socialist Shirlt" what it was will be brought to the improvement of our other papers, and we must suppose that the decision of its publishers was a wise one under the circumstances.

INCREASE IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., March 5.—The Socialist Party considerably increased its vote in the city elections in Maine this week, though without electing any of its emplicates. In Buth we polled 510 votes out of a total of 1.883, the Democrats endorsing the Republican candidate. In Bockland our vote in-creased to about 100 and in South Port-land to 31. In Lewiston we polled 238, and in Anhurn our vote reached 239.

AS TO WEADQUARTERS.

(Under this head are procented, from reak to week, various communications and announcements in connection with the removal of headquarters from St. Louis to Omaha by the National Consmittee and the demand by a large number of locals-which The Worker supports-for a referendum in favor of Chicago. Correspondents are requested to be brief, as only a limited space can be given to this discussion.]

Editor of The Worker: Permit me word of explanation regarding your editorial in The Worker of March 8, just to hand, relative to delay in submission of referendum on location of headquarters. Whatever delay may have apparently occurred was occasloned by myself. Two referendums on the location of readquarters have been demanded, one on Omaha, the other on Chicago. At the time that a sufficient number of locals had demanded the latter, one hore was required for Omaha... Insanore was required a local in such as a telegram from a local in lowa announcing concurrence in the Omaha demand, I waited for the offiial notice, so that both demands could e submitted to the Quorum at the ame time. When a sufficient number ad been received for both demands I ubmitted them together to the Quo um, which acted promptly enough, so hat the demands have already been eferred to the National Committee for ta action. Whatever delay has been caused, therefore, arose from a desire on my art to facilitate business and even-tually save time, by having both de-mands acted upon together. Unless something occurs to prevent, the referendum will be submitted to the men bership within the required thirty days, and the membership and the party press will receive due notifica-tion thereof through the regular chan-Bels.

Fraternally yours, WILLIAM MAILLY. National Secretary.

Editor of The Worker:-I have just read your editorial in The Worker, of March 1, calling on the members of the Local Quorum to state whether they propose to act upon the principle laid down by Comrade Gorbel, and whether they refuse to submit the Chiengo ref erendum when demanded by five or sore locals in three or more sintes.

The other comrades of the Quorun may speak for themselves, and doubt less will do so. In this letter I speak only for myself.

First, let me tell you that Comrade

Goebel certainly has not spoken for me, and that nobody else in the party speaks for me. If I have anything to say, I am the man who will say it. Kindfy remember this in the future and do not implicate me in anything uid by anybody else on matters relatng to the Querum.

In the second piace, I ently your at tention to the following resolution, which I sent to the other members of the Quorum and to Comrade Mully, on February 23, six days before your editerfal was published: "Wherean, The impression has been sented by a number of party organs

Now, as to my exact position on the question of the referendums on the in cation of our headquarters: The con-stitutional number of calls has been submitted for the Chicago as well as for the Onigha referendum. Therefore hoth must go before the party member ship, and both will no doubt be sub mitted as soon as the Quorum will have acted in the matter. My position in that both referendums, as submitted for Chicago and Omaha will require another referendum, even after the vote favors either one of the two places, For, after these referendums are decided, a new referendum will have to be submitted amending the constitution so as to insert the same of the newly elected place in the place of St. Louis. As the Quorum has the right to submit questions to a referendum, and as it would clearly be advantageous to have the question submitted fairly, and in such a manner as to make a repeated referendum unnecessary, I have declared in favor of the following constitutional referendum, suggested by Comrade Mailly and later withdrawn

I had thought better of you. The majority of the Quorum will probably favor a submitting of the two referendums that are now before the Quorum, without endorsing my view that the referendum of Courade Mailly should be submitted first of all. For my part, while I fully recognize the right of the locals to word their referendums any way they please, and my duty to submit them if filed in the proper way, as the two present refer-endums are, still I have also the duty of dispatching the party's business and saving us all unnecessary expense. It you had not created so much unreason-able distrust against us, nobody would hesitate to agree with me that I had chosen the most practical and effective solution. But as long as you keep on tenring your shirt in the manner you have been doing you will create a spirit of comity and suspicion which should have no place among comrades of the Socialist Party, I cannot accoun for the excited tone of your editorials, and I am sure that I shall not lend any land in creating attagonisms where

CAPITALISM OR SOCIALISM—WHICH?

By Ernest Untermann.

The Collectivist Society, in a recent | capitalism depend entirely on the lletin, makes the following statement: "Government-owned railroads and mines would not be, under the present state, instalments of true Socialism. And yet it must be said that they are probably indispensable steps toward true Socialism. It is almost certain that we must pass through an era of non-Socialist public ownership before 11,701,200 in 1914, we reach the era of Socialism. From this point of view the Socialists ought United States for to co-operate with those who, without the full Socialist mind, are working for public ownership. The principal work of the Socialist for a generation to come must be the production of the Socialist mind, and it appears clear that a system of state ownership of all the principal industries is a much more favorable environment for the creation of the Socialist mind than a system of universal private competition or a system of industrial oliarchy, such as is now supervening."

We emphatically disagree with this position. To us, Socialism as a political movement is a movement of prole-tarians for the conquest of the political power from the capitalist class. Only "from this point of view" do we look at the problem of state capitalism.

Who are the "less radical" Socialists to whom the Collectivist Society refers? Does the Collectivist Society Socialists? Or, to call a spade a spade, does that society consist of "middle class" Socialists or of "proletarians"? Socialist philosophy teaches us that the material interests of men influence their political, nocial, juridical, and all

tion taken by the Collectivist Society

Now the executive committee, which must be regarded as representative of the whole society, is made up of the following individuals: Willia J. Albot, editor of the "Pligrim," a capitalist magnaine, and associate editor of paper, which is trying to stand on one capitalist and one Socialist leg: Mrs. Corinne S. Brown, wife of a Chicago bank cashier with many thousands a veer income: Peter M. Burrowes, an stellectual and philosopher: Ghent, a capitalist journalist; George H. Strobell, editor of a "Christian So cialist" magazine called "Humanity," which copies articles from the "Appeal to Reason" without giving credit; and a number of clergymen and middle class individuals in comfortable circumstances, such as Lawrence H. Howard, Charles P. Connolly, Owen R. Lovejoy, James M. Trimble, Rufus W. Weeks, Heary White, and Leighton Williams. All of them are by education and association middle-class ind viduals, and, with the exception of Mrs. Br Mrs. Brown and Peter E. Burrowee none of them is a member of the So cinitat Party, to our knowledge. none of them has risen sufficiently su-perior to his middle-class environment to regard the Socialist movement from the standpoint of the proletariat.

Why is it "almost certain" that "w must pass through an era of non-So-cialist public ownership before we reach the era of Socialism," and why is this a reason for members of the Socialist Party "to co-operate with those who, without the full Socialist mind, are working for public owner-ship?" The Collectivist Society falls to give us a valid reason for this advice. In our opinion this advice does not agree with the acknowledgment that "the principal work of the Sci cinitat for a generation to come must the production of the Socialist rapidity with which we succeed in making Socialist minds? Let us see how fast we can make Socialist minds In 1896, we polled in round numbers 90,000 votes; in 1902, we polled about 300,000; that is about 3.4 times as much as in 1808. If we only increased at the same ratio, we should pull 1.020. 000 votes in 1900; 3,468,000 in 1910; and in other words, we should carry the United States for Socialism in eleven years from now. That is a long way from "a generation," even if we were to increase only at the same ratio as from 1808 to 1902. But is it not "almost certain" that we shall increase still more rapidly as espitalism becomes more oppressive, and have we not good prospects, in that case, of winning, if not in 1998, then in 1912? That would be only five or nine years from now.

The next question is: By what methods are we more likely to increase—by devoting our whole energy to making Socialist minds, or by following the advice of the Collectivist So-ciety and assisting espitalist and semicapitalist minds in obtaining something which is professedly not Social-ism? Cannot these capitalist minds, on account of their superior numbers, carry any measure they desire, with-out the co-operation of the Socialist? ut the co-operation of the Socialist?

The Collectivist Society claims that theirs would be the right course, because "It appears clear that a system of state ownership of all principal in-dustries is a much more favorable environment for the creation of the So cialist mind than a system of universal private competition, or a system of in-dustrial oligarchy, such as is now supervening." But this is a most fallsclous way of reasoning. State capitalism, which the Collectivist Society itself calls "A woeful example of public ownership " does not educate Socialists on account of its co-operative manage-ment. The Socialist mind must be produced by Socialist propagands, and the mere illustration of the practicability of Socialism afforded by capitalist public ownership is of little or no value in demonstrating their special class intercats to proletarians. Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Russia, and other countries which have for a generation practised state capitalism, are ample proof of this fact. If anything, these state industries make the propagation of Socialism still more difficult by tyrannical decrees, martial law during strikes, and a spy system which does not even respect the secrecy of the ballot. In fact, the capitalist environment offers much better chances for Socialist propaganda than that of state capitalian

This whole argument of the Collectivist Society, then, amounts to nothing else than to an attempt to weaken straight Socialist propaganda in the interest of those who wish to see "a gradual and painless growth of so-clety into Socialism." This is the argument always put forward by those who are comfortably enough situated to await a "gradual" deliverance from capitalism. But for the great mass of the projetarians this deliverance caunot come any too soon, even if it comes at the expense of a little temporary inconvenience to the "middle-class So cialists." To follow this advice and help to introduce middle-class Social-ism, would end, in the language of the Communist Manifesto, "in a miserable fit of the blues."

From the standpoint of the proletarist, nothing is gained by following middle-ciasa Socialista aa leadera. Let the proletariat follow the proletarian leaders whose material interests are the interests of the overwhelming ma jority of the proletariat, and devote themselves to the making of Socialist minds. To this end, Socialists, even those in the Collectivist Society, should Then we shall soon see that state capitalism need not inevitably be an "indispensable step" toward profetarian Socialism.

Extreme Illustration of Capitalist Theory of Law.

New York: Court of Appeals Assume Boy Thrown from One Moving Car and Killed by Another to Have Seen Builty of Nogligonos-Company Free from Rosponsibility.

The New York Court of Appeals has rendered a decision in a personal injury case against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company (a part of the trolley combine dominated by Standard-Oil capitalists), which carries to about the farthest possible ex-tramity the legal theory of "contribu-tory negligence" which is of such great service to the capitalists, enabling them to conduct their business in the riost profitable way with almost absolute disregard of the lives of em-

The Facts in the Gase.

Briefly, the facts in the case are an follows, as reported by the law jour-

"Arthur Pinder, a fourteen-year-old boy, was forcibly thrown or knocked from a moving car on the Brooklyn Heights Raffroad by the motorman. He was seen to pick himself up from the ground and walk slowly and lamely across the street directly in front of another car, by which he was struck and killed. On the trial of an action brought by the boy's father, as ad ministrator, there was no evidence that young Pinder either looked or listened for the approaching car, or that his sense of night or hearing was impaired by being ejected from the other car. The trial Justice dismissed the complaint, but on an appeal to the Appellate Division that court ordered reversal. 'A further appeal to the Court of Appeals has given the final victory to the railroad company. The court of last resort decides that nothing was shown to warrant an infertributory negligence.

A Convenient Loyal Theory.

The courts require in such a case, to establish the responsibility of the capi-talist and subject him fo damages, first, that he or his agent shall be proven guilty of negligence; aecond, that the victim shall be proven free of "contributory negligence." If a workman is killed through a defect in the machinery with which he works, it is not sufficient to prove that the owner of the factory was negligent, but it must also be preven that the workman was not negligent. If a polestrian is run over by a car and killed, it must be proven that he was not careless in crossing the tracks. The victim is assumed to have been negli-gent, unless his caution can be proven; the capitalist is assumed to have been free from negligence until it is posi-tively proven against him. In the present case, the court goes so far as to lay down the rule that, when a boy has been thrown from a moving car with such violence as to fall to the ground and then, rising, walks lamely and walks directly in front of another moving car, it must be assumed that he was in condition to perceive and think quickly and that he must have been guilty of negligence. The boy bedence, and the company is relieved of omifility.

The judge who gives this remarkable decision is Justice John (Rinton Gray of New York County, a Demo-crat. He gets $13,700 a year for reaching such decisions. He was nominated by the Democratic party and re-elected last year and will continue to "dis-pense with justice" until 1913, unless he exchanges his present position for that of cornel for some railway corporation, as is quite likely, or unless the Social Democratic Party gets a majority in the Legislature and im penches him along with the other p

Town Elections Bring More Socialist Victories.

Socialist Party Everywhere increases its Vote over that of Last Fall and Elects Men in Amesbury, Stoughton, Norwood, and Holbrook:

BOSTON, March 5 - The results of town elections in Massachusetts are most satisfactory to the Socialist Party. t only is the tremendous increase wn at last fall's state election main tained, but in almost every fown the Socialist vote for local candidates this eek exceeded that cast for our can idate for Governor in November.

In many places the town meetings were the largest on record—notably so in Amesbury and Stoughton. The former town is in the vicinity of Haverhill, while Stoughton is a near neigh bor of Brockton

The following table for ten of the most important towns shows our vote for Governor in November of 1901 and 1902 and for town officers this week:

In Amesbury we carried nearly everything, electing all three Selections men, an Overseer of the Poor, and member of the Board of Health-the latter being Dr. John Q. Admins who was our candidate for Lieutenaut Governor last fall. Our Selectmen are Jason Spofford, Jeremiah Riordon, and David Tyler. A big strike of wagon makers has been on in Amesbury for some time past. The Republican and Democratic parties ran a joint ticket and had the hearty support of the manufacturers, ille the wagon makers supported the chillet ticket.

Stoughton Equally Good.

Stoughton gives results equally inspiring. Here also the old parties d. Our party organization is a n ·w but it is full of life. State Secretary White, Representative MacCart-ncy and other well known Socialists gave their aid in the campaign and the local comrades worked with splendid energy and discretion. We elected the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen (James A. Capen, a shoeworker), an Assessor, an Oversoer of the Poor, and only one chosen this year), the Water Commissioner, the Highway Surveyor, and after and one of the Auditors. Of our seventeen candidates, seven were elected, 13 to 85. two were tied, and another was beaten by only nine votes. Our vote was very

In Norwood we elected a Park Comstener and in Holbrook we put in a Constable and three Fuel Viewers.

Socialist Measures Carried.

We also made a winning fight in many places for several Socialist measures. In Bridgewater, though we elected none of our candidates, we carried a proposition to raise the pay of on town work from $1.50 to $2 a day. In Leominster we carried the proposition of an eight-hour day on town work and the appointment of a committee to investigate the advisability of the town owning an electric and gas lighting plant. In Stoughton we succeeded in insert-

When the news of the caucus reached the State Executive Commit tee, it at once acted through the Sec-retary, forbidding fusion of any char-acter, and a statement of facts rereived from Secretary Grieves of Amesbury showed no fusion. MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Boolalists Domand Representation on Election Boards and Stir Public Opinion by Dobate.

BOSTON, March 2.- The petition of Secretary Squire E. Putney for legislation giving the Socialist Party representation on the Ballot Law Commission and Election Boards came before the Legislature last Monday and gave occasion for a lively debate. The Committee on Election Law had of course reported adversely, and of course the report was sustained, every Republican and every Democrat op

Republican and every Democrat Op-posting a proposition that would give the Socialist Party a chance to ensure fair treatment at the polls.

Representative Luce of Somerville led the attack on Socialism. Carey and MacCartney replied. The Boston "Post" says: "When the debate closed the homes were even even that the honors were even, except that Luce had the votes.

Carey in supporting a motion to reverse the action of the committee, cited the recent election figures that have made the old-line politicians so uneasy and said the Socialist Party would soon be the second party in the state, in spite of all their opposition. Meanwhile, it only asked for fair play. He referred to the attempt to count out the elected Socialist candidates in Haverhill, so brazen an attempt that the conservative judges of the Supreme Court were compelled to put a aton to it; and also to the seandalous corruption in Boston now being ex-posed in the courts. Luce, after admitting that the Socialist Party has become a power and is a growing power in the Common-wealth, declared that, after all, it was ephemeral and transitory, a visionary dream, and inconsistent with human nature. He ransacked ancient and modern bistory and showed a great deal of erudition whose application to then proceeded to argue that the ex istence of three parties was impossible and to infer that the Socialist Party

MacCartney raised a laugh by re ferring to Luce's "diagnosis of his-tory." He made great sport of the gentleman's declaration that Almighty God had ordained that only two pur ties should exist, saying that Luce deserved a place beside Divine Right Hner of coal fame.

Both MacCariney and Carey, who spoke a second time, answered in a masterly way the claim that the Socialist growth is sphemeral and transitory, showing by the recital of cold figures its steady and solid growth in every civilized country and explaining it as the logical political result, not of this or that coal strike or other inci-dental conflict, but of the fundamental conflict of class interests and social forces inherent in the capitalist ava-

On sober second thought some of the old-party representatives saw they had gone too far in voting solidly against so manifestly fair a measure and that public opinion was against them. A reconsideration was had on Thursday and after further debate the proposi-tion was defeated by a vote of only only

OLD-PARTY OBSTRUCTION.

HAVERHILL, Mass., March 7 .-Teh Republican Aldermen have shown their hand. They evidently propose that, at all costs, the hands of the So-cialist Mayor shall be tied and every act of his obstructed.

This policy is generally understood to be foreshadowed by their action in ing to take from the table Mayor Finders' police appointments. Mayor carefully picked men-for their fitness, instead of following the pre-cedent set by old-party officials of appointing only his own partisans. The Aldermen therefore did not dare di-rectly to reject the apointments knowing that no reasons could be given to justify such action. The refusal to take up the nominations keeps all the former incumbents in office, Many who did not vote the Bocinlist ticket

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

Secretary Wisely Keeps its Methods Secret.

Able to Boast of Results, Neverth less-Eightsen Hundred Capitalists Defeat Million and a Half of Organized Workers at the Same of Lobbying-On to the Bailet Box!

The National Association of Manufacturers has sent out to the affiliated der date of Feb. 25, a copy of which has this week reached the office of The Worker, through friends whose identity we are, of course, not at lib erty to disclose.

The circular is a call on members to ocrease the strength of the organizaeight months (June, 1902, to January, 1903, inclusive) since the headquar were removed to New York City, memberahlp had been increased 817, or over 80 per cent., over 1,830 manufacturers now being members of the Association, Silence is Best.

The nortion of the letter which is of interest to the working class public bowever, 'la 'the' following passage, especially the words which we put in large type:

"We are beating the Eight-Hour Bill in Congress, which would immediately work a practical conficcation of the business of government contracts and sub-contractors, and is intende as the labor lobby boasts, to be an entering wedge to apply to all manufacturers as soon as possible. We are besting the Anti-Injunction Bill, which would make the picket (and hence violence) around emphody's factory possible and lawful. We have contributed more than any other influence to the quick passage of the new Depart ment of Commerce Bifl. It is said that the activities of this office are numerous and satisfactory; BUT OF: THAT I MUST NOT SAY VERY MUCH-OR ANYTHING."

Secretary Marshall Cushing is discreet. He knows the possibility of communications "leaking out," as this one has. He knows that "walls have ears," and that the activities of such a body as that he serves would hardly bear the light of general publication. Its methods are, as Fred Long would say, those of "the man with gum-shoe and a dark-lantern." Criminals learn to understand each other and lay their plans without taiking.

Manufacturers' Triumphs.

The Association of Manufacturer has reason, however, to boast of results, even though it dare not disc its methods to its own members. Eight-Hour Bill is dead. The Anti-Injunction Bill is dead. The Department of Commerce Bill, amended to suit the great capitalists, has been enacted into law

Once more the American Federation of Labor, claiming a million and a half of organised workingmen, has utterly and ignominiously failed in its lobby-ing policy, and a hody of 1,800 organ-ized capitalists is able to parada its triumphs. Perhaps this will help to teach the rank and file of the working class that their power is in Socialist political action at the ballot-box, not in begging favors from the servants of their enemies and oppressors after obediently voting them into office.

EXPERIMENTS AGAINST DEMOCRACY.

By Peter E. Burrowes.

matter who) invented the saying that "democracy is an experiment," and an-"democracy is an experiment," and an other, that "democracy is a failure." The fact, however, is that everything else but democracy is a needless experiment and that history is but the record of the failure of one or another criminal experiment against democracy by the kings and other property Through much tribulation on the threshing floors of its various slave-masters the labor interest now con-cretely, as well as spiritually, embodies democracy. The success of some or of many persons is not the success of democracy; nor is the success of many more a progressional damocracy. If our fleets were suddenly so armed and manned, as well as our forts, that no nation on earth could resist or molest us, that would not be democracy, though it might mean an and to war by armaments. If the mechanism of political representation were so perfected that every man could have an oportunity to choose and vote, and also a daily opportunity fill the year round, to scratch errant of-sceholedrs back to private life, that would not be democracy. Nay, if we were all suddenly beatified by one mumificent jubilee decree of His Holiness so that we were all cock angel sure of going to heaven at the moment of death, that would not be democracy. Democracy is that use of physical mental and political force which brings to naught whatsoever divides, opposes or attacks the interest of la Positively, as a fixed institution, it may be said that the interest-of-labor

democracy is an unknown quantum among the present stabilities of the world, outside of trades unions and of political Socialism. Indeed, the politleal machinery of the old parties in all constitutional governments is run upon the tacit dictum that legislatures represent only persons, and their opinions, including their tender aspirations, if good, to wallop the wicked, or if evil, their sinister designs to take away property and to bring the blush of shame to the cheek of virtue, as she is embodied in commercial success. But, indeed, democracy has now no other embodiment than that found in the class-conscious proletariat, with its outcoming activities and achievements for the interest of the world's work and the world's workers. Hitherto the experimentors against democracy have bad the advantage of attacking a mental incoherency, which was at the same time the magnum of prop-erty production, of fighting and of vot-ing. To keep up the workers' incoherency, to keep down their minds, to keep them divided and their property all together in the state barn, was their policy. Therefore, in a well regulated capitalist democracy (3) the prime object of Mephistopheles is to dandle the people into babyhood; to keep them very much interested, very, very much pleased, or very, very, very angry about matters outside the barn. Politics, from the devil's side of the private barn, the inside, is the art of rigging up the irrelevant, so as to make it appear to be most relevant and "worthy of the earnest attention of good men." so as to get an cuthus on that little hit of gray matter or po-litical yeast, which the old party sen timentalist calls his brain. There is no and to the ballots and direct legis tation the devil of reforms will grant to the good men who only vote with their changing yeast and their irrelevant opinions.

It may be that the democracy is not yet much of a positive quantum to itself. It may not yet know much of its own constructive power. Seeing itself only in the political looking glass of present day representative govern-ment, it may see there only a disgust-ed anti-vaccinator, an abandoned prohibitionist, left high and dry from all parties; a woman righter, deeply wronged; a Devery diversion, a Com tockian crook, an Eldridge Gerry squint, a Parkhurstian sermon, a ros ing Jeromeiar, or some other fussy amiable political irrevelancy who as one election tweedles his dum and at another election tweedles his dee.

But the undeveloped suffering neg-ative has nevertheless always before it its positive call to destiny. The sense has failen under a five hundred weight bedstead defines the force he is called upon to bring himself out with. So, while the proletarian may be allowed for the present not to know the fixed aspects of his coming Socialism, he is called upon to know, potentially, the equivalent with which he, and he alone, must upset the capitalist experi-ment against democracy that now lies on him before he and the democracy which he now is, can say, "Resugam."

The things that crowd him and crush him down are the things that create him a distinctive fighter; they are the things which of themselves stimulate and direct the force of his e. While, on the contrary, the warfare of his oppressors onsists in avoiding all occasions of dehate or voting that would reveal their hecessary and conscient antagonism to his economic awakening. Hence their need of political enthusiasms for the

I am not here considering the ecosomic value process or mechanism of espital which made the proletarian what he is; that has been done once by Marx, but I am considering, outside of the book, what next.

Here is the prolession. What are of the book, what next.

Here is the proletarian. What are you going to do, my comrade? He answers: I am going to do the next thing. Then I will ask you; Where are you what are you where here you. thing. Then I will ask you; Where are you, what are you, whence have you come? I have come from the huts, the hamlets and villages of the far-away rural world, where I was one person, and produced and consumed for myself. But thence was I broken off rudely from the individual life and forced to follow after that new leader of the race, the selling man. He, who for a foreign market has left me bifther. of the race, the selling man. He, who for a foreign market has led me hither into the great mill chambles, and in order to weave cloth hath interwoven me into a chass mechanism or social tissue of production called factory system, a warp and woof of nerves and of many hands and brains and springers. wheels. I am no more one, I am but a live thread in a fabric-that produce fabric; and as I can do nothing ecor omically of myself, I am no mor aione. I am interwoven irrevocably with the wage slaves but not irrevoca-bly in their present slavery. I am down with them, and in the solidarity of their company alone must I up and live. As a class I am throttled, as a class, I and the democracy, against which the selling man and his mills are an experiment, must be free; as the class of free proletarians, proper-tiless and forever at work. I must politically rise.

Nature is no more my friend; she, who always kept faith with me, and, I being willing to work, gave me my harvests, is far away. I am taken away from her and am crowded with other millions into great foul cities The state, which bath witnessed and of my deruralisation has given me nothing for my former great security but a lottery bag, called the labor mar-ket. In the villages, and later on, ever in the smaller towns, I was an artisan, or an apprentice on the way to it, that is to the opulent skill of a free worker but self-protected in my own guild. After seven years of apprenticeship chance went out of my life and so-ciety remained in this respect as the sister of nature. But now I have only the grab-bag of competition-one of the greatest experiments against de-

I see nothing around me but change, everything is on the whirl of revolution; yet they say that I must be good and lie still. But why, while all this whirl whirle me only more chance and more poverty and whirle my mas ters more security and riches must I be still? I certainly cannot be the only fool conservative in all the new city world, I must arise together with the live network of which I am a part, the proletariat, I must rise from my environment and by it, not from any book that tells me about it, but from the environment that crushes me, must I get anger. My wrongs mould me and them only have I to lose them I resist; they supply my energy and open the outward door. The democracy of this world is the one only good thing in all this world that still remains entirely mine and all inside of my clothes; and there will it remain until the proletariat is victorious. Democracy is the ought-to-be, the will-be and the must-be of the race and I am its acorn. In me and my present day conditions the slavery of the world has secreted for germination all its wrongs, while in the master class, my capitalist adversary, all the past experimen s of history ocracy have filtered their skill and their poison.

Democracy, then, is a socializing movement outside of and quite inde pendent of us single persons, which, if we consent to, and co-operate with, will make us class-conscious Socialists. Every man in society is either unconscious or conscious of this more ment, of this consent and of this co operation; if a man be so conscious of it he is a Socialist; if not, he is no So-cialist. There is no such thing as an unconscious Socialist. Social Democracy, then, is not as opinion, nor a number of opinions linked together in a book, nor a school of thought. Bocial Democracy is the sum and goal of all the ages' home-ward tendencies. It is a political fabric in the course of weaving like the industrial fabric of live workers, and it is the force weaving it. We know by our science and our idealism some of the great threads of that fabric; just enough in our little per-sonal way we know to help us take part in the weaving and thus to be So rialists or participators in the history of the Socialist movement towards democracy. We have left biography democracy. We have left biography and stepped into class and race his tory. Assailing capitalism and saving the laborers' interest is our working ob-jective and a ripening of the militant class-conscious mind of the wage-earners is our mental. We no longer earners is our mental. We no longer desire to buttonhole any person, but to make our resounding appeal to aggragations of workers. care for you individuals, with your feuds and your fancies, we only care for thee, thou sacred aggregation, body high priest pouring pure oblations on the alter of the thing we most worship, the spirit of the race, now, like our selves, struggling out to the larger loveliness.

STATE COMMITTEE OF NEW JERSEY. Last Saturday's meeting of the New Jersey State Committee was well at-tended. Delegate Krafft presided. Several new delegates presented cre-dentials and were seated. A credential from Camden County designating Comrade Goebel as delegate was rejected, he not being a resident of that county. Essex County was not yet in a position to send a delegate, but hoped to do so at the next meeting. Delegates were instructed to urge their locals to communicate with the Hudson County Daily Globe Fair Committee to make arrangements for New Jersey day, A report from National Committeeman Goebel was received and ordered spread on the minutes. Comrade Goebel complained of the hasty action of the State Committee in censuring the National Committee be-fore he had rendered his official report. A protest against a new referendum was received from Camden County, but it is believed the ensuing discus-sion served to dispel many misunder-standings and will bring about the best evidences of goodfellowable throughout the state. It was decided that in taking this referendum the vote need not necessarily be taken in local or branch meetings, but that no member over three months in arrears shall be allowed to vote and that the correctness of the returns must be at-tested by the signatures of the Finanmembers in good standing have voted. Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individ-ual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capi-talists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of sible for the ever increasing uncertain ty of livelihood and the poverty and slaery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers The once powerful middle class is rapidly dhappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalist the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and se cial inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indis criminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanc-tioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial domin ion abroad and enhance their supre

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to So-cialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher or-der of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political repre-sentatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act

collective powers of capitalism, by con-stituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, there-fore, consider it of the utmost import-ance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class, to better its condition and to elect So-cialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end

As such means we advocate: 1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improve-ment of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the product of labor. of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class. 4. The inauguration of a system of

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents. But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utili-ties for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other

REAL RACE SUICIDE.

Some days ago our strenuous Presi- i of dangerous and harmful patent medident expressed himself forcibly in regard to the check to population by avoidance of child-bearing, characterlaing the tendency to a lowered birthrate as "race suicide." life. Profit kills.

This is becoming a familiar capitalist cry. The capitalist instinctively clamors for more children, especially more working-class children, because he needs them in his business. Napoleon had highest praise for the mother of many children and regarded woman only as a breeding animal because, as a military man, he instinctively realised the need of his trade for more men as food for powder in his business of war. Just so the class instinct of the capitalist impels him to cry for more children-more children to work in cotton milis, factories and sweatshops, more children to grow up in wage-slavery and glut the labormarket as competing workers. The ideal of the capitalist is capitalism and anything that is necessary to capltalism, anything that perpetuates the

That insecurity of livelihood and the difficulty of providing for a family under present industrial conditions keeps many from marrying; that the financial inability of many men to marry makes prostitution necessary and that the destitution of poor girls makes it possible; that the poverty of the working ciass and the artificial life of the capitalist class make children unwelcome at both ends of the social scale-in short, that the causes of any actual or impending decline in the birth-rate are to be found in economic conditions of social injustice—is a sufficient answer to any supporter of the present industrial system who dares prate of "race suicide."

But it is not these economic tendencies to discourage and forestall the propagation of the species which most strikingly prove capitalism to be a system of real race suicide. Capitalismthe system of private ownership of the means of production and their operation for the profit of the useless capitalist class-is race suicide, not only because it checks the creation of new life, but BECAUSE IT KILLS THE gentlemen of the capitalist class, and their officials and lackeys who talk of "race suicide," really have for the annetity of human life may be discovered in the every-day results of the industrial system by which they profit and in which they glory.

Under capitalism the sole motive of production is the profit of the capitalist. Private profit is the incentive and competition the spur. Profit is an incentive which leads to the adulteration of food products and the consequent gradual undermining of the health of the millions. Profit kills. Profit is an incentive which leads not only to the adulteration of food but to the adulteration, sophistication and substitution of drugs, the manufacture cialism? That is the question.

cines, and the practices of quacks which make worse the condition of the suffering, and bring destruction to those seeking for health and renewed

Profit is an incentive which cause capitalists to put to work at hard labor the little child and the weak woman and turn the old man into the street to starve. Profit kills.

Profit is an incentive which foments wars for foreign markets and commercial advan.agea. Profit kills.

Profit is an incentive which makes the capitalist force down wages to a point which means poor food, insufficient ciothing, unhealthful surroundings, no recreation, and a bestial existence of unending and unpaid drudgery for the workers. Profit kills.

Profit is an incentive which leads the landlord to erect disease-breeding tenements of rooms without air, with cut sunshine, without sanitation-tenements in which tuberculosis triumphs. Profit kills.

Profit is an incentive for the em lloyer to so overwork his wage-slaves es to lay their weakened bodies open to the ravages of every disease, bring on premature old age, and early death.

Profit kilis. Profit is an incentive which leaves dangerous trades without safeguards and risks preventable "accidents" in order to increase dividends. For profit gained by avoiding the expense of safety workingmen are blown up in explosions, and cut up in machinery, and crushed in railroad collisions-always because the extra expense of extra labor and appliances which would make life and labor safe would also reduce profit. Profit kills.

By direct death and in indirect ways beyond reckoning, the profit system kills. Where war has killed its hundreds, capitalism has killed its tens of thousands and caused the wars besides. For profit the workers of the world are polsoned and starved, and worked to death. THE WAGES OF LABOR ARE DEATH. A social system which does not make for life cannot long survive. Capitalism came out of feudalism because it meant more life. Now that LIVING. How much regard the capitalism has performed its mission of organizing industry it has become a drug. Capitalism leads to death and its continuance would be race suicide. Socialism leads to life and its triumph will be race survival and progress. When the means of producing wealth are owned by the people in common and production is for use instead of for profit it will be possible for all who are willing to work to make a good living easily and there will be no incentive to wholesale economic murder, and in that time when overwork, poverty, and starvation are no more, disease will be reduced to such a minimum that death will come only as the result of old age or unavoidable accident. Social suicide or social survival—Capitalism or So-

Here, since the extension of the suffrage in 1894—forced upon the gov-ernment by a general strike—the Socialist movement has grown so rapidly among the industrial proletarians that it now holds more than a third of the neats in the lower or popular house the Belgian Parliament, being the strongest of the three parties.

The Liberals, formerly the strongest party, especially in the industrial di tricts, and representing progressive capitalist interests, have fallen to third to the Clericais. The fact that a cer ount of wealth or the posion of a college degree entitle a man, under the Belgian law, to two or even three votes gives the Ciericals and the Liberals a representation in Parliament out of proportion to the au-merical strength of their following. The Liberals, in last year's agitation for the equalization of the suffrage, treacherously deserted the Bockslist Party in the midst of the conflict, virtrally going over entirely to the sup-port of the reactionary cierical and

Strikers and Their Sympathizers Are Forbidden to Try in Any Way to induce Others Not to Work for Trolley Company or Not to Patronize It—Funds of Many Unions Are Attached.

WATERBURY, Conn., March 15 .-The conflict between the trolley com-pany and its employees here has brought out an injunction no less weeping is its effects, though on a slightly different line, than that of Judge Adams of St. Louis against the Wahash employees and the railway

Judge Adams set the precedent o ising the injunction, not only to forbid unlawful or disorderly acts in conne tion with a strike, but to forbid the claration of a strike at all.

Judge Elmer of the Superior Court of Connecticut supplements this plan by an injunction absolutely forbidding the use of the boycott, even though maccompanied by violence, intimidation, or disorder of any sort.

The writ enjoins the strikers and heir sympathisers from boycotting their sympathisers from boycotting the plaintiff or its employees or any other corporations or persons, from it any way impeding the business of the railroad company, and from acts of in-timidation and violence, under a penalty of $10,000. An attachment to the amount of $25,000 is ordered placed

The order is, of course, very long and full of legal verbinge. Aside from forbidding the use of violence of threats, it commands each and all of the defendants, under the heavy penalty stated, "forthwith absolutely to desist from any act or language in tended or tending to prevent persons from continuing in or entering the em-ployment of the plaintiff, or intended or tending to induce any such person or persons to leave employ of the plaintiff;

In so large a hall and with so large an audience as there car-tainly will be, a certain amount of noise and disorder is unavoidable, which somewhat detracts from the sp-preciation of the program. Courtesy to the artists who have so generously given their time and talents and the desire to ensure one's own enjoyment of the excellent program will alike prompt everyone in the hail to de his best, during the time the entertainment is being presented, to maintain rder and keep the disturbance down

Renders of The Worker are therefore urged to bring or send their presents this week, if possible, to William Butscher at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, or to turn in their donation books, if they cannot or do not care to collect and deliver the presents, so that they may be called for.

INCREASE IN IOWA.

DUBUQUE, Ia., March 14.—The school election held here this week gave results very gratifying to the Socialist Party. The old parties united on a "non-partizan ticket" and their two candidates polled 1,083 and 1,025 votes respectively. Against them our candidates, Comrades Dieterich and Masters, received 729 and 781 respectively. The city thus gives us almost exactly the same number of votes as the whole county gave us in Novem her. The Pubuque "Times" notes that the Socialist strength is on the in-crease and calls for the application of the Australian ballot system in future school elections. Certainly no one would welcome this change more heartily than the Socialists.

We know that the reports of vio- 1 ploited, so long as private ownership ence and disorder in Waterbury have of the means of production continues, seen grossly exaggerated. That is the so long our normal state will be a state case in every strike. Yet we are willing to believe that there has been some disorder. It would be wonderful, it would imply that the workingmen of Waterbury were white-winged angels, if they could keep their fighting spirit do is to enter the ranks on the side completely under control in such times

But, order or disorder, we must recognise that a state of open war reigns there-with what weapons, is mother question. So far we agree with the spokesmen of capitalism, who are so vigorously denouncing the unions and applauding Colonel Burpee and Judge Elmer.

We agree with them, too, that soclety as a whole, the "general public," including persons not directly or personally interested in the conflict, are suffering inconvenience or worse as a result of the interruption of trolley service by the strike and boycott, .

What follows? Does it follow that the carpenter, the bricklayer, the tailor, the baker, the cigarmaker, the printer, the workingman of whatever trade in whatever part of the country, who is not directly and personally interested in the victory of the strikers. should join with the capitalists in wishing to see the strike defeated or should fail to sympathize with and aid the trolleymen of Waterbury? That does not follow.

Does it follow that these workingnen of other trades or of other places should, either from motives of interest or of principle, approve the use of governmental power to crush the strike? That does not follow.

On the contrary, it follows that all workingmen, of all trades and in all places, should desire the success of this strike and should wish to see the powers of government used to help the strikers. So duty and self-interest slike dictate.

This strike is not a war. It is only ne battle, a skirmish, in the war. The capitalist class and the working class, because the one lives by exploiting the other, are always in a state of war. So long as there are capitalists

The fruit industry lasts only three or four months, wages are low, cost of living high, and conditions unhealthful, and when the crops are picked and packed there is no employ ment for unskilled labor.

-Now when we are reading so such in the daily press about railway service, rates, wages, and profits, is good time to circulate Hanford's "Rail ien. Price, postpaid, 5 cents a copy ten or more at 2½ cents each. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

New York Branch on Same Model as Hational Body-Ret One Workingman Among Representatives of "Disinterested Public."

A local branch of that funny aggregation known as the Civic Federation has been organized in New York City. at consists of thirty-one men represent-ing the employers, twenty-eight to represent the wage-workers, and twen-ty-four for the "disinterested public," The first two catagories may be considered as fairly representative, in-cluding prominent officers, on the one hand, of several big railway and ma facturing companies, a number of large contractors, and officers of the most powerful employers' associati and on the other, officers or prominent members of most of the large trade

The "joker" is in the list of twenty There is not one manual among them. Considering the earnest-ness with which capitalist advocates assume to speak for the interests of the unorganized workingmen, this would seem to be an oversight. There are five clergymen, three college pro-feesors, and five magazine editors. Nine are capitalists—as distinctly rep-resentative capitalists as any of the thirty-one avowedly standing for that class. These are: Cornelius N. Bliss, class. These are: Cornelius N. Bliss. August Belmont, Oscar Straus, Spencer Trask, Emerson McMillin, John J. McCook, V. Everit Macy, James Speyer, and H. H. Cammann. The other two are T. F. Woodlock, edito of the "Wall Street Journal," and H. C. Watson, editor of "Dun's Review," both closely identified with capitalist interests. The list of nine capitalists among these "disinterested" harmon cludes directors and officers of the Cot-ton Trust, of a score or more of great gas and electric lighting companies, of Wells Fargo & Co., of a score or more of big railway and steamship com-panies, of the Rapid Transit Construction Company, of many coal and gold mining companies, and of dozens of the richest banks and other financial institutions.

The five preachers will do well if they can "moralise capital" to the ex-tent of beating this combination. The mention of preachers calls to mind the Scriptural injunction, "Be ye wise as: serpents and harmless as doves." It is to be feared that the employers will fulfill only the first half and the union men only the latter-half of the com

Comrades should remember that The Worker, not being overburdened with money, is not able to command the services of the Associated Press and must depend chiefly upon its readers to act as volunteer local reporters and respondents. When an election very important one-you will do a service to m and to the cause by sending a prompt and accurate report of the result so far, at least, as the Socialist Party is concerned-giving the date, the names of the candidates and the offices for which they were nominated, the number of votes for each, and our Tote at the last preceding election. You like to get the news from other places. Comrades elsewhere like to hear from you. The Worker needs and requests your aid in giving the news to and from all.

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Edward M. Shepard, who has under taken the task of "harmonizing" the Democratic party by getting its varis leaders to eat dinner together. We have often suspected that in our accented version of the Bible two well known texts have got mixed and that the true reading is, "The way of the peacemaker is hard." Mr. Shepard will share the opinion before he gets

"Odell Has Sunshed the Platt Mathine." So the headlines run. These beadlines have a very fauriliar ring. We remember it was repeatedly an nonneed with equal certainty three and four years ago that Roosevelt had ed the Platt machine. Shortly after each announcement of the sort came the further news that the Gov r had come down to New York to take breakfast with the Senator and talk over the political situation. The Flatt machine doesn't stay smashed very long, it seems, and indeed neither Roosevelt nor Odell ever had the slightest desire of really damaging it. This farce is getting too old. The audience knows the lines as well as the actors de. Let them take it off the boards and give us something fresh.

The State Commissioner of Health is pushing in the New York Legislature a bill to prohibit the cutting of ce for domestic use on certain parts of the Hudson River where the water is polinted with sewage. It was abown in a hearing that large quantities of such polluted Ice are sold in New York City and that many cases of traboid fever and other diseases could be traced directly to this cause A delegation of ice dealers opposed the bill on the ground that it would deprive ten thousand men of a means of livelihood. These capitalists would discharge their ten thousand em ployees without an instant's healtation if ice-cutting should cease to yield a profit. But no long as it is profitable to sell ice impregnated with germs of deadly disease they have the smur nce to urge the needs of their em ployees as an argument against any interference by the state. The hypoc risy of capitalism could hardly be car

It is a pretty business in which that nonest man of Wall Street," Bird S. Coler, has been mixed up, as exposed in the Arisona statebood agitation. Some twenty years ago, Pima County, Arizona, insued bonds to subsidize a certain company to build a railroad. The capitalists got the bonds and did not build the road. The county then resisted the payment of the honds and got a favorable decision in the courts quently a special act was railroaded through Congress validating the bonds and compelling the county to pay a bonus for a service never performed. When the bill to make Arisons a state came up in the Senate Mr. Color, as one of the owners of the bonds, used his influence to preven the passage of the bill and has suc reeded in "holding up" the territorial government, which has undertaken the payment of the unjust debt rather than endanger its chances of admis sion as a state. Will apyone tell us wherein, except in having been legalised by capitalist politicians, this sort of business differs from that of the professional receiver of stolen goods and the professional blackmaller?

THE OTHER SIDE.

At Cardiff, Ill., last Friday, fifteen coal miners were killed in a gas explesion. At Iron Mountain, Mich., the same day, eight miners were drowned. "like rats in a trap," as the dispatches say, by a rush of water that flooded the level where they were working.

It is the testimony of competent experts that gas explosions in coal mines can always be prevented by proper ventilation, that they are invariably due to the niggardliness of mine owners who grudge the cost of pumping rnough air through the mine to keep it clear of dangerous gases. The de tails given in regard to the Iron Mountain disaster Indicate that this was equally due to the parsimony and the neglect of the proprietors.

In Waterbury, Conn., a few days ago, a policeman was killed. So far no cine to the identity of the murderer has been found. But the "respectable organs of public opinion," the Repubitean and Democratic newspapers, par sons, and public men, have instantly assumed that the policeman was mur dered by strikers and are raising a great howl and cry about it. Why le no outery raised in those quarters against the profitable merifice of miners' lives at Cardiff and Iron Moun tain? Just because it is profitable. Just because these crimes form a part of the "legitimate business" of the capitalist clam, which controls the old parties and their press. Comrades, hasten the day when w shall have a daily press to voice the workingmen's side of the question, to expose the infamies of capitalism and defend the workers from unjust impu

There is an anti-injunction bill be fore the New York Lagislature. The unions are petitioning for its enact ment into law. Among its most active opponents is Richard J. Butler, Democratic Assemblyman from the Ninth Assembly District of New York County and member of the House smiths' and Bridgemen's Union. Ther is nothing to be surprised at in this It is just what should be expected of a "labor man" on a capitalist ticket. Maybe Mr. Donnelly of the Type graphical Union thinks it would be "tyranny" for Mr. Butler's union to discipline him for such a betrayal of Colonel Burpes of Waterbury, cou gel for the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company, explains that the attachments in the strike case are levied only on union funds. He says: "We are not after the small savings of any workingman. As a matter of fact, that would be useless, for few, if any, have any savings." How about that unparalleled prosperity, in proof of which the savings bank statistics of Connecticut are so often cited? And does the valuat Colonel mean us to infer that, if the workingmen had any nileled success.

savings, he would be after them? Whether he means it or not, we sus pect it to be true.

CLASSES, MOT INDIVIDUALS.

We suspect that many of our readers will share with us a mild degree of amusement at the resolutions adopted by a majority of the Omaha Quorum, as printed elsewhere in this paper, wherein they gravely repudiate the charge of being farmers and publish to the world the truth about their several avocations. Certainly the declaration seems quite gratuitous. So far as we know, no one ever suspected any one of these comrades of being a farmer or in any way referred to their occupations as having anything to do with the action of the National Committee in summarily removing the beadquarters or the enhancement inaction of the Quorum on the demand The Worker-and, so far as we are informed, the other party papers which agree with us on the questionhave said, not that the members of the Quorum at Omaha are farmers, but that the five states which the National Committee picked out as the basis for electing the Quorum are prevailingly agricultural states, in which, as in ost agricultural states and in most agricultural districts of other countries, the Socialist movement is comparatively weak, inexperienced, and not yet in thorough touch with the wage-working class on which the hope of Socialism is founded. That we have said and that we say again, and we think it a strong argument in favor of putting the headquarters at Chicago rather than at Omaha, thus taking as the lineis for selecting the Quorum a territory la which there is a much older, stronger, more experienced Socialist movement and in which the industrial element is dominant while the agricultural is well represented.

But to say that is quite a different matter from saying that Comrades Untermann, Lorett, and Turner are farmers. And, correspondingly, to prove that these three men have no practical or even theoretical knowledge of agriculture is not to refute or to weaken

It is to classes, and to communities as dominated by this or that class, and not to individuals severally, that we can safely and surely apply the law that economic conditions and needs determine political, social, and moral ideas and sentiments. There are large capitalists who are intelligent and sincere Socialists. Yet we can never expect the capitalist class to favor Socialism. No one doubts that a farmer may be a good Socialist, or that some farmers may be and are better Socialists than some workingmen. It does not at all follow that an agricultural community is as good a field for the growth of the Socialist movement as an industrial community. There are some who hold this view, but certainly the experience of the past does not justify it and it is not mafe to discount the experience of the future

Space forbids us to print the many letters which have come to us from omrades censuring what seems to them and to us the high-handed action of the National Committee in the headquarters affair. Those who have written us on this subject will please consider that we have but a limited number of columns weekly and that many important matters press for our attention.

We observe that Rishop Onigley of Buffalo, who has been brought to Chicago to belp in the capitalist city campaign, is informing the people that he has no querrel with the S. L. P. but that the Social Democratic Party-or ighet Party, as it is called in mos who strike at the foundations of It's erty and justice. We congrutulate the 'smashers' on their new friend. They are welrome to him. We do not want his approval and de not expect it.

Although the Socialists in Main have the most conservative of material to deal with, the progress which the evement is making in this state be gins at last to make somewhat of a showing. There has been a marked increase in the number of local organirations since the first of January and the work of forcing the master class to consider our demands begins to give Commide Fieldman has not been able to speak yet for the machin ists because of previous engagements. but Comrade O'Hare spoke for Lodge No. 405 last week. He was enthustastically received and the delegate was instructed to get him to speak again on April 10 lf possible. This lodge gives the second Friday of each nonth to these lectures and discussion meetings. A large number of copies of Lee's "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics" and other pamphiets were sold at this meeting.

The concert and bail of the Young People's Social Democratic Club of Yorkville last Saturday was a great necess, the only drawback being that the hall was not big enough for the crowd. The Dramatic and Musical Sections of the W. K. A. ansisted, the former giving the one-act play, "Papa hat's criaubt. Other numbers on the program were: An acrobatic perform-ance by Measrs. Fransech, Schmidt. and Casley of the Bethany Athletic Club; a recitation by eight-year-old Miss Fanny Lens and a violin solo by Eddie Lens; sither solo by Albert Morgenstern.-The club at its last meeting propriated $10 for the Globe Fair-$5 as a cash donation and $5 for a present, Misses Dahme, Friedl, and Holl being chosen as a committee to select the present. This organization is showing a lively interest in the Fair and other party work. Meetings are held every Thursday evening at the Clubhouse, 206 East Eighty-sixth

KINGS COUNTY COMMITTEE:

At the last meeting of the Kings County Committee ,a communication was received from the Brooklyn Federation of Labor stating that the proprietors of Luna Park, Coney Island, were making extensive alterations with non-union labor and requesting the committee to write them a strong letter demanding that they employ union labor only. The secretary was instructed to write accordingly. In reply to a communication received from the International Bakers and Con ers' l'nion, cailing attention to the boycott placed upon the products of the bakery firms of Friedmann's Son and Royal Bread Co., Brooklyn, because of the attempt to disrupt the journey men's organization, the secretary was instructed to notify the Bakers and Democratic Party will de all in its power to belp them and give then financial aid if possible. A communi cation was received from the State Committee calling upon the Local to nominate a candidate to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Comrade Bewerman was referred to the branches. A committee from the International Association of Machinists appeared to protest against the admission to membership in the party of Union because of his refusal to pay strike assessments and threat to scal It was decided that he be informe that when he becomes a member of his union he will be admitted to membership in the party.

The May Day Committe reported the that Committee Herron has accepted the invitation to speak at the May Liny cel

utive Committee provoked considerable discussion, more especially the clause which provides that "the corresponding and financial secretary shall also be or-ganizer of Local New York." The ephilon was freely expressed that if this clause become operative it would bring us back to the position which we occupied before Kings County became a separate local. As the clause stood sefore this change was made it stipulated that no officer of the City Executive Committee shall be an officer in any local. The Brooklyn members of committee were not present when this change was made, and while this was their own fault, yet the opinion was unsulmons that so radical a change ought not to be unde without affording an opportunity for much wider dis-cussion. It was finally decided that the members of the City Executive Committee of Local Kiness County by instructed to call for a special meeting of the City-Executive Committee to revice the by-laws and if necessary to submit a minority report. It was also decided that in the report to The Worker and "Volkszeitung" we protest against the two objectionable clauses. Dr. Clark was then given the floon behalf of the "Socialist Bulletin. the monthly paper published by the Socialist Club. He amerted that the Socialist Club. He america trace and branches are not reporting their meetings nor giving the paper proper support. The advertising which was determined to any expenses has not come up to expectations. POWER OF PARTY ORGANIZATION.

We assume, reader, that you are sin- | agreed plan, directing their forces to ercly desirous of advancing the cause & Socialism, that you understand its principles and hold to its ideals, and that you are willing to do your part basiening its triumph. If, then, do not yet belong to the organized Socialist Party, we assume that it is because you do not well know what the party organization is, what it does or how you could do better service to the cause by enrolling yourself in its

Every party, if it is to amount to anything, if it is to have any coherence and steadfastness of purpose and effectiveness of action, must have as organization of some sort.

It is the fushion with many of those whom we call "reformers"-that is people who are vaguely dissatisfied are negatively protesting against things a they are, but have not reached the positive and constructive stage-to decry party organizations or party "machines," as they prefer to call them. That is a characteristic part of their fatuity. It is very foolish. Experience proves its folly. Have you ever seen that unorganized "independ ent" Democratic or Republican voters however decent and sincere-accom plished anything? Say the Democratic party disgusts many of its followers .by its corruptness or its stupidity. What can the more honest and intelligent Democrats who are disgusted do as . unperential Independents? The most they have ever done is to stay away from the polls or spasmodically to vote the Republican ticket, "as a protest," thus putting in power, for a time, another machine in the place of the one of which they have tired, "turning the rascals out" to make room for other rascals indistinguishable from them except by the party label. The high-minded independent voter nobly imme from the frying-pan into the fire and, after an experience of a year or two, as nobly jumps back The devil that was exercised returns with seven others worse than himself, all greedier and more insolent than be

Experience compels even the indepandent voters of the old parties to realize this and, much as they hate party machines, they are forced, will they nill they, to form an "independent organization," to build a new machine to fight the old one. The new machine is, as a rule, very badly made, loose at the joints and deficient in motive power. Dissenting from their party, not in principle, but only on details of personality or method, the independents try to make a machine that will serve the same purposes in a little different way, and smash the old one; for fear it may escape from their control, they make it weak; and then they wonder that, instead of smashing, it goes to smash, and leaves them with the old choice of the deviand the deep sea, the frying-pan and the fire, their old capitalist party machine and the other capitalist party

Their error was not in making a new machine, but in purposely making it an imperfect copy of the old one. Had it beeff well made, it would have served the same evil purposes just as well as the old one: being hadly made, it serves the same evil purposes not so well: but being a copy, being built on the same capitalist principles, it cannot serve any but those evil purposes.

A machine, then, is necessary; a ma chine built for evil work will do evil work, well or ill, according as it is well or ili made: a machine built for good work will do good work, well or Ill, according as it is strongly or weakly constructed.

What is a capitalist party machine? Consider, for instance, such a splendid machine as Tammauy Hall, doing its infamous work with such wonderful efficiency. It is worth considering, Wise men learn from the devices of Tammany is a body of some eight or ten thousand New York Democrats. which absolutely rules the hundreds of thousands of Democratic voters in the city, draws their platforms and determines whether or not the platforms shall be carried out, chooses the candidates, and dictates the distribution of patronage and spoils. It makes or breeks, at its will, the political reputations and careers of the greatest Demcratic leaders. The aspirant to politi cal honors, he he a never so wise, never so elegment-may, even though be be rich and famous-can seldom refuse to bow to Tammany's commands. The other hundreds of thousands of Democratic voters may take their choiceendorse Tammany's decisions or put the equally vicious but not equally efficient Republican machine in for a change. Tammany can afford to take the chances, nine times in ten.

Now why can Tammany do this? Not because Tammany's members are wise or eloquent or in any way able above the average; but because though rather below the average in ability, they are well organized. cause, instead of each working for Democratic success in his own way, in his own field, and at his own time, in which case they would often waste their efforts by duplicating part of the work and leaving other parts undone and even work sometimes at crosspurposes, they all work together on an

the spots where they are most needed soviding friction and following the line of least resistance. Tammany occasionally makes mistakes and semioccasionally pays for them; but in the long run Tammany knows what it vote as Tainmany says, because they consider Tammany invincible. That is what comes of strong organization. But, perhaps you will say, seeing what a terrible thing this Tammany is, seeing how it misrules the Dem crats against their will and by iniquitons methods for its own iniquitous purposes, surely we Socialists want nothing of the sort in our movement wants, knows how to get it, and does get it. Nine Democrata out of ten in

surely we have nothing to hope and everything to fear from imitating it. That is a hasty conclusion. The outside Democrats have no will of their own; their will is Tammany's willonly they wish they were inside; they hone to be inside, if they behave well; that is why they hate Tammany and yet vote for it. And as for its iniquitous methods and purposes, they are precisely in accordance with the fundamental principles of the Democratic party-and the Republican party, toonamely, the principle of private profit, the right to get something for nothing If you can; and all that the outside Democrats complain of is that they can only smell the fleshpots, not dip

A Democratic organization must have iniquitous methods and purposes. Of course. So must a Republican or ganization. So must any capitalist organization. It does not follow that this is true of every organization or of every strong organization. The stronger an organization, the more completely will its action embody its fundamental principles. A strong organization founded on principles of parasitism will be a more perfect parasite than a weak one and will do more to perfect the system of parasitism. A strong organization founded on principles of justice and liberty and fraternity and equality will be juster and more democratic than a weak one and will do more to basten the realization of democratic buman ideals.

We do not want a Tammany Hall in the Socialist movement, indeed. But we do want an organization which, in accordance with the different principles of our party, will serve its purposes as well as Tammany serves those of the Democratic party. Certainly it must differ in many respects from Tammany; but it should not be inferior in coherence, in loyalty, in diecipline, in power of mobilizing and directing the efforts of its members for

You must understand, moreover that some such organization we are bound to have, whether we like it or not. If the openly recognized party organization is not strong enough to do its work, then unauthorized and perhaps more or less dangerous organizations-all the more dangerous as they are not authorized or recognizedwill spontaneously arise to meet the needs and opportunities of the time. It is for you, and each of you for himself, to say which we shall have a powerful and well disciplined and at the same time open and democratic party organization, or a system of cliques and coteries.

You, therefore—you individuallyhave a responsibility in this matter. You can do your share to make the Socialist Party stronger and more coherent, to conserve its energies and direct them rightly, to keep it democratic in its methods and true to its principles. Your place is in the party organization. Your duty there is to keep yourself informed on questions of party principle and party policy, to cast your vote according to the dictates of your conscience on such questribute according to your means to the expenses of the party, and in all ways co-ordinate your efforts with those your fellow Socialists, that we may achieve the greatest results with the least waste of force. In this paper you will find a party directory. Make use of it and join the organization without delay. The party needs you and you need the party.

DUTCH STRIKE BILL

HELPS SOCIALISTS. The London "Times" reports that there is great popular excitement in Holland over the bill introduced by the government to make striking a penal offense. It is admitted that the government has gien a great advantage to the Socialists by this ultra-reactionary measure because the working people will turn to the Socialist Party in greater numbers than ever before to safeguard themselves against such a riveting of their economic claims.

CAPITALIST ECONOMY.

The last annual report of the American Woolen Company, or Woolen Trust, shows a state of prosperity highly gratifying to the capitalists coalinguly gratifying to the capitalists con-cerned. Comparing the year 1002 with 1001, the income from sales and other sources was $715,045 greater in the lat-ter than in the former year; at the same time the total fearly costs and expenses were reduced $434,265. This double result, President Ayer explains, was largely due to the introduction of improved machiners, which increased Socialist Speakers Address Protest Mosting Hold by New Haven Trades Geuneil-Legislative Attack on Unions Shown as Part of Capitalist Policy-Must to Met on Political Field.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 15. Under the auspices of the Trades Council a mass meeting was held in Union Hall, Friday night, to protest against the reactionary legislation gainst the labor moven Legislature. Comrades J. W. Brown of Hartford and Frederick Grube of this city were the speakers. Their addresses made a deep impression, both speakers making a clear presenta tion of the facts, showing the bills now being pushed in this state to be but a part of a general concerted attempt of the capitalist class in this country and in Europe to crush the labor or ganizations that they cannot corrupt or mislead, and warning their heavers of the necessity of class-conscious and omising political action by the workers to overthrow capitalist class rule, as the only way to escape com plete subjugation and the triumph of Resolutions Adopted.

At the close of the meeting the folowing resolutions were unanimously adopted and ordered to be given the

idest publicity:
"In view of the fact that the follow ing bills have been introduced in the Legislature at Hartford: Senate Bill No. 76 (Senator Tracy of Waterbury); House Joint Resolution No. 185 (Rep. resentative Hallock of Derby); Senate

Bill No. 152 (Sonator Tracy); and "Whereas, The passage of the ab named bills will be detrimental to the interests of the working class in gen-eral and destructive to the trades and labor organizations in particular, being introduced for the specific purpose of aiding the exploiting class in its strenuous efforts to curb the spirit of the workers for the betterment of their conditions by draconic laws that threaten workingmen with infamous penalties for upholding the principles of their organizations and destroy indirectly every union by compulsory in Reactionary Bills.

The nature of this proposed legisla. tion has already been made clear in the columns of The Worker, the Tracy Bill having been printed in full in the issue of March 8. In brief, these bills if enacted into law, will provide for the incorporation of trade unions; will subject to heavy penalties of fine and imprisonment the officers and committees of any union which demands the unionizing of a shop—that is, the em-ployment of union men exclusively; will require unions of workingmen employed by "any corporation engaged in public service or the supply of any article of common necessity" to give two weeks notice of their intention to strike, under penalty of heavy fines for every member of the union-thus strike can be carried on in any such industry; will impose heavy fines upon any person who shall "by violence, in-timidation, THREAT OF SOCIAL OSTRACISM, OR OTHER INTER-FERENCE," attempt to prevent any other person from taking the place of strikers; with other provisions of the

The enactment of such measure would mean that the trade unions, except as mere social clubs and mutua insurance societies, would be complete ly outlawed in the state of Connect.

Who Treey Is.

The speakers showed that Senator Tracy and Representative Hallock are acting as the direct representatives of the great corporations whose oppres sion has forced one strike after an other, including the vigorous struggle now being made by the street railway employees of Waterbury. They also pointed out Senator Tracy's particular fitness for the job. He is a rich lun ber-yard owner and a large employer of carpenters. For years he has been known as a labor-skinner of the worst sort, and his sympathies are naturally altogether with his own class. Some years ago be imported French Canadians to work as scabe and force down the wages of the Connecticut carpen-ters and woodworkers. These imported men, however, soon learned to understand the situation, joined the Carpenters' Union, demanded the Carpentern' Union, demanded the scale, and proved as good union men as the native Americans. This experience has made Mr. Tracy exceedingly bitter against the whole labor move

Brown's Address.

Comrade Brown, who is a very forcible speaker and well known for his work both in the Carpenters' Union and in the Socialist Farty, was greeted with loud applause as he appeared on the platform.

He began by saying that he had healtated about attending this meet-ing. He was tired of mere protest meetings, where a lot of workingmen got together, listened to speakers, ap-plauded, adopted resolutions, and then went home and forgot all about it and at the next opportunity voted in the representatives of the same parties whose acts they had condemned. "Your resolutions will not do you any good." he said, in effect, "if they are only resolutions on paper, They will have no effect whatever unless they expenses were reduced $434,263. This double result, President Ayer explains, was largely due to the introduction of improved machinery, which increased the productive capacity of the milis while enabling the company to economine on the payrolls.

This, he said, is what the capitalists the swakening of the workers to a sense or their political power. That is the secret of the last clause of the Tracy Bill, which proposes to disfran-chise every person who shall be con-victed of having "by word or deed en-couraged or abetted any act of mob violence." We know how easy it is with capitalist judges on the bench, to prove the existence of mob violence where perfect order actually reigns and to convict of riotous conduct any man whom the capitalists consider ob-noxious to their interests. This clause will, if the law goes through, put it in the power of the capitalists to disfranchise every workingman who shows himself conscious of the interests and the wrongs of his class and loyal to

Wage-Slavery and Class Struggle. He then alialysed the system of capi-talism or wage-slavery, showing that the private ownership of the means of production in the present advanced stage of industry necessarily divides men into classes with antagonistic in terests-the class of owners, who live by levying toll (profit, interest, and rent) for giving others permission to work, and the class of workers, who have to give up to the owners all the value of their product except enough to maintain the lives of themselves and their families. These two class cannot live at peace. Each is bound to use every means in its power to strengthen its position against the other-the capitalists to check competition among themselves and stimulate competition among the workers and to interfere with the organization of labor; the workers to organize and limit their own competition for employment in the hope of getting a little larger Comparing the wage system with that of chattel slavery, he showed that, while the slave-owner cared for his human chattel, since that chattel had a market value, the modern employer is under no such obligation, since the replaced at a less cost than can a cog in a machine." One of his telling re-marks was, "The slave was placed on a block and sold at auction, but the modern American voting king sells ceiving each day in wages ju recompense to enable him to replace the energy expended in that day's work and thus enable him to go with his toll the next day." Bruhe Exposes Canitalist Tricks.

Comrade Grube earefully analysed the provisions of the bills, section by section, illustrating the effect which their enactment would have in paralys-ing labor organizations and giving untrammeled power to the capitalists. He showed that, with capitalist law expanded and administered by lawye and judges trained to believe in t sacredness of capitalist profits, the incorporation of business interests is an advantage to their proprietors, consoli-dating their forces and limiting their individual responsibility, while the in-corporation of labor organizations would simply result in putting them at the absolute mercy of the employ-ers and their political and judicial

He also urged working-class political action as the only remedy for the wrongs the workers suffer. He drew a striking picture of the old-party poli-tician just before election, telling about the harmony of Capital and Le-bor and flattering and cajoling the workingmen, and the same politician, immediately after election, receiving and obeying instructions from the capitalists whose patronage and conributions had secured him the nomi-ation and provided for his campaign. tributions had se So long as you are willing to take the politicians gweet words at their face value, so long as you are willing to value, so long as you are willing to vote for candidates supported by the capitalists against whom you strike, so long as you so on voting for men in-stead of principles and letting leaders do your thinking for you, he said, you are being treated to-day.

The Worker is unable to verify the foregoing report farther than to say that it is believed by comrades in Richmond whom we have reason to consider men of good judgment. The country is wild and remote from cen-ters of population, all avenues of communication are controlled by the min ing and railway companies, and we all know that the Associated Press and the capitalist papers can, on occasion, carry self-denial to the point of sup-pressing even very sensational news when great capitalist interests de-

"Senators Like to Hear from the Manufacturers."

Another Circular of the Rational Assoc'ation of Manufacturers, Issued Shortly Before Congress Adjourned -Employers Got What They Asked and Labor Got Nothing.

The Worker has just obtained a copy of still another of the circulars of the National Association of Manu facturers. The present letter was sent out to manufacturers about three weeks before the adjournment of Con green. We print it in full:

"Dear Sires—We write you again upon a new phase of the situation in reference to the Eight-Hour Bill in Washington, not at all excitedly, but to ask you, AS THE GREATEST PAVOR THAT YOU COULD POS-SIRLY DO FOR ALL THE MANU-PACTURING AND EMPLOYING IN-TERESTS OF THE COUNTRY, to accede to this simple request; namely, write to Hon, Wm. B. Allison, United States Senate, Washington, D. C. NOT FOR ANYTHING IN THE WORLD TO PERMIT THE GOM-PERS EIGHT-HOUR BILL, so called even in its amended form, TO BE MADE A PART OF THE PROGRAM LEGISLATION FOR THE RE MAINDER OF THIS SESSION.

"The simple facts are these: This preposterous measure has not a real friend in the Senate; yet so strong is the fear of organized labor, which has a large lobby upon the spot all the time, even threatening Senators who do not do its bidding, that if the meas are should ever come to a vote, it might pass. Of course, certain Sena-tors could speak against it; and since the remainder of the session is very short, it might be prevented from com-ing to a vote by some lucky combination of parliamentary circumstances BUT WE DO NOT WANT TO TAKE THAT CHANCE, and we know that you-baving in mind the welfare of employees as well as employerswould regret it if anything so unfor-

"Senator Allison is one of the two or three most influential Senators, and if he and one or two others decide that the Eight-Hour Bill shall not be considered at all as a part of the Senate program, it will not be considered. Hence, while all of our friends are watchful, we wish to take no chance whatever, and we ask you as urgently as possible to help us. If you will ex plain that this Eight-Hour Bill would in a short time affect everybody unfavorably, AS THE LABOR LEAD ERS INTEND THAT IT SHALL, and that he will be doing the manufactur ing and employing interests of the country the greatest possible service by preventing its consideration AT ALL HAZARDS, you will lay us unsideration AT der many obligations.

"No one else can do this but you The Senator likes to hear from the manufacturers. Please do this; and let us hear from you, indicating what you have done, so that we may cooperate with you as effective

Parry's Hopes Fulfilled. The event proved either that Presilent Parry and Secretary Cushing did their work very well or, what is nearer the probabilities, that they were un-necessarily anxious, that the whole thing was already fixed at Washing on. The Fourth of March came and th Fifty-seventh Congress expired out passing the Eight-Hour Bill, the Anti-Injunction Rill, or any other place of isbor legislation. Every one of these bills, of whose "progress" we have heard so much in the reports of the officers of the American Federa tion of Labor, is now dead. The Federation lobbyists will have to begin again at the beginning, get the bills introduced, wait for weary months be fore they are reported, see them amended out of shape and then passed, perhaps, by the House, only to see them die again in the Senate two olemn farce we have witnessed at many times over-unless the rank and file of the unions develop resolution enough to overrule the conervative leaders and put an end to the disgraceful exhibition of Labor humbly begging and meekly accepting neglect and insult and unless the rank and file of the working class, organized and unorganized, cast such a great! increased Socialist vote in the e oughly frighten the capitalist politi does, and every other capitalist politi-cian. They are his friends and patrons. They are men of his class. They are the "eminent citizens" who chose him to be the candidate of the Bepublican or the Democratic party as the case may be, who supplied the funds for his campaign, and whose nomination was passively endorsed by the unthinking majority of the voters. The Senator knows that it is to these minent gentlemen, not to the voters that he really owes his place. He like to hear from them, to receive their in-structions, in order that he may do their work and deserve their continued favor. When the majority of the workers think before voting, we shall have public officials who will like to hear from the labor organizations for just the same reason and who will faithfully do the will of the working class because they will know they owe vancement to that class and not to the

The most interesting feature of the report of the American Sugar Re-fitting Company, or Sugar Trust for the year ending January S. 1966, in the great increase in the mount of its surplus invested in the tooks of other companies. The assets shown by the report aggregate nearly $120,000,000, co $34.000,190; cash and bills collectible $30,046,750; raw and manufactured ugar, $15.842,924; investo ther companies, $45,270,776.

The item last named is increased by over $0,000,000 as compared with the report for the previous year—that is the Sugar Trust has, during the year besides paying dividends to its stock holders, been able to buy six million dollars' worth of the stocks and bonds of other corporations. There is no neans of asserting what these inves nents have been, but it is supposed in financial circles that they chiefly in purchases of stock of the

'Dear Sir:-In the morning edition of the New York 'American' of Januof the New Jork American of shut-ary 24 there appeared an extract alleged to have been taken from a speech delivered in Norfolk, Va. Ex-Mayor John C. Chase of Haver-hill, in which he is reported to have spoken of the New York 'American' and of vorrealf in the most flattering. and of yourself in the most flattering terms. It is so entirely foreign to the spirit of the class-conscious Socialist movement for any of its advocates to bestow adulation upon a newspaper conducted in the interest of a capital-ist party or upon any member of a capitalist party, such being regarded as little short of an act of beirayal, that I was instructed at that time by the Kings County Committee of the Social Damocratic Party to write to Ex-Mayor Chase asking if the speech was correct as reported and if not to give it denial. I have just this week received Mr. Chasen's reply in which he states in the most emphatic terms that the extract referred to, in so far as it speaks of yourself and the 'Amerlcan,' is a fabrication from beginning to end and that he has written you to that effect. In justice to Mr. Chase I may say that we looked for no other kind of an answer.

"The Democratic party, must be in sore straits when it finds it necessary to its own preservation to pervert and distort the words of the speakers of a rival organization in order, to make capital out of them. When any political organization is obliged to resort to tactics of this kind we venture to say that it is the safest indication that it has lost all vitality and provides one of the surest symptoms of approach-ing dissolution and decay and I am sure no one knows better than yourself that all the experience of the past justifies that conclusion.

"While you may be legally respon sible for the acts of your correspondents, yet it is quite possible that an unscrupulous correspondent may impose false items of news upon you for which you cannot be regarded as im-mediately responsible; and although there is a fundamental difference in our political creeds, yet we are not prepared to believe that the New York 'American is so unprincipled as de-liberately to print a shameless and audacious falsehood. I write therefore to request that you will give this letter and the letter which has been sent to you by Ex-Mayor Chane the same inence in the was given to the fabricated extract

"Yours sincerely, "ALEX. FRASER. "Secretary of Kings County Com-

infitee, Social Democratic Party." This is far from being an excep fional instance of purposeful men-dacity on the part of the Hearst papers. In fact, such seems à part of their settled policy. A few weeks be-fore the publication of the faise refrom Norfolk, these paper printed an alleged interview with Eugene V. Debs, quoting him as say-ing that the Western Federation of Miners would support Hearst for the presidency. Although Comrade Debs promptly sent an unqualified denial, the Hearst papers did not publish it. On the very eve of the election of 1900, too late for our weekly press to reply, these papers printed a story very care-fully concocted to convey the impression that Comrade Debs, then the presidential candidate of the Social favor of Brysn. Fortunately we had anticipated this trick and forestalled

It is not expected that the "Ameririll pay any more attention to the Fraser letter than to that which Chase sent direct. It is therefore in-cumbent on readers of The Worker to give the widest publicity to this exposure of Hearst's methods.

METAL COMPARIES' DIVIDENDS

According to the "Engineering and ining Journal" the February dividends of corporations in the mineral industries of the United States were the largest in five mouths, in spite of the fact that fewer companies deciared dividence and several de-ciered smaller ones than last year. In the month, 88 metal mining and manu-facturing companies paid a total of $18,100,980. Over two-thirds of thin, $8,930,497, was paid on United to Steel preferred. This company has, during the twenty-one months of its existence, paid dividends at the tate of over fifty-six million dollars a des interest on bends, and cumulating a surplus.

INDEPENDENT LABOR LEAGUE.

To Oppose Strikes and "Protect Indopendent Workingmen in Their Indopendence"-How York "Sun" Shows Lively Interest in the Movement-Affiliation with Civic Federation Suggested.

A New York "Sun" disputch from Albany, dated March 18, says:

"The Independent Labor League of America was incorporated to-day in the office of the Secretary of State. The incorporators are Eugene A. Kies, Albert Pinker, Emmet Hidebrant, Fred, P. Jay, Alois Schirnberger, Carl Koenigsmann and Charles B. Swain, all of Elmira. The objects of the league

"First - To protect independent workmen in their independence "Second—To oppose strikes, lock-outs, boycotts and blacklists.

"Third-To obtain high wages, short ours and good conditions, by (a) intelligent application of our energies; (b) earnest co-operation with our employees; (c) legitimate business meth-

"Fourth-To furnish favorable condition for training apprentices.

"Fifth-To provide trade education our members. "Sixth—To compel labor unions to observe the laws. "Seventh-To compel officers of the government to enforce laws.

"Eighth — To protect members against unjust employers by due rucees of law.

"Ninth-To provide an employment bureau for our members.
"Tenth-To furnish sick and accident benefits to members. "This league movement," says one of its promoters, 'distinctly proposes to take the leadership of labor in this and other countries out of the hands of the radical socialistic minority, which in the history of the labor movement has always tended to some fanatical uprising, and to place it in the hands of the intelligent, soberminded workmen, who believe that all classes are dependent on industrial success and continued prosperity for a good living. The great body of workmen of this country want an organization of this kind, and over 50 per cent. of the members of the unions are heartily in sympathy with it. It would not be inappropriate for this new isher organization to be given representation in the National Civic Federation'." The closing remark is quite correct This new organization is evidently dealgued to work in harmony with such organizations as the National Civic Federation and the National Economic League, and it will undoubtedly have the approval of Messra, Hanna, Cleve-land, Schwab, Rockefeller, Bliss, Vreeland, Nixon and the other capitalis friends and fleecers of Labor who back

Although the name differs slightly, the newly incorporated body seems to he identical with the so-called National Lengue of IndependentWorkingmen, of which some account was given in The Worker of Jan. 11 and of Feb. 1. The New York "Sup" has all along shown a lively and patronizing interest in the affair. The approval of the "Sun" will hardly be regarded as a good cre-dential for the League by "50 per cent. of the members of the unions" or by anyone who knows the attitude of that 'American' which | paper on the labor question.

WASHINGTON, March 10.-The na tional officers of the American Federa-tion of Labor have received from Tampa, Fla., information that the two Federation organizers there, James Wood, a Vice-President of the Cigar Secretary of the Cigarmakers' local in Tampa, have been served with a threatening notice by a so-called "citi-zens" committee."

They have a right to organize workingmen, and, if necessary, in defense of their rights, to strike for the enforcement of them, if no other means is afforded. THE GREAT FAIR OPENS THIS WEEK.

work, the time is at hand and prepara-tions are virtually complete for the opening of the Daily Globe Fair in Grand Central Palace. On Saturday, March 28, promptly at noon, the doors will open, and for nine days following that will be the rendezvous of all working people in Greater New York and the vicinity who have the welfare of their class at heart and realize the need of a daily paper to speak for their class in all its struggles.

The Fair Journal.

The full program for the nine days is presented in the Fair Journal and The Worker may therefore confine it-self to noting the salient features of the entertainment. This Journal, by the way, is not the least remarkable feature of the enterprise. Everyone who attends the Fair will want a copy as a guide and as a souvenir and sym pathizers who are prevented by distance from being present in person should not fail to participate to the extent of getting one or more copies of the Journal, which will be put on sale Saturday.

Pair Journal is, in fact, a magni zine in itself. Among the contents aside from the program, we may note the following articles: "Welcome; "The Globe," a poem by Peter E. Burrowes; "Our Fair," by William Butscher; The Misinformation of the World, "The Misinformation of the World," by George D. Herron; "The Power of, a Daily," by Algernen Lee; "Historys of the English Labor Press in New; York," by H. L. S.; "The Needs of the Hour," by William Mallly; "An Agita-ter's Call," by Sol Fieldman; "The University Letters," by H. M. Force of Composite Action," by H. Gaylord Wlishire: "Race Snielde and Bocknism," by Dre-Anna Ingermana "The Hope of a Higher Civilization," by William Thurston Brown; "Keep the Roots in the Soll," Herman Schlue-ter; "The Straight and Narrow Path," by Alexander Jonas; "The Intellecrais and the Socialist Movement," by Dr. S. Ingermann; "Reminiscences of a Ploneer," by Theodore Cano; "Laa Pioneer," by Theodore Cuno; "Labor's Triple Alliance," by Morris Hillquit; "The American Trade-Union' Movement," by Max Hayes; "The Taff Vale Decidon," by John Sparge; "Woman Workman and Socialism," by man, Workman, and Socialism, Johanna Dahme: "Our Only Hope and Promise," by Leonard D. Abbott; a poem by William L. Beness; together with the national platform, report o the vote, information about the party and about unions, etc., with portraits of writers and a beautiful cover design by Ryan Walker. The Journal will be on sale every day at the Fair, at 10 cents a copy. If sent by mail the price is 15 cents a capy or two for 23 cents, and orders should be addressed to the Comrado Publishing Company, 11 Cooper Square, New York, who act as agents for the Fair Committee in this matter. Every party organization outside of New York should get at least a few copies of the Journal for sale to menlers or at meetings. It will sell readily and the proceeds will help toward the great purpose of establishing our Saturday's program, opening the Fair, will be an impressive one. Henjamin Hanford, well known to the corkingmen of New York and of the country as an eloquent spokesman of Labor's cause, will deliver the opening ddress. The New York Letter Carriers' Band of sixty pieces, led by Frank E, Houts, the Boys' Club Drum. Pife and Bugle Corps, and a chorns of five hundred voices from the Workingmen's Singing Societies, led by Joseph Ringelmann, will present a splendid musical program. There will also be other interesting features.

The other eight days of the Fair are sasigned as follows: Sunday, March 20—Machiniste' and Metal Workers' Day. Beggs' Band and Orchestra, Sattler's Musical School, a chorus from the Singing Socicties, Turn Verein Vorwaeris, and many others will take part in a good many others will take part in a grand sacred concert."

Monday-Printing Trades' and West Tuesday — Building Trades and Bronx and Westchester Day, Wednesday—Carnival Day. Thursday—Brooklyn and Brewery Workers' Day.

Friday — Bobemian and Tobacco Workers' Day. Saturday, April 4—East Side Day. Sunday, April 5-New Jersey Day.

Points of Interest.

The matters and points of interest will be many and varied. For those who like music and dramatic enter-tainment there will be, besides the daily programs on the main stage, the Globe Theater at the west end of the balcony, where a short play will be: presented each weekday evening, fol-lowed by a vaudeville entertainment, with sacred concerts each Sunday.

At last, after many months of hate | floor every evening from 8 o'clock till midnight, with good music furnished by Mr. Beggs of Local 41, A. F. of M. The great hall gives room for hundreds of couples and no doubt it will be put The eight booths, four of which are in charge of the Ladies' Daily Globe Club, will not be neglected. All sorts of things, from toothpicks to pianos, things useful, things beautiful, things curious, and things desirable for any other conceivable reason, will be dis-played for sale at prices that would grieve the heart of good Mr. Wanamaker.

"A little population now and then is relished by the best of men," and so a visit to the Funny Museum will be on the list if you want to "do" the whole thing properly.

For the rest, space forbids enumeration. Come and see it. Come early and often. Come as early as you can —and you will not be in a hurry to leave. Bring your friends and they will come again and bring their friends. Remember that everything that you do to swell the attendance and patronage of this Fair means that so much the sooner will the Daily Globe begin to publish the truth about the labor movement, to set right the lies of the capitalist press, and to educale the workers for freedom. IN NEW HAVEN.

Convention of Seci. list Party Rominates W. E. White for Mayor and Full City T.oket-The Platform.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 23. The Socialist Party is in the field in New Haven with a full city ticket headed by William E. White as candidate for Mayor. It is expected that the legislative and judicial assaults now being made upon the labor move ment in this state will have the effect of opening many workjummen's eyes to the facts of the class struggle and that the vote of the Socialist Party will be materially increased.
Our city platform is an follows:
"We, the Socialist Party of New Haven, la convention assembled, pro-claim our adherence to the revolutionary principles of Socialism and to the Socialist Party of the United Benten. "We declare that labor of hand and brain is the creator of all wealth, and that the imborer B'entitled to all of the wenith which he creates. "We declare that capital, the modern enns of production, is but a part of the wealth created by labor and rightfully belongs to its creators, the labor-cre of the past and to their heirs, the laborers of the present. "We declare that the present system of private ownership of capital which chables a few idlam to keep the greater just of the wealth which labor alone creates, and to return to the workers of the world but a meager share called wages, is but another form of slavery. This profit system is the cause of industrial crises and poverty and starvation in the midst of abundance; of idleness for men and overwork for wemen and children; of wars for formarkets and the perversion of free government to perpetuate the rule of the capitalist class; and above all it is the cause of the bitter conflict be tween the organized forces of capital and labor.

"The abolition of these conditions is the final object of the labor movement. The kerstone of cantralist society is the private ownership of industry. So long as the present system of industry remains, the capitalist class will appropriate the wealth created by the working class, and there will inevita-bly be warfare between the interests of the working class and the capitalist

"We, therefore, call upon the working class, while neglecting no oppor-tunity to secure through trade unions immediate improvement in the condition of labor, to organize into the Socialist Party, wrest all political power from capitalist control, so that it may be used by the working class to abolish the wage system by restoring the industries of the country to the people as a collective body; and to introduce a system of industry which shall secure to all the full enjoyment of their rights as well as industrial and politi-

PROSPERITY OF TOBACCO TRUST.

It Aiready Controls Two-Thirds of the Tobacco Industry.

As Strong, Proportionately, as the Steel Trust and Steedily Growing-Over 332,000,000 "Net Earnings"-A Striking Illustration of the Contraitzing Yendency under Capitaliani.

The annual report of the Tobacco Trust-the Consolidated Tobacco Company, with its subsidiary companies the American and the Continental which in turn, control many smaller companies shows how far the process of trustification has already gone in this industry and gives little comfort to those who expect a combination of cigarmakers and small dealers to "smash" the trust by competing with it in business or by any methods short of the socialisation of its means of in 1900 the total "net earnings" of the whole tobacco industry in the United States-including the whole manufacture of smoking and chewing tobacco, snuff, elgars, and elgarettesaccording to the United States census. amounted to $40,545,584. Judging by the rate of increase in previous years. the total net earnings of the industry in 1902 may be estimated at about

Of this amount, the reports of the Consolidated and its two subsidiary companies account for $32,518,900— leaving less than $18,000,000 for all the Trust's competitors together. In other words, the Trust, although it is still roung and had to spend a large part of its income in fighting for its position of supremacy, was able, in the year 1902, to pocket 65 per cent, of the profits of the whole industry.

Actual Profits Still Greater.

The sum of thirty-two and a half illions of dollars given for the "net carnings" of the Trust does not actu-ally represent the full amount of surplus extracted from the labor of the workers in the industry, the full amount of unestroed income received by the stockholders and bondholders through their ownership and control of the means of production. "Net carnings" indicates the amount left after deducting from the gross receipts all expenses of operation—wages and salaries, cost of materials, rent, taxes, insurance, repairs, and innumerable other "miscelianeous expenses." Many se items of expense, however are not, in the economic sense, a part of the cost of production, but are actunity portions of the net product diverted into the capitalists' coffers in some other channels than those of dividends and interest on stocks and bonds. Rent, for instance, is a form of capitalist appropriation. To a great extent the large salaries of officers fall under the same category, being only a disguised form of profit. Be-sides these, the term "miscellaneous expenses" is made to cover a thousand and one methods by which a part of the value of the product is appro-priated by the controlling capitalists.

The amount of these items cannot be ascertained. We know only that the value appropriated by the capitalists participating in various ways in the Tobacco Trust during the year was in excess and probably very much in excess of the $32,518,069 acknowl-

"Dividing Un."

A safe estimate, based on the censu orts and other data, would indicate that the Trust paid out in wages and salaries, during the same year, about $85,000,000. That is, the net product of labor in this industry was about women, and children who did the work setting about half, and the few hundreds or, perhaps, few dozens of capi-talists who own the means of production and did no useful work getting the other haif. The real estate and plant-lands, factories machinery, warehouses, etc. -directly owned by the Tobacco Trust are valued at nearly $82,000,000. The raw materials and manufactured prodnet on hand at the close of the year rere worth over $22,000,000. Am the other items of assets the most in teresting are stocks in foreign comonles to the amount of over $13,000. 000 and in other American con to the value of over $37,000,000.

Doing the impossible.

Even so intely as three or four years ago it was confidently alleged that while trustification might succeed in such industries as iron and steel manufacture, where large plants are neces-aary, it would forever be impossible to trustify the tobacco and cigar industries, on account of the large number of small producers engaged in them. What was said to be impossible has, however, come to pass. The Tobacco Trust controls at least as large a share of its field as the Steel Trust controls in that industry, it has destroyed or absorbed all its formidable rivals and has only the small fry now to deni with at its leisure, it has got a strong foothold in Europe, and is steadily in renaing its power on both sides of the thought that he scored several points against the Socialists in this address before the Central Federated Union of New York last Sunday. He would certainly be surprised to know how heartly we could applaud those very passages in his speech which we may suppose to have been aimed especially

Mr. Jerome said that there was a mistaken idea in the minds of some people that there was something sentineptal in the relation of labor and capital.

"The capitalists are not in business for your benefit, and you are not in it for the benefit of the capitalists," he rontinued.

"The capitalists want all they can get. The labor organizations want all they can get, and the stronger will win and ought to win. The workingman ought to win, and he will win if he persists. I have no use for the people who talk graft and octopus on the one side, and labor trranny on the other. There are two great opposing forces, each wanting all that it can get. • • • • The social and economic system is always in a state of evolution. Ever since man was able to stand on his hindlegs he has been striving for all he can get. You are going to win if you are the stronger, and to lose if you are the weaker. Don't accept at wishy-washy stuff about the brothe Don't accept any boud of man or economic forces or inherent rights. If you are strong you win; if you are not you lose. It is the universal law."

Mr. Jerome undoubtedly draws wrong inferences from this principle. But the principle is a sound one, nevertheless. It is his business to draw wrong inferences from it. It is our business to draw right inferences. "The capitalists are not in business for your benefit." When men are praised as "eminent and public spirited citizens" because they are at the head of great industries, when you are told that you ought to entrust the management of public affairs to them or to nen approved by them because they "give employment" to so many workingmen, remember that they are not in business for your benefit. They are not giving you anything when they employ you. They are getting some thing out of you, getting something for sofbing, getting profit out of you-and they will get all out of you that they can, working you to the limit of your strength, wearing you out, and then consigning you to a pauper's grave without the least bit of sentimental ompunction. "You are not in business for the benefit of the capitalists." That calls for a little qualification. In one sense it is not true. You are working for the benefit of the capitalists. You cannot work otherwise. Unless some capitalist can make a profit—get something for nothing, that is-by your labor, you do not get permission to work. That is the difference between your position and the capitalist's. You work, not at your pleasure, but at his, when he says you may, when he can get something out of it. If he cannot get something out of your labor, it matters not how much the people need food or fuel or clothes or houses nor how willing you are to supply them, you will have no chance to bake bread or dig coal or make coats or lay brick.

Mr. Jerome meant, of course, that you are not willingly working for the benefit of the capitalists, that your motive is not to make profits for them, but to get a living for yourselves. That is true. You do not love the capitalisis. You do not care how they fare. Why should you?

You _now that your employer is always planning and scheming-nay, hiring shrewd fellows to plan and scheme for him-how to get you to do the same work for less pay or to do more work for the same pay or to do your work in more crowded and worse lighted and worse ventilated factories and with swifter and more dangerous machinery so that his expense shall be less in proportion to your product.

You know that whenever the canitalist wins a point, you lose a point. More profit for him means either more work or less wages or both for you. Faster work means shorter life for you and more prosperity for the employer. Longer hours means more wealth for the boss less pleasure for you, and some other workman thrown out of a job and forced by the fear of hunger to compete for your job and cut down your wages still lower. What is lieved that the capitalist might be good for the capitalist is bad for you, your brother and have forgotten that

It is idle and foolish to complein or to blame the capitalist for fleecing you and squeezing you to the limit. What do you expect? That a robber shall rob you mercifully? So long as you admit another man's right to hold the power of life or death over you, will you be surprised or aggrieved that he uses that power and uses it for his own benefit and to your burt? That in chilingian;

.There is right. There is brother bood. There is and must be fight and something besides fight. It is right to be loyal to your brothers against your foes and your brothers' foes. And who are your brothers? Morgan is not the steel worker's brother. The coal miner is the steel worker's brother and Morgan and Baer are the enemies of both, All workingmen are brothers, because their interests are identical, because what is good for all of them is good for each of them. They do not all know that yet, It is their business to learn it. In fighting the capitalists they will learn it, willingly or not.

When they learn it thoroughly everywhere, then Labor will be strong in the battle against Capital.

And as you learn to trust and be ioval to your brother workingman you must and will learn to distrust and onpose your master, the capitalist-your masters, the capitalist class. they wish you to do, just that thing must not do. What dread your doing, just that thing you must do.

The capitalists-men no stronger nor wiser nor better in any way than you -are your masters because they own the means of production and can three grant or deny you permission to work. You need and you have produced those means of production. You must take them from the capitalist and ewa them yourselves.

The capitalists own these things because you have allowed them to dominate politics, to wield the public powers directly or through their chosen agents, and so to make or cause to be made laws subservient to their interests. You must take the powers of making and interpreting and executing the laws utterly out of their hands and into your own.

They dominate politics and every other department of life because you believed yourselves inferior, because you thought you must respect these and take their advice, because were have allowed them to divide you on false issues, because you have beevery workingman is and must be your brother. You must rely on yourselves. You must units. You must demend all and fight for all. Thus you will get all, whereas by begging or waiting for a part you will never got anything.

TRADQUARTERS QUESTION SUB-MINUTED

it is a great entisfaction to The Worker to print National Secretary Mailly's statement submitting to genreal vote of the party the question of ation of hundquarters shit compact on of the Quorum. The statement is avoidably a lengthy one, because ne National Secretary was obliged to ike clear the reasons for the regrettable delay in bringing the question before the membership. We heartily hope that this virtually puts an end to the extended discussion of the constiuntiquality of the referendum and all connected with it. Two propositions are new submitted for general vote.

Referendum No. 1, moved by twen ty-nine locals and two branches is cloven states, proposes that headquar tern be at Chicago and that the Na tional Committeemen for Wisconsin lows, Illinois, Indians, and Kentucky constitute the Quorum.

Referendum No. 2, moved by eigh locals in four states, calls on us only to may whether the deposition of the eld Quorum and the removal of the ters to Omnia shall be ose od and, if not, whether headquar ters shall be returned to St. Louis and the old Quorum reinstated,

No. 1 is clear. It embodies the on advocated by The Works from the beginning. No. 2 is some what curiously countructed, involving acres with us will vote for No. 1, put ting bondquarters at Chicago, and often for the fast closes of No. 2, ap-

THE LAW'S DELAY.

To a disinterested observer the stight of the inhor lobbyists at Albany, with instructions to support two cuts dicting monstres, as reported sine where in this paper, would be very musing. For those trade unionists who believe in the policy of begging for favorable legislation from the reprecentatives of capitalist parties, howrver, it is a serious business. As the frogs said to the boy throwing stones, "This may be fun for you, but it's death to us."

Nothing could be more satisfactory to the many ingisiators who have to play the rôle of "friends of Labor" while earning their pay as servants of Capital than this situation. The Workingmen's Federation has asked them to vote for the labor amendment, which the capitalists, hig and little, do not like. It has also asked them to vote for the canal proposition, which the little capitalists favor and many of the big ones oppose and whose passage or defeat will have little or no effect on the interests of the working class. Thus the "friends of Labor" can take their choice, being guided by capitalist instructions and by the political altuation in their respective districts. They can vote against the labor amendment, on the plea of complying with Labor's request that they vote for the canal proposition. They can vote against the canal proposition on the plea that they are complying with Labor's request that they vote for the labor amendment. If they pass the canal proposition the submission of the labor amendment is shelved for a year at ast and perhaps for three years. If they pass the labor amendment the canal proposition is postponed for at least a year. If they pass both, still the submission of one or the other is costponed for a year or more. And by judicious grouping they can probably all save their reputations as "friends of Labor" and yet defeat both the seasures which the Workingmen's Federation has endorsed.

This, not to go beyond the facts of the immediate present. There is still ore to be considered.

This labor amendment, regulating wages and hours of work on municipal contract work, is intended to regain the ground lost by the labor erganisations through the decision of the Court of Appeals that the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law was unconstitutional. Thus if finally adopted this year or in 1904 or 1906, its adoption will not mark a new advance, but only the retrieving of a defeat suntained in 1901. But reference to the opinions readered by the Court of Appeals will show that the decision against the ing Rate of Wag hand, not only on its alleged inconsistency with the state constitution, but also on its alleged inconsistency with the constitution of the United States. The adoption of this proposed amendment will remove the former but not the latter ground of objection. Thus there is every probability that if, after one or two or three years, this much taiked-of amendment is adopted and appropriate legislation enacted, contractors will again resist in the courts and that they will again win on the ground alleged in the opinion of 1901, that such regulation of wages and hours of work violates the "freedom of contract" guaranteed by the federal constitution.

Buch is the law's delay, and such me incidents of the futile and foolish pien of depending on petition and lobbying to get labor legislation.

They tell up the advocates of this policy, when we as Socialists urgo independent political action to secure the whole rights of the workers, that we are visionary, that they alone are practical, that they know how to get omething now, some immediate re-Hef. But experience justifies us in saying that their methods are as unpractical as the ends they propose are complete. Being estimied to beg for a little, they get nothing but alternate finthery and ridicule. When the workers make up their minds to demand and take all that belongs to them, they will not find it hard to get all.

The Court of Appeals said the Provailing Rate of Wages Law was noconstitutional. What to do about it? Two years of lobbying has not beyond. us within sight of the beginning of the proving the removal of the sid St. and Had the same amount of energy

We are asked by a reader to whether or not religion has anything te do with Socialism," as well as to decide cortain disputes arising out of the question. The latter task we respectfully decline, and on the general question we have only to my that the Socialist Party considers religion as a matter of private indement, on which it is not the duty of the party or the state to make any declaration. Many religious organizations of various sects systematically and often maliciously ponous the Socialist movement, as they have opposed other progressive move ents in the past. Religious bigotry has undoubtedly been a most powerful reactionary force in the world's history and has done incalculable harm. The party or its representatives may he obliged to attack representatives of the churches when they leave the field of religion and enter that of economics and politics to fight Socialism; and everywhere the party stands firm against the use of the powers of the state in the interest of any religious sect. Beyond this the party does no It is for each to decide for himself whether this or that or any religious belief or observance is cou sonant to reason and consistent with loyalty to the working class and to humanity. And it may be added that it is possible to be bigotedly irreligious as, well as to be bigotedly religious

disselfous as the other.

Colonel Burpee of Waterbury, com sal for the Connecticut Railroad and Lighting Company, in a statement to the press says: "It may not have been known to the press before, but the company has had sources of information in each of the unions ever since the strike began. Not a move has been made by them that we did not know about almost immediately. Hardly a leader has attended a meeting or conference, no matter where, that we did not receive information of exactly what transpired." We do not doubt the truth of Colonel Burpee's words. Capitalism, controlling the means of education and moral training and setting up the dellar as the highest ideal of life breeze even in the working class creatures shameless enough to act as spies upon their fellow workers and betray them to the capitalist for hire. The employment of such spice is a part of the regular policy of the capitalist class. And this systematic espionage adds force to the Socialist contention that the usual relation of capitalist and working classes is a state of war, and that capitalism is a despotic system, differing from Ruesian cearism only in that its forms are industrial instead of political and that it therefore enters more intimately and insidiously into every nook and corner of human existence, perverting all good to its own foul purposes. A social system that needs spice and janizaries to maintin it must be rotte to the core and its destruction must be a blessing to humanity.

OHE OF MARY. Such letters as this one, received from a young weekingman in the city, do us good: "I am a regular reader of your paper because I am in hearty sympathy with your principles. "Our present industrial system is ther present industrial system is based upon the private ownership of the means of production and the power thereby acquired by the capitainst of making profit out of human labor. All governmental agencies must of neces-sity conform to this industrial framework. It is, in fact, and in very truth, the supreme law of the land. The Cieveland "Citizen" comments as follows: "Many loose thinkers make the careless assertion that these court decrees are unconstitutional. Such is not the case, however. That an injunction is a weapon of oppression when simed at labor organizations is undoubtedly cor-rect, but it is a legal weapon nevertheless, based upon the fundamental law of the land—that is, it is means to dethe individualistic right to private ownership of land and capi-

"I drew up the enclosed proposition referendum because I believed that if the two referendums as denanded should be submitted to the membership, sure confusion and dis-satisfaction would result. When the other members of the Quorum did not sment to my proposition, I withdrew it, so as not to complicate the situation, but since Comrade Untermant supports it, I submit it berewith for consideration.

stood that my proposition was drawn up entirely upon my own responsibil ity, and that the sole object of its ex-istence was a desire to see the ques-tion of location of hendquarters and composition of the Quorum simplified so that the membership could vote in-telligently and decisively upon the question and have it settled by one eferendum. It must be clear to all that if the two demands, as worded, are submitted, it will be difficult for the membership to tell how to vote de cisively. The question should be subthe point at issue, is impartial, and does justice to all the parties interested.

"I consider my proposition the only one yet submitted that covers the point involved in the referendum in a con-stitutional form and that can properly dispose of the question in one vote of membership The point at issue is that of location of headquarte Article 7 of the constitution specifi that the location of headquarters is 8t Louis. so in a constitutional manner.
"Comrade Untermann endorsed my proposition as 'the less and most ex-peditions way of settling the question of the location of headquarters. If, as you rightly pointed out, a constitu-tional amendment is necessary to bring a referendum on this question to a successful issue, the two referen-dums submitted are so much waste of time and energy, because a constitu-tional amendment would still be neces-sary to settle the matter. For this reason, it seems to me the proper thing to do is to submit your proposition to a referendum as soon as possible."
"Comrade Lovett wrote that he would have preferred my proposition 'had it been demanded by the locale in the manner provided.' Let me say that my proposition is not a referen-dum initiated by the National Committee. The Committee has the power to see that a poferendum is placed in a constitutional and the membership, and this is what my proposition sacks to do. The lititative on this question has already been taken by the membership. It is clearly the duty, therefore, of the National Committee to see that the question is committee geoperty. If the Nationa Committee cannot do this, then wind is the Committee for? The Committee can and must exert advisory powers, when necessary, in the interest of the membershop.

"Shall the action of the Natio Committee at St. Louis, Feb. 1, 1903. in removing party headquarters to Omaha be approved?"
"Meeting at which above request was made held Friday, Feb. 20, 1903. Since March 5 additional endorse ents of Demand No. 1 were received from Locals Minneapolis, Minn.; New York; Arlington and North Yakima, Wash, the State Committee of New Jersey, and Locals San Francisco, Cal., Kings County, N. Y., and Madison, Wis., sent special resolutions demanding a referendum.

Along with the foregoing circular the National Secretary sent the follow ing blank form to be filled out by each National Committeeman: "1-Do you favor the submission of

ferendum No. 2 to the party mem-irship? Vote yes or no. "2—100 you favor the submission of the National Secretary's proposition in preference to No. 1 and No. 2, as worded? Vote yes or no.

"i-Shall May I be set as the time for the vote of the membership upon these referendums to close?"

Richardson, Cal., did not vote for or against authoriting wither of the de-mands, but said: "I prefer the Nalional Herretary's wording to that of the various locals; but I do not like even that as worded. If imblect to a referendum of the party means what if eays, it is all right; but If, as some now claim, it means that the act shall be submitted by the National Commit-ter without any requiset from the locals, I ask that the wording be changed, or I oppose its saturation.
This is the very point out of which the difficulty has all grown and it is high time that it be actiled once for all. I favor the submission of the part reinting to the Iscal Quorum as worded by the National Secretary."

Heeley, Fig., "I do not agree that a constitutional amendment is required.

Article 7 gives the power of removal to the National Committee, subject, efc. Now it clearly follows that if the removal of beadquarters and composition of Quorain is agreed to he the membership, who are the highest authority, the word St. Louis changes authority, the word St. Louis changes by that process to Ounha, also all other conflicting parts of the constitution I do hold that we will have to the constitution before the nembership can initiate a place for headquarters, other than that initiated by the National Committee."

Mahoney, Ind.: "The National Comnittee or the Local Quorum cannot prevent the submission of any proposi-tion to the referendum when denon to the referendum when de-manded by the constitutional number of locals. The required number makes all matters constitutional, so if the Secretary's proposition does not carry. which in effect embodies the substance of both the others, then the others must be submitted."

Work, Iowa, voted to submit No. 1, anying: "I do not believe the member-ship has any constitutional right to initiate this referendum, but I believe ional right to submit any question on its own motion." He voted also for No. 2, saying: "I wish this referen-dum had not been initiated, but since it has been, the constitution makes it mandatory upon us to submit it.'

Mills, Kan.: "I do not believe o, 1 is in constitutional form. I am sure that an amendment to the constitution is not necessary to change the headquarters. The constitution was adopted at indianapolis with the name of the place blank. St. Louis was insurted by a special vote under a different order of business and is no ninre of the constitution proper. Omaha is now the bendquarters according to the constitution. We do not need a referendum to make it the headquarters. We do not need a constitutional amendement to make it the headquarters. The only referendum possible under the constitution is one to concur with or reject the action of the National Counsities. * * When the National Committee acts the Na-tional Party has acted and it acts by majority vote. If a referendum is taken on its action and the referen-dum rejects or refuses the action of the National Committee then the party has acted in a different way than the Committee has acted, coming to a dif-ferent conclusion and castelling its

Dubbs, Kr., objected to the Nationa Secretary's proposition and said: "Of course I favor the submission of referndum No. 1 to the party membership I think it is perfectly clear and needs amendment or change to enable the points involved."

Turner; Mo.: "I am of the opinion that referendum No. 1 involves the violation of that part of the national natitution, Article 4, Section 1, which says that the National Committee shall elect a Local Quorum; also Article 7, which says the National Committee may remove the party headquarters, which it has done and now its acts are up for approval, is so. If not approved it should go back to St. Louis or the National Committee should se lect another place. The power granted to the National Committee by the con-stitution cannot be taken away except by an amendment to the constitution. For these reasons I shall vote against the submission of referendum No. 1."

Hillanit, N. Y.: "It is perfectly clear from the reading of our constitution that the framers of the document intended to constitute the party at large the supreme judge on all matters of party organization, including the loca-tion of headquarters and composition of the Local Quorum and there can also be no question that the party most be allowed to exercise such prerogative upon the demand of at prerogative upon the demand of at least five locals in three different states. Now that more than the re-quisite number of locals have de-manded such referendum, it would be petty quibbling to discuss the question as to whether or not the demands have been couched in proper terms. The intention of the demands embodied in the resolutions of the various locals in perfectly clear, and all that remains for the National Committee to do is to autumn the referendum in an intelligent manner. Again, the constitution provides but one way for removal of headquarters, and that is by the National Committee In the constitution there is no plan pro-vided for the membership to change headquarters. This may be a fault, and I think it is, but the fault is in the constitution, not in the National Com-mittee. Amending the constitution by striking out "St. Louis" and inserting "Omaha" would not be removing headquarters, any more than removing headquarters has amended the consti-tution. Editor of The Worker:-It is quite vident that your criticism of the acion of the Nutional Committee in reased upon a misapprehension of the facts or rather the misrepresentations of the New York representative. the less is this true in regard to the position of the present Local Quorum on the matter of the referendum. Of concurred in by every member of the Quorum. It is a fact, beyond the possibility of anccessful contradiction, that on the question of removal the majority contended that the committee had the right, under the provisions of the constitution, to remove the hendquarters, recognizing at the same time that if a referendum on their ar-tion was necessary or advisable it must necessarily come in the regular province of the committee to demand a referendum on its own acts. To do this would certainly have subjected them to considerable adverse criticism and it would certainly have been a very lilogical conclusion. That the majority of the committee were opposed to submitting the question to a they did contend that the constitution ing an amendment to the constitution on this point is not mandatory, and which to my mind is the only logical on this point is not mandatory, and even if the section could possibly be construed as mandatory, the constitution itself is faulty, as it very clearly provides how a referendum shall be demanded, namely "upon the request of five locals in three different states."

There was no question raised in regard to removal of headquarters from St. Louis. On this question the conmittee were a unit. It was very apinstructed their representatives very positively on this matter. The division in sentiment was very soon made manifest when the question came up as to what point headquarters should go. It was very soon ascertained that Omaha had a large majority of the committee or rather a very large plurality over and above any other candidate. When it became known candidate. When it became known that Omaha had received a majority of all votes cast, then the fun began and the minority, led by Comrade Hill-quit, raised all kinds of technical ques-tions, points of order, constitutional provisions and an array of fillbustering tactics that would do credit to Senator Morgan in his attitude on the Fanama treaty, Comrade Hillquite going so far as to state that "Omaha would never be printed on the party's stationery." I have often thought what would have been the result if Chicago, that received only one vote, had received the vote cast for Omaha. I am convinced in my own mind that those who have demanded a referendum in favor of Chicago would have made a similar demand for Indian-upon "request of five locals in three different states," would the minority still maintain that headquarters should remain at St. Louis. Such a position is not good common sense and I be-lieve that good common sense ought to prevail rather than technicalities. Pursuant to the threats made by

Applauded by Enormous Cathering of Workingmen.

Creates a Sensation by His Exposure of the iniqueerity of the Democratic aire Candidate.

CINCINNATI, O., March '20 .- The Socialist Party has scored another great success. Comrade Debs spoke in Music Hall last night to an audience of over two thousand persons. His ad-dress and the approval with which it was received have made a vertiable sensation. He disposed of the Repub-lican party and its millionaire candidate. Fleischmann, briefly but very effectively. His especial attention was directed to the other millionsire who wants to be mayer, Democratic Railroad President Ingalis.

While there have been larger political meetings in Music Hall, there has never been a more outhusiastic As Debs scored point after point for the cause he advocates, those two thousand men cheered with a spirit that showed they batieved in their principles, that they knew what they wanted, that they sould no longe be fooled with ampty phrases ante-election professions of friends that fleeces them all the year 'round.

The climan of the meeting came when Comrade Dubs, passing from nathe election of next week, and in term that left no doubt expressed blus on Mr. Ingails and his $1.32 idea workingmen. When Dobs said: " Ingalis ought to have to live on that $1.12 for about six months," there was a roar of approval that showed Mr. In-galls' evasion of the question put to him a hundred times since the cam paign has not deceived those working-their votes for Mr. Ingalis, of the Big Four corporation, on ejection day."

F. E. Seeds of Queington acted as chairman. After the Herweith Maen-nerchor had given some revolutionary songs, Comrade Seeds briefly intro-duced the speaker.

Debe was greeted with enthusiasm that must have been extremely gratify-ing, as showing that his long, self-secrificing battle for the cause be esponses in appreciated by its follow-trs.

In opening. Debt said: "There is an opening, 1900 said: "There is no darkness but imporance." The six minuje words by Sänkespeare embody a world of wistom. wave of reform and the city will be ready for the hospital. The reform party always happens to be the party out of power. When they get in then it is the other fellow.

"The Cilisons' party (the present local alias of the Democrats) declares in the interest of reform and civic purity. They say what you want her is a business administration. That is what you have had here and that is what ails you. According to the mani-festo of the Citizens' movement their object is to purify the civic life. I deny thin. If Mr. inguils and his con-freres were elected on their platform there would be no change in affairs. Just so long as a comparatively small class own the means of production the class in power will administer affairs in its own interest.

An Ingradible Claim.

"Mr. Ingalls, the principal repre entative of the Citisens' movement, is a millionaire and a capitalist, and, according to the manifesto of his party.
if entrusies with power, he will reform the politics and purify the civic life of the municipality. I do not besitate to say that this is the merest bancombe. "Mr. Ingails belongs to the owning class, and, therefore, the ruling class His politics is the expression of his economic interests, and, as an exploiter of labor, these are in conflict with the working class. It will make precious little difference to them if Mr. Ingalis is Mayor of Cincinnati or simply president of the Rig Four corporation. If elected to office, he will serve his class, and the cornorations will rule and corruption will follow as surely as the shadow does the substance.

"When the means of production are no longer private property there will no incentive for corrupt politics. be no incentive for corrupt politics. Not only this, but vice and crime will disappear, for the simple reason that it will no longer generate these de moralizing and destroying forces.

ANTI-LABOR LAW IN OLD VIRGINIA.

Southern Capitalist Politicians' Plan Simpler and More Direct than the Connecticut One.

RICHMOND, Va., March 28.-A bill has been introduced in the Legislature of this state making it a misdemeanor to "persuade or procure any servan who shall have contracted in writing. or orally, to serve his employer to un-lawfully leave the service of his master or employer."
This method of striking at the Misse movement is simpler and more direct than that varounded in the Connecticit propositions which The Worker has propositions which The Worker has reported and condemned, but H^ccur-ried out it will be equally effective: What the capitalists do not count en however, is that such legislation will do more than any number of "magnish tors" to awaken the workers to the necessity of united and uncompromiing political action on the basis of own class interests alone. THE LABOR WAR.

The Chicago "Inter-Ocean" Tells of New Prepara-

Employers Are More Thoroughly Orpanired to Resist Strikes and Sovnotts than Ever Refore - Internal Disruption as Well as Open Attack : Part of the Program.

The Chicago "Inter-Ocean" gives an extended account of the lining up of forces on both aides in the conflict be lween Labor and Capital there, which with some changes of detail, will apply to any part of the country. The ecount given of capitalist organiza tion methods is worthy of attention The "Inter-Ocean" says:

"Alarmed at the activity displayed by the employers of labor in forming associations, the labor unions of Chicago are forming alliances on the 'community-of-interest' plan, and prepar ing for the battle which, some of the landers believe, will inevitably follow the organization of the employers.

"While none of the leaders will be moted at this time as expressin darm, it is known that they are watch ing the organization of the employers closely. They say they are not to be caught asleep, and if a struggle is forced upon them they will be in a position to startic the industrial world.

Employers' Association.

"The Efoployers' Association. which F. W. Job was lately appointed secretary, is known to be growing to strength rapidly; and from the fact that its membership, as well as its alms and objects, have been kept a secret, the labor men say it is not or-gauized for any good purpose, so far as the interest of the workers are con-

"Every branch of employers of fabor the city is said to be organized, and in some industries the employers have gone beyond the mere organization of associations, and formed a central ody, in the same manner the unions have done. This is true especially of the lumber interests. While the Lumbermen's Association was formerly composed of lumber dealers exclusively, it now has branches affiliated with it of the furniture manufacturers, the sast and door manufacturers, saloon and office fixtures manufacturers, desk manufacturers, and manufacturers of barber's supplies. There is a central council composed of delegates from all these different as-sociations, with a permanent secretary, whose principal duty is to keep a close on the movements of the various labor unions connected with the lumber interests. The association is pledged to assist financially any of its members who may become involved in a strike. At the present time the wood workers are on strike in three desk manufacturing shops. Although a wheel has not turned in any of the establishments in the past six weeks, the manufacturers are making no effort to settle, believing they will starve out the strikers.

"The association is said to be paying each manufacturer $500 a week to compensate hinsfor the loss surfaiged in keeping his factory closed. A short time ago only $200 a week was being paid, and the manufacturers whose plants were tied up threatened to treat with the strikers and sign an agree-ment. Through this threat the allow-ance was raised to $500—a larger sum than would be realized in profits if the plants were in operation.

Many Spins at Work.

"Another development the labor leaders are watching with concern is the alleged employment of a large number of detectives who, they say, are secretly working in Chicago at the present time. They claim to have posi-tive information that two detective agencies, with headquarters in Cleve-land, O., are furnishing spice to employers at the rate of $150 a month, less the amount the men can earn as mechanics. One of these agencies, they say, has been in operation for years, and its workings have been ex-posed on several occasions. The other, known as the Employers' Auxiliary Company, has only recently come to the knowledge of the labor men.

"There is an agency here in this city, but its business is to furnish strike-breakers during a strike rather than spies. Recently, the labor leaders say, it got into trouble with the city police on account of the brutality of some of the men during a local strike of bill-posters, and it has not furnished men in local disputes since "The recent visit in this city of David M. Parry, of Indianapolis, presi-dent of the National Manufacturers' Association, when he made a sensational attack on labor unions and their leaders, was part of the plan of the employers here to stir up agitation and induce employers to organize. Since that time John Kirby of Cleveland, a prototype of Parry, has been flooding the country with circulars showing manufacturers how easy it is to smash labor unions through the courts. "Along with these circulars is a pamphiet, written by James H. Miller of Chicago, who has been chiefly instrumental in causing the strike now on here among the sheet metal workers. In the pamphiet Miller advocates appeals for injunctions in every case when a dispute surious and he greaters.

Lining Up for Gigant's Conflict "Altogether it looks, according to the labor men in the city, as if the cap-tending forces were lining up for a gigantic conflict. The employers, habor tions for Battle. men say, are relying on the unibuited capital behind them to bring them pat victorious. It is known that one of the largest merchants in the city recently declared that he was willing to nut up $100.000 as his share of a fami to crush the unions of teamsters.

"In the opinion of many labor leaders the only thing that is delaying the conflict now is the imperfect state of the organization of employers and the good times throughout the country. The former obstacle is being rapidly overcome, as the employers are joining associations by the score daily, and if a season of depression comes to the country the union men believe the cos flict will begin,"

The Socialist will object to the declaration that "a gigantic conflict is coming." The conflict is already here. For many years it has raged with verying fortunes but, on the whole with ever increasing intensity, with in-creasing evidence that it is a conflict which cannot be compromised, which can end only in complete victory on one side or the other. On which side that will be, no student of history can doubt. By its own inherent weaknesses, as well as by the powers which it developes in its victims and enemies, capitalism is doomed. The conflict is on. New and sharper phases of it are impending. The day of decision approaches—how closely, it is neither in our power nor is it our concern to try to guess. The conflict is on, that is all, and he is both faine and foolish wh delays to find his place in the ranks and fight for the cause that is his.

POWER OF ENVIRONMENT.

In the "Youth's Companion" of August 17 appear two items on the same page which seem to use rather inconsistent. The first is a conclusion of the editor, which is amswered by the actini fact as narrated in the ec-ond item, which is also an answer to an objection that a great many people have against Socialism. The first one is headed "The Prob-em of Poverty," and, after discussing this question, it concludes as follows: "It is beyond human ingenuity in change the nature of man; to make the shiftless thrifty or the improvident provident; so it seems that the best we can do is to strive to relieve imme-diate suffering and to let the radical cure proceed in the way that fate has ordained, if cure there is to be."

The other article is headed "Saved by TRE Work," which I give in full: "When, twenty-six years ago, Mr. Brockway began his famous prison reform work at Elmira, he declared it as his belief that about 20 per cent. of the men were incorrigible. Some time afterward he said that he was not so sure about the 20 per cent.—he had then a list of ten whom-he had then a list of ten whom he could send to Auburn, but he was giving them another chance." In a few weeks two of the men had shown decided improvement; a few weeks mora and the entire list had disappeared. The story of one man is typical of many, and reveals the secret of his

"From the 600 men and boys Mr. Brockway selected 50 of the very low-est grade. He employed a professor from an art school to teach them. The teacher came and was met by absolute indifference from the whole 30. He gave each one a pencil, ruler and a piece of paper tacked to a drawing board, and told him to draw a six inch iquare. Few of the men could so it; nany were unable even to measure

"This man, at that lesson, made a design both original and beautiful. The teacher told him so. He was wholly unprepared for the effect of his praise, for suddenly, at his words, the hard, dull face changed, and he saw to his amazement that the man's eyes were aim with tears. The convict, law, hardened, indifferent, had found some-thing beautiful that he could do, and in the finding he had discovered him

"There was no need of forcing him to his task after that. He became an expert designer, and with his work came the longing to earn his freedom. THE NATIONAL BLACKLIST PLAN.

How Capitalists Respect the "Right to Work."

Some Datalia of Methods by Which Matienal Metal Trades Association Plans to Hound to Earth Workmo: Who Dare Se True to Their Class.

The "Social Democratic Hernid" of Milwaukee in its last issue exposer some details of a system by which the national organization of employers in the metal trades proposes to bound down every workman who dares to be true to his class and does not humbly bow to every dictate of his employer.

An Q.an Admission.

Attention was called to the matter few days ago by the publication in the Milwaukee "Free Press" of the following Racine dispatch:

"Manufacturers of this city will per-fect an organization similar to the Foundrymen's Association formed in many cities throughout the country, to fight against the agitators of labor unionism and get rid of employees who create trouble among other employees. A leading manufactures to-day stated that already twelve manufacturers had signified their willingness to join the new association and would deposit $1,000 each to bind themselves to the raies of the association. Every manufacturer in the city is to be called on, and if the present plans are perfected every employee, 8,000 in number, will have his name listed in the office of the secretary of the association. The manufacturers who join the associa-tion are to present a list containing the names of all their employees and when an employee is discharged the name of such employee and the cause of his dis-charge is to be reported to the secretary of the association. Then the sec retary is to pass to all members the report given of the discharged em-ployee and if reasons are sufficient the discharged man WILL BE UNABLE TO SECURE EMPLOYMENT in the factories of the members of the association. When the plan of the manu facturers became public to-day it created quite a stir among all em-ployees, union as well as non-union, and all declare that the move is

The "Social Democratic Herald" egys that when this disputch was printed—through the injudicions es thusinsm of a young reporter, probably, who honestly supposed it was his business to get in all the news, and the 'sundvertunce of the, editor who know the ropes—"there was wrath of the kneest kind felt by the big men of the metal trades in this and other cities."

The employees in the metal trade utred to fill out and sign an ap other trades-stating name, address age, nationality, condition as married or single, trade and specialty, time of apprenticeship and experience, pre-vious places of employment, and refere This blank is ostensibly designed only for the information of the particular employer to whom the application is made. But that this is not its real purpose was made certain by a dis-covery made by a workman in a Mil-waukee foundry. Some papers were accidentally dropped and the work men, picking them up, found a numbe of the application forms each accom-panied with another document that employees were not supposed to see...a letter to one Wm. J. Fairbeirn in the Hathaway Building, notifying him that "the employee named below has this day left our service," with name acrolis. A few weeks lafer he was seen out on the laws, gathering and of Mr. Fairbaira." says that paper, the making of a design for a tile.

"In the class was one pupil—a man, "Founders' Bureau." Inside, there was a row of chairs round three sides of the room, making it look like an intelthe room, making it look like an intelligence office, and down at the end, near the windows overlooking the street, was a roll-top deak and a man behind it using a typewriter. This was Mr. Fairbairn himself, a darkhaired, innocent-looking gentleman, who looked more like a nice young centralistic Stunday School spacerins and the street of the street o capitalistic Sunday school superintend ent than a man crusher and conspirer against the interests of the workers. But when he was shown one of the blanks and asked what it meant, his smile faded out and he began to look

"I cannot say a word about the matter-you'h have to see Mr. Wat-kins, at the Christianson Manufacturhis mouth a little. He denied that there was any blacklist back of the blanks and said the association was merely a sort of employment bureau.

Only a "Glearing House." " Tes, it's a sort of clearing house, ne said, cautiously, 'it is to get men to work, without losing time—it isn't a blacklist, we need all the men we can "And then he became a clam again,

"Now, it happens that S. W. Wat-kins is the president of the national or-ganisation and that more than one of the association's crew of strike-breek-ing detectives has been given tem-perary shelter there. These men are ing detectives has been given tem-popury shelter there. These men are suggited with a certain card which ad-mits them to any foundry or machine abop to which they are gent. It is a secret sign of their having been sent by the national association. The asso-ciation extends its operations all over the country and is so effective that the manufacturers can affect to heep a

"Efforts are being mane to get hold of the rosters of the labor unions, but the manufacturers have had to go at the manufactures have and to go at it very slyly. Hecently a local small dealer offered 7 per cent, reduction on goods purchased by union men under the coupon system, the percentage to go to the union treasury. In connection with this was a request for the roster of the union, which was, of course, refused."

The plan is, of course, not a new on but there is reason to believe that it is better organized, on a larger scale and with greater secrecy and certainty, now than ever before. Beveral states have laws against blacklisting, but they have as little effect as the multi-tudinous anti-trust laws. With all the machinery of law and government in the hands of members or hungers-or of the capitalist class, passively voted into office by the unthinking workers, the existence of such laws on the statute books gives no alarm to the blacklisters, because they know they can be violated with impunity.

PROGRESS IN NEW JERSEY.

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N. PHILADELPHIA, March 30.-The State Committee held its usual meeting lo-day. A charter was granted to a new local at Utahville in Clearfield County. B. T. Strunk is the secretary. Communications received showed that Organizer Collins is "bustling" with great energy and success. He has formed a Socialist club at Shamokin. At Williamsport he has put in a strenuous week. On successive even-ings he addressed meetings of the Wood Workers' Union, the West End Local, the Planterers' Union, the Team Owners' Union, and the Machinists' Culon. He also held public meetings in Newberry and at Montgomery Station. The comrades are highly pleased with his work and expect good results.

Doing the Impossible.

Next week we shall be able to say something definite of the result of all the hard work that has been done in past months of preparation and the still more strenuous labors of the volunteers now on duty at Grand Cen-tral Palace. At present, judging from the first four days—necessarily the hardest and the least fruitful of visible results—we may say it will fulfill all reasonable expectations; and if it ful-fils some unreasonable ones, all the better. It is the nature of Socialists to be unreasonable in their expecta-tions, to set their standards high, and by sheer force of enthusiasm and will to do what the paragons of common sense call the impossible.

Thursday, April 2, is to be Brook-lyn and Brewery Workers' Day and it is urobable that the attendance will be larger than on any previous day. Friday, Bohemian and Tobacco Workers' Day, will hardly be second to it. Saturday will be East Side Day, with special and appropriate features. The sast day, Sunday, and in all likelihood the best day of the nine, will be New Jersey Day. The space at our disposal forbids any attempt to tell what the Fair is like or to enumerate the various features that interest or amuse the crowds. All tastes can be suited. To hear Spargo or Fieldman turning their ele quence to account as "barkers," to see Phillips presiding at the Funny Museum, to watch the girls going abou with chance-books on the many handsome donations—just to watch is as good as to go to a play. But if you prefer the stage of art to the stage of life for a while, there it is in the Clobe Theater, with nightly dramatic and vandeville performances. There ill minic of protty nearly overs san that the world has yet heard. There are things to buy—anywhere from 5 cents to as many dollars—and you can think of plenty of friends for whom you should get some souvenir. Then there is dancing. Between whiles there is eating and drinking. In fact, there is everything you can think of.

The Voting Contests.

I The voting contests began to get lively Tuesday evening. When the doors closed the Social Democratic Educational Club was in the lead as the most popular party organization; but there are others, and they say their innings are to come. In the roll of popular trace union secretaries, B. Gregor of Carpenters' No. 407 was well ahead, with H. E. Richards of the Building Trades Section, Victor Wey-rauch of the Wagon Makers, P. Rel-caenbacher of the Bartenders, M. Rosenhain and Geo. Bowman of Cigar Packers No. 25' as competitors. Wm. Koenig of the Wood Carvers led the ris of Cigar Makers No. 144 will give him a race. Among the business list of union presidents, but Dan Harhim a race. Among the business rgents Emil Weiss of the Wagon Makers seemed most popular; others being voted for were J. Barry of the Actors. Chas. Gali and H. Hand of the Wagon Makers, J. Hatch of the Upholsterers. Feeney of the Bartenders, and Oscar Hanne of the Structural Iron Workers Hen Hanford and John Welr are running a close race on general popularity among trade unionists. Equally interesting is the question Equally increasing is the question of who is to be counted the favorite among the many ladies who are doing such excellent work at the Fair. So far the list stood, in order of popularity, as follows: Miss Meyer, Mrs. Halpern, Miss Lee, Miss Dahme, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Hillquit, Miss Ibson, and Beautiful prizes await the winners in these various contests, most of them donated by labor organizations.

Comrade Taenzer is working night and day, managing the entertainment He appreciates the gravity of the que tion asked by Sir Boyle Roche; "Ho can a man be in two places at once Mr. Speaker—unless he were a bird?"
But it is almost invidious to name any of the workers, because there are so many we cannot mention all as they

And that is true of the whole affair If you are wise you will go and see and bear and enjoy everything a: the Pair for yourself. When you have been there you will be ready to ap-pland what has been done this time and to belp do it still better next time

Domrades All Over the Country Cas

One feature of the Globe Fair that wins unanimous approval is the Fair Journal. It is certainly a credit to the comrades who prepared H, and its comrades who propaged 2, and its quality is attested by the number of people who come back for extra copies

Four days remain, after this issue | after they have examined the one ther buught at the door

The Journal is on sale at the Pair for 10 cents a copy. Mail orders should be addressed to the Comrade Publishing Co., 11 Cooper square. The mail price is 15 cents a copy, or two for 25 cents. In this part of the enterprise comrades in all parts of the country can co-operats. The literature agent of every local should at once order a sup-ply. They will sell well, and the proceeds will help toward starting

Besides the program of the Fair, the

INTERNATIONALISM IS OUR ONLY HOPE.

Workingmen of Southern California Learning that Maxings and Japanese Laborers May Become Legal Brothers

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 20.-One of the greatest difficulties with which the workingmen of Southern California have had to contend in the systematic flooding of the country with more workers than can get emplayment, so as to keep up keen co petition for jobs and paralyze the ef-forts of the working class to protect itself by organization. The Southern l'acife Railway Company, which di-rectly or indirectly dominates almost all industry in this part of the country, is the great sinner in this respect. By procuring the publication in Eastern papers and magazines, not of advers-tisoments—oh, no—of well written and richly illustrated articles setting forth the delights of life in Southern Callfornis, the good wages and case of getting employment, the certainty of any Industrious workingman soon becom ing independently wealthy here, they induce Eastern mechanics and artizans to spend their little savings and mortgage their future in order to get here, only to find themselves stranded, out of a job for months at a time, and forced to beg for permission to work at miserably low wages.

To supply a surplus of unskilled other industries. Mexicans and Japanese are entired here by similar peets ods. They come in under contract and in debt to the contractors, and are carefully kept in debt and if they complain are turned off to starve, scab, beg, or steal, as best they may,

On account of the difference of language, customs, and standard of living, it has heretofore been almost im possible for the American workmen to get into louch with these imported laborers, and bitter hatred has been the feeling generally entertained in regard to them

Of late, however, the situation be gins to change a little. A start has been made in organizing the Mexican laborers here and it is hoped they will soon develop the idea of united action for their own defense and work in harmony with the American organisa tions for the common good. The suc-cess of the United Mine Workers in the East in organising the Stalians, Hungarians, and Slavs who were imported as strike-breakers and the fact that these have become stanuch union-ists gives us hope of similar success
